Defense Attacks State's Case From Many Angles

MODEL OF FACTORY WHERE MARY PHAGAN WAS KILLED

In the top corner the arrow points to chute down which defense may claim body was hurled. To the left of the steps in the corner picture is shown the wall of the partition, behind which the body was lying when found by Lee and the police. Still further to the left, just in front of the opening, is shown by two uprights the place where Lee stood when he first saw the body, which was partially hidden by the partition.

The left of the model faces Forsyth street and the picture principally gives a lengthwise view of the factory. The top at the left shows Frank's private office, with the two desks. The door to the outer office is shown. The elevator shaft is shown running along to the right near the office. The top of the model is the second floor, and by looking down the jury will be able to see the point where the body is alleged, to have been found by Conley, and the point where he claims he dropped it.

In the basement can be noted the trashpile, the boiler, the ladder, the partition, and practically every point that figures in the testimony about the crime.

MOTORMAN AND CONDUCTOR SAY NEWSBOY EPPS WAS NOT ON CAR THAT BROUGHT MARY TO CITY

They Swear That She Left Car at Broad and Hunter Streets at 12:10, the Very Hour Monteen Stover Claims to Have Left Factory–Daisy Hopkins Swears She Never Visited Factory With Dalton and That She Did Not Know Frank

NEW THEORY OF HOW CRIME MIGHT HAVE BEEN COMMITTED INTIMATED BY ENGINEER'S TESTIMONY

Albert Kauffman Describes Passageway on First Floor Leading to Chute, Through Which He Declares Human Body Could Easily Have Passed–Spots, Said to Be Blood, Found in Passageway

A new theory of the Mary Phagan murder was hinted at by the defense at the trial of Leo M. Frank Friday while Albert Kauffman, a civil engineer, was under examination. From questions asked by Attorney Arnold, Mr. Kauffman testified that there was a chute in the rear of the National Pencil factory building leading from the first floor down into the basement and that the trap door to this chute was large enough to slide a human body through, in fact, he said it was large enough to slide several bodies through at the same moment.

He told of a dark and narrow hallway leading from the front of the building by the stairway back to the rear by the trap door. Many questions were asked concerning this hallway and chute and trial observers believe that the defense is preparing a way for introduction of other testimony possibly bearing out the theory that the child was murdered just as she went to leave the building, was dragged back along this dark hallway and dropped through the chute into the basement. Questions were asked the engineer about a vat in the metal room. He declared that it was plenty large enough to hold the body of a girl who measured five feet and three inches tall.

BLOOD IN DARK PASSAGEWAY?

It is known that the defense has found dark red spots, presumed to be blood, on a door leading to the dark passageway, which goes to the rear of the building and to the chute, to which so much attention was paid by the attorneys. The dark spots on the door have been chipped off, and an analysis, the result of which is not known, has been made for the defense.

This circumtance is certain to be used by the defense in its effort to show that the murder could have been committed on the first floor without the knowledge of the defendant. Indications were, after the defense had been introducing testimony several hours, that it will argue to the jury that there are a number of different ways that the crime could have been committed and a number of ways by which the body could have been carried or hurled to the basement. It is known that a search of the chute did not develop any blood stains.

The testimony given by George Epps, the newsie who said that he rode to town with Mary Phagan on her last trip shortly before she met death at the National Pencil factory, was repudiated by two witnesses. W. M. Matthews, motorman, and W. T. Hollis, conductor, on the English avenue line, testified that they each saw Mary Phagan board the car at Lindsay street and that she was alone at the time. Both were positive that they knew George Epps and that he was not seen by either of them on that day.

Motorman Matthews testified that Mary Phagan did not leave the car at Marietta street as was sworn by the newsie, but remained on it until the car reached Hunter and Broad and left in company with another girl going toward the pencil factory along Hunter street toward Forsyth. He declared that his car was on schedule time and passed Hunter and Broad at 12:10 o'clock. This testimony repudiates that of Jim Conley that Mary Phagan entered the factory ahead of Monteen Stover if Monteen Stover testified correctly when she said that she left the factory at 12:10. It also strikes at a vital point made by the state that Mary Phagan entered prior to Monteen Stover and immediately after she entered Monteen Stover found Frank's office unoccupied.

Conductor Hollis corroborated the motorman as to time and Mary Phagan boarding the car alone, but he did not see her in company with another girl. He left the car at Marietta and Forsyth streets, however, and Motorman Matthews rode on over to Mitchell street. The car crew was relieved by another crew at Forsyth and Marietta streets, they both testified.

Daisy Hopkins, the woman mentioned in the testimony of the negro, Jim Conley, which was corroborated by C. B. Dalton, took the stand Friday morning as a witness for the defense and repudiated the testimony given by Conley and Dalton. The Hopkins girl denied any misconduct with Dalton, denied that she had introduced Dalton to Frank, denied that she ever spoke to Frank or that Frank ever spoke to her and denied that she knew where the basement to the pencil factory was. The witness further declared that Dalton had never visited her at the factory. She admitted having been arrested and lodged in jail.

IMPORTANT WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE.

After proving the correctness of the cardboard model of the Pencil factory made by T. H. Willett, of 100 Highland avenue, who made it from Kauffman's blue prints, the defense, it is understood, will call Darley or Holloway to the stand, to contradict statements made by the negro Conley. The next witness is expected to be Herbert Schiff, Frank's young assistant at the factory, and he is one of the most important of the state's witnesses. He will testify, it is said, that one day subsequent to the murder, when the police were there and there was considerable excitement, he found Conley hiding among a pile of boxes on one of the upper floors and apparently very much frightened.

Schiff will also identify the financial statement made out by Frank on the afternoon of the murder, and will show the tediousness of the work, and will declare that it certainly took the superintendent several hours to complete it.

The Journal has learned that there is little doubt, now, that the defense will put the character of Frank in issue.

This means that the trial will be prolonged some time, as fifty or more well-known citizens are ready to swear to the good character of the defendant.

DAISY HOPKINS CALLED.

A sensation was sprung at the opening of court Friday morning when the defense called Daisy Hopkins, involved by the testimony of C. B. Dalton and of James Conley, as a witness for its own side of the case.

Detective Harry Scott was to be recalled to the stand by the state to answer one queston, the state agreeing at the same time to let the defense recall Boots Rogers to answer a question of its own.

The jurors spent a pleasant evening Thursday listening to Juror Winburn tickle the ivories of the Kimball house piano. All members of the jury were well except Juror Metcalfe, who has been bothered by a crick in his neck for the past twenty-four hours. The court directed that a physician wait upon him as the conclusion of court Friday, the physician to be overshadowed by a court bailiff. Juror Townsend is growing a mustache. He was clean shaven when he became a juror, but now he presents a very creditable set of furs on his upper lip.

SCOTT ON STAND.

Detective Scott was called to the stand.

"How long did it take Jim Conley to write those notes at your dictation, at police headquarters?" asked the solicitor.

"Two or three minutes."

"You are not fixing to leave the city, are you, Mr. Scott?" asked Mr. Rosser.

"No, sir."

"Boots" Rogers was recalled, but it was announced that he was not in court. Attorney Rosser called for George Epps. He wasn't present, Solicitor Dorsey announcing that he had excused the newsboy, but that he would get him to court if the defense wanted him. The defense said they wanted him, and the solicitor ordered that he be subpenaed. Rogers arrived at this juncture, and was called to the stand.

HOPKINS GIRL TESTIFIES.

Daisy Hopkins was called by the defense. She entered court chewing gum, and retained it on the witness stand, chewing leisurely.

She held up her left hand by mistake to be sworn, and was admonished to hold up her right. In answer to a question of Attorney Arnold she said she

BANKERS FROM WEST ASK U. S. FOR $25,000,000

Treasury Is Prepared to Deposit $100,000,000 if Necessary to Move Crops

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—At a conference today between treasury officials and bankers of the central west regarding the distribution of government deposits to help move crops, Assistant Secretary Williams declared the treasury was prepared to deposit $100,000,000 if necessary. The original plan called for $50,000,000. The exact amount will be determined after the bankers' views have been analyzed.

Bankers of Chicago and Indianapolis, it was said, declared they were not prepared to say whether the deposits would be needed by them. Generally the government's proposition to put out the money was welcomed.

Mr. Williams informed the bankers that on deposits to be secured by state and other bonds, exclusive of government bonds and by commercial paper, the treasury department probably would insist upon an additional security of 10 per cent in United States bonds.

HOUSE PASSES MEDICAL PRACTICE REFORM BILL

Intended That New Measure Shall Stamp Out All Quackery in Georgia

The medical practice bill, somewhat amended but still carrying sweeping regulations of the practice of medicine in this state, was passed by the house Friday by a vote of 121 to 3. This is the senate bill introduced by Senator Longino. As it was passed in amended form, it will have to go back to the senate for action on the amendments.

The main amendment was the increase of the board of state examiners from eight to ten members, five of whom shall be allopaths; three eclectics and two homeopaths. The bill is aimed mainly against quackery.

There are other regulations. One interesting feature was the Christian Science provisions. Persons of that faith, under the terms of this bill, may practice, but they cannot accept fees.

The measure provides that each member of the board of medical examiners must have practiced five years in the state, and that he must not be connected with any medical college. These members are to be appointed by the

Huerta's Message Received At White House, But Lind Will Go Ahead to Mexico

When Lind Arrives, the Proposal He Carries Will Be Made Public in Washington, in Mexico City and to All Governments of the World, in the Hope That Public Opinion Will Force a Peaceful Settlement

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—After a conference with President Wilson at the White House early today, Secretary Bryan announced that they had today received the message from Manuel Garza Aalipe, acting minister of foreign affairs in Mexico, declaring on behalf of President Huerta that the presence of John Lind would be undesirable in Mexico unless he brought recognition of the Huerta government. Mr. Bryan said the erwas no change in the plan with respect to Mr. Lind's mission. He declined to say what the nature of the American government's reply to the Adalpe message would be.

Secretary Bryan said that the message had been transmitted through the American embassy at Mexico City, had been translated during the night, and was presented early today to President Wilson.

The president, before the message arrived, had taken the position that it was incredible that the Huerta government would refuse to receive an envoy bound on a peaceful mission. Receipt of today's message brought the situation to a diplomatic crisis.

LIND WILL GO AHEAD.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable attitude of the Huerta government toward the mission of John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson, the administration here intends to follow department here of his arrial in Mexico City, there will be made public in Washington and in the Mexican capital simultaneously the proposal which the United States offers as marking the pathway to peace.

The proposals will be transmitted as a matter of information to the diplomatic corps in Washington, for the other governments of the world.

SHERIFF RESPONSIBLE FOR PRISONER, SAYS MANGUM

Sheriff Answers Criticisms of His Failure to aHndcuff Frank

Answering criticisms which he said has been made of the fact that he does not handcuff Leo M. Frank, accused of the murder of Mary Phagan, in conducting the prisoner to and from the court house, Sheriff C. W. Mangum has issued the following statement with th erequest that it be published:

"Some complaints are being made in regard to the handling of a prisoner (not prisoners) to and from the tower.

"When any prisoner is to be handled, if he is not violent or unruly he is allowed to go walking by the side of the officer or officers in charge of him, regardless of whether he is black or white, regardless of the prisoner's sex, creed or nationality.

"The sheriff and his deputies are responsible for the safe handling of prisoners, and my belief is that the people of Fulton county have full confidence in the sheriff and his deputies.

"Respectfully,

(Signed) "C. W. MANGUM."

ALABAMA EDITOR DIES SUDDENLY IN COUNTRY

Major W. W. Screws, of Montgomery Advertiser, Succumbs to Indigestion

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 8.—Major William Wallace Screws, editor of the Montgomery Advertiser, died suddenly last night at his country home at Cronos, 14 miles from town, of an attack of acute indigestion. With him at the time of his death were his wife and two of his sons, Benjamin Screws and Holt Screws.

Major Screws was born February 25, 1839, in Barbour county, Ala. He was without college advantages, but received a good common school education. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in Montgomery before the Civil war. He enlisted early in that struggle and saw service in Tennessee, Kentucky and Virginia, being captured in the spring of 1865.

He became connected with the Advertiser a few years after the war, and this connection continued until his death. Major Screws served as secretary of state for Alabama four years, and from 1893 to 1897, he was postmaster at Montgomery. He was the author of books relating to the history of Alabama. He was prominent in Masonic circles and in the Episcopal church. A wif eand three sons survive.

Monaco Prince Will Study Workings of U. S. Weather Bureau

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Prince Albert, of Monaco, noted for his interest in scientific studies and for the fact that he rules over an independent territory on the Mediterranean, only eight square miles in area, has informed the state department that he expects to visit the United States early next month.

A letter from Dr. J. Richard, who signs himself "director of the scientific cabinet of his serene highness," stated that the prince wished to study the workings of the weather bureau here. He will be notified that his government will be pleased to extend this privilege.

Invention May Cause Death of All Warfare

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, Aug. —It is stated that the French government is watching a series of extraordinary experiments at Havre with an invention of a man named Ulivi, who is said to have discovered means for projecting ultra-violet rays a distance of fourteen miles, and exploding gunpowder contained in a metallic box.

It is claimed that the rays also will explode torpedoes at the same distance.

CLEM POOL STARTS LIFE SENTENCE FOR MURDER

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 8.—This morning Clem Pool, convicted of the murder of Policeman Harry Cook, will begin a life sentence, his work starting on the Walker county chaingang. Thursday afternoon he was taken through the country to the county west of here, a guard from the convict camp coming to Dalton with the prisoner.

The case established a speed record here, for Pool begins his life sentence just twelve days after the commission of his crime. Sunday night, August 28, he shot and killed Policeman Cook, who had gone to arrest him. He escaped, was captured, indicted, tried and convicted within four days of his crime. On the jury's recommendation for mercy he was given a life sentence. Pool is twenty-three years of age.

PROPOSES IN STATION, BRIDE DECIDES TO STAY

Her trunk was packed and at the station waiting to be checked. Miss Estelle Andrews was quite ready to start for her home in Meridian, Miss., when up came W. Y. Carter, Jr., and now, instead of going home alone she remained in Atlanta with her husband.

The couple were married Thursday night at the St. Paul Methodist church by Rev. B. F. Fraser and will make their home in Atlanta.

Mr. Carter is head mechanic at the Southern Auto and Equipment company. Miss Andrews had been visiting friends on Stonewall street at the time.

The marriage is a culmination of a courtship of two years' standing.

SON OF H. M. STANLEY IS KILLED BY LIGHTNING

Fifteen-Year-Old John Stanley Struck While Returning From Rabbit Hunt

DUBLIN, Ga., Aug. 8.—John Stanley, the fifteen-year-old son of Commissioner of Labor H. M. Stanley, was killed instantly Thursday afternoon by lightning. He had been rabbit hunting with several young boys, and, seeing a cloud, was hurrying home when he was struck.

He was alone and nothing was known of the tragedy until a negro cook noticed one of the neighbors that a dead man was in a street near by. Several hurried to the scene and found the body still warm, although it had been exposed an hour.

The body was carried to the home of Mr. William Pritchett and every effort made to restore life. On the right side of the head was a burn where the lightning entered, passing through the body and tearing one shoe to pieces.

John Stanley, in company with his elder brother Harry, has been visiting his aunt, Mrs. W. A. Pritchett, for the past two weeks. Dublin was his home until Mr. Stanley was elected commissioner of labor. Since then they have made their home in Decatur, Ga.

TEMPERANCE SPREADING THROUGH BRITISH ISLES

Noted Medical Man Discusses Movement—Army and Navy Officers Praised

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Aug. 8.—The remarkable spread of the temperance movement in the British Isles was discussed today by Sir Thomas Barlow, president of the International Medical congress at a breakfast given to several hundred physicians by the National Temperance league.

Sir Thomas said that in the army and navy the young officers were setting a good example of abstinence to their men. There has been, he said, an enormous change among command classes, while the use of alcohol in hospitals and by medical men generally has greatly decreased.

STONE BULLET MOLD OF WAR OF 1776 UNEARTHED

WASHINGTON, Ga., Aug. 8.—A unique and interesting relic from the battlefield of Kettle Creek, in the southwestern part of the county, which battle was fought on February 14, 1776, was exhibited in Washington a few days ago by Hon. P. D. Harden, former representative from Wilkes. It was a stone bullet mould, with two cavities, one for rifle and the other for pistol bullets. Many interesting relics have been unearthed in this vicinity.

(By Associated Press.)

TULSA, Okla., Aug. 8.—After holding a dozen men at bay, while he gathered all the money in sight, $60, an unidentified man attempted to escape from a club house near Tulsa in an automobile last night, and was shot and killed by a posse who pursued him in another automobile. The man emptied his revolver at his pursuers, but without result.

CARDINAL GIBBONS IS OPPOSED TO SUFFRAGE

Believes Women Will Get It but Prefers Good Mothers to Good Politicians

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—"I am weary," said Cardinal Gibbons, when he arrived in Chicago today en route to Milwaukee, where he will preside over meetings of the Federated Catholic Societies. "These trips," he said, "are a trifle hard on an old man."

At the railway station the cardinal was plied with questions by eager reporters.

"Will you speak of woman suffrage?" he was asked.

"Personally I do not believe in women voting," was the cardinal's reply. "I have always opposed it. The church has not passed on the subject. I have the old-fashioned idea about the woman and the home. I think women would better make good mothers than good politicians. But suffrage is certain to come to women."

FRISCO CROWDS TO HEAR DIGGS WHITE SLAVE CASE

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 8.—So much notoriety has attended the trial of Maury I. Diggs under the Mann act that the corridors of the federal building were chocked with crowds today an hour before the doors of the court room opened.

Marsha Warrington, on whose testimony interest focused today, was not expected to take the stand for the government until late in the afternoon. The prosecution planned first to introduce further evidence from railway employes about the trip from Sacramento to Reno, where Diggs, Caminetti, Marsha Warrington and Lola Norris were arrested.

Safety in Travel

Revolutionary Railroad Device to be Demonstrated in Atlanta Tomorrow

Railroad officials of the entire country are tremendously interested in the Shepherd Automatic Switch, which will be demonstrated at Oakland City tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, when a train of the Atlanta and West Point railroad will be run through an open switch in the presence of a large number of interested men.

The collision of lives taken each year by train wrecks due to open switches has been enormous.

For years the inventive genius at the command of every great railroad system has been devoted to solving this question.

The question has been solved. The danger has been removed. The open switch is closed. The Shepherd Automatic Switch company has answered the problem. Its safety device has removed the peril from the open switch.

By a non-electrical mechanical device the main line is closed as soon as the last truck of a car has crossed the switch. It can be opened when the engineer throws a lever on entering the siding.

The danger of open and split switches is absolutely eliminated. As a time-saver this device will remove from a third to a half of the number of stops and operations of switchmen in taking and leaving sliding.

The value of the Shepherd Automatic Switch will be shown by a special demonstration tomorrow (Saturday) August 9, at 3 p. m., on a spur track of the Atlanta and West Point railroad at the Atlanta Manufacturing Supply company's shop in Oakland City, on the East Point line.

The public is urged to view the practical demonstration of this wonderful invention.

Detailed information as to the Shepherd Automatic Switch will be gladly furnished by W. H. Green, at the Aragon Hotel, or W. C. Westfall, 706 Forsyth National Bank building.

Remember the demonstration begins promptly at 3 p. m., tomorrow at Oakland City.

Take East Point car.—(Advt.)

JORDAN SAYS EUROPE CREDIT BANKS ARE BEST

Foreign Commissioner Talks of Financing Crops After Investigations Abroad

Some interesting sidelights on European systems of farm finance were given by Harvie Jordan in an address before the house and senate delivered in the house chamber Thursday night. Mr. Jordan was a member of the American end of the federal commission which has just returned from a three months' tour of investigation in the countries of the old world, with the object of adapting their system of rural credit banking to the needs of American farmers, and especially the farmers of the south.

His address brought out the need of adequate credit for the farmers who now have to mortgage their crops up to the hilt and pay 8 per cent for short time loans, and in consequence, have to sell the crop as soon as it is picked, accepting small prices for it.

He spoke of the contrast between the farming of Europe and of America, of the diversified crops of the old world which make the farmer independent. He cited the fact that Georgia spends $8,000,000 more for food stuffs than her farms produce, and that the United States exported 25 per cent of its food products twenty years ago, while now it only exports 2 per cent.

An interesting discussion of intensified farming brought out the fact that the average wheat yield in Europe is 30 to 40 bushels per acre, while in this country is only 12 to 15.

All these he presented as strong arguments for industrializing agriculture in this country as is done abroad; bringing out the fact that a prosperous system of agriculture would solve many of the financial troubles of the country.

The system of credit in European countries as he described them consist of short time personal credit banks, and long time land mortgage banks. The latter, he stated, are more adaptable to American conditions.

These banks are large associations who harvest no deposits, making long time loans on farm lands, and issuing bonds on the mortgages. The loan is made for a period of 50 or 75 years, and the interest rate is 4 per cent, by paying 4 3-4 per cent for 50 years the debt is amortized. The usual rate of issuing these loans is based on 50 per cent of the value of the land.

This gives the farmer a long time to pay the loan, plenty of time to select favorable market for his crops, and freedom to raise what he pleases on his land. Thereby fostering a rotation of crops and an upbuilding of the land.

PUBLIC SCHOOL FIGHT BOBS UP IN SENATE

Several important matters were brought before the senate Thursday afternoon.

A resolution was introduced by Senator Miller specifying that 2 1-2 mills out of the five mills allowed, be used for public schools.

This, known as the administration measure, was defeated in the house on Wednesday.

Mr. Miller also introduced a resolution setting asode 1 1-8 mills as a pension fund, which, on this basis, would amount to $1,180,000.

The bill increasing the number of senators was tabled, and a bill was introduced by Senator McNeill allowing through freight trains to run on Sunday. A local bill incorporating the city of Rome was passed.

A bill by Senator Sweat, providing that the execution of lost or destroyed deeds must be proved, was passed unanimously.

A bill by Senators Bush and Foster, prohibiting the invelgling of any girl under fourteen into a life of vice, was also unanimously passed. Also a measure of Senators Rushing and Anderson providing that bridges between channels shall be kept up.

FUNERAL OF JOHN WEAVER TO BE HELD AT NEWNAN

The body of John Weaver, the lineman of the Atlanta Telephone and Telegraph company, who was killed Thursday afternoon by a heavily charged electric wire, was sent to Newnan, Ga., Friday morning at 8 o'clock for funeral and interment.

The accident happened about 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in front of No. 352 Whitehall street. Weaver was on a cross tree of the pole and came in contact with one of the Georgia Railway and Power company's wires carrying 11,000 volts. His death was almost instant.

He is survived by his wife, one child, his father, Peter Weaver, and a brother, Sam Weaver, of Apton, Ga. His home is on Woodward avenue.

Seeking Light on Mexican Situation

JOHN LIND.

Our new mediator in Mexico, John Lind, former governor ff Minnesota, doesn't talk the Mex. lingo at all, but he can listen fine in Swedish. His parents brought him over from Sweden in 1868.

Then John was fourteen. Starting in 1881, he has shone brightly in Minnesota's political history, first as a Republican and lately as a Democrat.

His principal assets were his ability to get on the common people's side of political problems and his strangle-hold on Swedish votes.

He served several terms in the national house of representatives, first elected as a Republican. Then, upon switching over to the Democratic fold in 1896, he went back to congress as a Democrat.

Five times nominated by the Democrats for governor, he was elected once, in 1899.

CAPTAIN WILLIAMS IS INTERRED AT WES TVIEW

Notables Pay Tribute to Memory of Capitalist and Veteran Soldier

Simplicity marked the funeral services over the remains of Captain Jesse Parker Williams, the honored Georgia citizen who passed away Tuesday noon. The services were conducted from his late residence on Peachtree street, on Thursday morning. Men from every walk in life were there to pay a last homage.

President J. R. Dickey, of Emory college, to which Captain Williams had been a generous benefactor, officiated, assisted by Rev. Thomas Stanford, pastor of the Trinity Methodist church of Savannah, which Captain Williams had attended. Both spoke in praise of him and the good he had done for Georgia.

The bier was covered with floral offerings from his many friends. Every organization in which his life interest had centered was personally represented by one of their members and these formed the honorary escort and pallbearers. George Winship, from the Emory board of trustees, Earnest Cutts, from the Savannah cotton exchange; Marcus Baker, from the board of stewards of the Trinity church, Savannah; F. C. Woodberry, of the Confederate Veterans; McLaren, from the J. J. Williams company, and Woods White, Robert Hemphill, Frank Weldon, Bacot and Dr. Block were of the number.

Delegates from the Masons, Confederate Veterans and Daughters of the Confederacy were present. The active pallbears were the officials of the Georgia, Florida and Alabama road.

The testimonials formed a mountain of flowers on the coffin which was draped in a Confederate flag under which Captain Williams had fought. The flag was the offering from the president of the Daughters of the Confederacy. The interment was in West View cemetery.

BEQUEST FOR MIMS PARK TO BE SPENT IMPROVING

The bequest of $500 to the city by the late Mrs. Sue Harper Mims for the improvement of Mims park, will be turned over to the city on request, according to notification to the park board by Attorney Philip Alston, representing the estate of Mrs. Mims.

At a meeting of the park board Thursday it was decided that a committee of three be appointed to confer with Mrs. Charles J. Haden, who has taken an active interest in the park, as to the disposal of the sum.

ATLANTA CHARTER BILL PASSED BY THE SENATE

Reduction of Recorder's Power Will Be Voted on by the People

The bill revising the charter of the city of Atlanta passed the state senate Friday morning with certain changes from the form in which it came from the house.

The amendment, put on by the house, to reduce the limit of fines and stockade sentences by the recorder of Atlanta, was changed by the senate so as to be submitted to the people separately.

Also the amendment by the house striking from the charter the initiative, referendum and recall, was changed in the same way.

The rharter, together with these amendments, is to be submitted to the voters of Atlanta at the general municipal election in December.

Owing to the changes made in the house amendments the bill must now go back to the house for concurrence.

SOUTHERN AGENTS END RAILWAY CONVENTION

New Officers and Trip of Inspection Feature Last Day of Session

After a three days' session in Atlanta the convention of agents from the hundred largest stations of the Seaboard railway adjourns Friday evening. The railroad men express themselves as greatly pleased at the hospitality extended to them by Atlanta and all will leave a booster for the Gate City.

Friday was a busy day for the agents. In the morning they assembled at the Terminal station at 9:30 and were taken to look over the extensive Atlanta terminals of the Southern railway. In the afternoon an executive session went in order to select a meeting place for next year and to elect new officers.

The brightest social feature of the convention was a banquet Thursday evening at Durand's. It was a strictly temperance affair, demonstrating that railway men can have as good time with water and ice tea for drinkables as when something stronger flows.

Speeches were made by many of the higher officials of the road who are in attendance at the convention, and were responded to by the agents.

ECZEMA ITCHED AND BURNED

On Face and Head. Was Very Disfigured. Hair Fell Out. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Falmouth, Ky. — "Two years ago I was troubled with skin and scalp troubles. I would have pimples that would break out and form sores on my face and head with terrible itching. The eczema on my face and head itched and burned and when I scratched it, it made sores and I was very disfigured for the time being. My head became so sore I could not touch it with a comb; it became a mass of sores. My hair fell out gradually.

"After trying several remedies without much benefit a friend that had been cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment told me and I decided to try them. I was afflicted about a year before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using them three weeks I was getting better and in less than three months, after using eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and five boxes of Cuticura Ointment, I was completely cured of eczema." (Signed) Frank Vastine, Dec. 12, 1912.

If you wish a skin clear of pimples, blackheads and other annoying eruptions, hands soft and white, hair live and glossy, and scalp free from dandruff and itching, begin to-day the regular use of Cuticura Soap for the toilet, bath and shampoo, assisted by occasional light applications of Cuticura Ointment. No other method is so agreeable or economical. Sold everywhere. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

DEFENSE ATTACKS THE STATE'S CASE FROM MANY ANGLES

lives now at Redan on the Georgia railroad. She said that she is Mrs. Daisy Hopkins and not Miss.

"Did you work at the pencil factory, Mrs. Hopkins?" asked Attorney Arnold.

"Yes."

"When did you work there?"

"I started there in October, 1911, and worked until June 1, 1912."

"What department did you work in?"

"The packing department."

"What floor is that on?"

"On the third floor."

"How many other young women worked there?"

"Usually there were ten, but sometimes more."

"Do you know Mr. Frank, the defendant?"

NEVER SPOKE TO FRANK.

"I used to know him when I saw him about the factory."

"Did you ever speak to him?"

"No."

"Did he ever speak to you?"

"No."

"Were you ever in his office, drinking coca-cola or beer?"

"No."

"Do you know a fellow named Dalton?"

"I know him when I see him."

"Did you ever visit the pencil factory with him?"

"No, sir. I went to his house to see Mrs. Taylor, when he lived at East Point."

"Did you ever at any time, on a Saturday or any other day, come into the factory with Dalton and go up where Frank was or go any other place in the factory? Is there any truth in that?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ever introduce Dalton to Frank?"

"No, sir."

DENIES MISCONDUCT.

"Did you ever go down into the basement with Dalton?"

"I don't know where the basement is." She denied any misconduct with Dalton.

Solicitor Dorsey took the witness for cross-examination.

MARRIED AT REDAN.

"Mrs. Hopkins, have you ever been married?" asked the solicitor.

"Yes, sir."

"Where were you married?"

"At Redan."

"What is the name of the man you married?"

"Bill."

"Are you living with him him now?"

"No, sir, he is dead."

"Did you have any children?"

"No, sir."

"What were your husband's initials?"

"A. M. Bill."

"Who married you?"

"Preacher Miles."

"Who was present when you were married?"

"Mr. Street."

"What is your doctor named?"

"Dr. Pounds."

"What is he treating you for now, Mrs. Hopkins?"

The witness hesitated, then replied: "Stomach trouble."

"Have you ever been in jail, Miss Hopkins?"

"No, sir," after hesitation.

"Why, Miss Hopkins, didn't this man," pointing to N. A. Garner, a special bailiff attached to the solicitor's office, "didn't this man get you out of jail?"

"No, sir."

"Have you ever seen him before?"

"Yes, sir."

DEPUTY WAS ALONG.

"Well, didn't he, N. A. Garner, get you out of jail?"

"No, sir, but he was along."

"Well, you were in jail, now; and who got you out?"

"Mr. Smith."

"What were you put in jail for, Miss Hopkins?"

"Because they told a tale on me."

"Who got you and brought you here to court?"

"Captain Burke."

"Was Captain Burke formerly with the Southern railroad?"

"Yes, sir."

"How long has he been away from the Southern railroad?"

"I don't know."

"Now, Miss Hopkins, what jail were you in?"

"I don't know."

"All right, Miss Hopkins, you can come down," said the solicitor. The defense detained her, however.

"You were put in the jail in this county, were you not?" asked Attorney Arnold.

"Did they do anything to you?"

"No, sir."

JUST PAID HER LAWYER.

"I mean did you have to pay a fine?"

"No, sir, I just paid my lawyer, Mr. Bill Smith."

"Well, he got you out?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever go to any court about it?"

"No, sir."

"All right. Come down."

W. M. Mathews, a motorman on the English avenue car line of the Georgia Railway and Power company, was called as the next witness.

"On April 16, last, Mr. Mathews, what were you doing?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"Running my car on the English avenue car line."

"Does this car run out to Bellwood avenue and by Lindsay street?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you recollect the occasion on that morning when your car was coming into the city and passed Lindsay street about 10 minutes to 12?"

"Yes, sir."

MARY BOARDS CAR.

"That was the time for you to pass Lindsay street?"

"Yes, sir, that was the scheduled time."

"And you left on time?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you remember a little girl getting on the car there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Was it Mary Phagan?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, tell the jury the route of your car."

"On Bellwood to English avenue, to Kennedy street, to Grace, to Jones avenue, to Marietta street and in along Marietta to Broad, and out Broad street."

"As usual your car stopped at the various points, to take on and let off passengers?"

"Yes, sir."

"What is the distance over your route from Lindsay to Broad street?"

"About one and a half or two miles."

"And you made the usual frequent stops?"

"Yes, sir."

"And in slowing up to stop and in starting off again you lost the usual time?"

"Yes, sir."

"What time did you get to Marietta and Broad streets on that trip?"

POINT FOR DEFENSE.

"I was scheduled to arrive at 12:07 1-2."

"Were you on time?"

"Right about on schedule. I wasn't late all that day."

"You say your car turned south along Broad street after leaving Marietta?"

"Yes, sir."

"Where did Mary Phagan get off the car?"

"At Hunter and Broad streets."

The previous testimony of George Epps, the office boy, was that Mary Phagan got off the car at Marietta and Forsyth streets and walked across the bridge.

"How long does it take your car to run from Broad to Hunter street?"

"It generally takes 2 1-2 minutes, but on account of the wagons and traffic, congested, it often requires three minutes.

"On that trip it took about the same time as usual?"

"Yes, sir. I was not running the car after we left Broad and Marietta streets. I was relieved there."

"You were still on the car, though?"

"Yes, sir, I was going over to Mitchell street."

"Where were you sitting in the car?"

"I sat on the seat behind Mary Phagan."

"Was there anyone else with Mary Phagan?"

GIRL WITH MARY PHAGAN.

"Yes, sir, another girl was sitting by her. I don't know whether she was with her, though."

"What time did you get to Hunter and Broad streets?"

"About 12:10, the best I can tell you. We got to Broad and Marietta about 12:07 1-2 and it took about 2 1-2 minutes to run on down to Hunter."

"What happened at 12:10?"

"The girls got off."

"Both of them?"

"Yes, sir, they went on down Hunter street like they knew each other."

"How far is it from there to the National Pencil factory?"

"A short block down Hunter and across Forsyth, and it is the second or third building on Forsyth."

"Which side of Hunter street did they go on?"

"I didn't notice."

"And you don't know how long it would take for her to walk up the steps at the pencil factory to Frank's office?"

"No, sir."

"You are certain that you noticed her get off the car at Broad and Hunter?"

"Yes."

"Did you see any little boy with her?"

NO BOY WITH HER.

"No boy got on with her at Lindsay street, and there was no boy with her when I noticed her next at Broad and Marietta."

"Do you know George Epps?"

"By sight, since this case came up."

"And you didn't see him that day?"

"No."

"Did you see the body of this girl at the undertaker's?"

"Yes."

"And you are certain that it was Mary Phagan that you saw?"

"Yes."

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined the witness.

"Why did you say it was about 12:10 and then say it was 12:10?"

"Well, it was about that time."

"Did you tell L. P. Whitfield, a Pinkerton operative, that you could have been three or four minutes ahead of the schedule at that time?"

"No."

"Where was it Epps got on the car?"

"I don't know."

"What made you notice Mary? Was she very pretty or very attractive?"

"No more than anybody else."

"Why, don't you know as a matter of fact that Mary Phagan was an especially pretty girl?"

"Well, she was pretty," said the witness.

POSITIVE ABOUT TIME.

"What makes you so certain about the time?"

"Well, we were on time at 12:0 1-2, and I know it takes from two and a half to three minutes to go on Broad from Marietta to Hunter—that is, in the middle of the day."

"Then a person could get off at Forsyth street and walk to the factory more quickly than they could go there by the car?"

"No, the same time. I've walked it."

"Why is it that you are willing to tell the jury that this particular girl got off at that particular point and time on that particular day?"

"Because it's the truth."

"Why is it that out of the hundreds of persons who have in a day, you can fix this girl so positively in your mind?"

"Well, when I was relieved and sat down behind her I was talking to a street car conductor and an ex-street car conductor and he had a picture in a badge and I took it and held it over there and said, 'Here, little girl, is your picture.'"

"And those girls were talking together?"

"They seemed to be."

"Well, did you hear them say a single word?"

"No, I didn't."

POSITIVE IT WAS MARY.

"Well, as a matter of fact, wasn't that the other girl or another girl to whom you showed the picture?"

"No."

"Haven't you been looking for that other girl since then?"

The witness first said no, and then said yes.

"How was the other girl dressed?"

"About the same as Mary Phagan."

"Well, how was Mary Phagan dressed?"

"She had on a light-colored dress."

"What light color—pink or white?"

"It wasn't black."

"What else did she have on?"

"She had on a hat."

"What sort of a hat?"

"A light-colored hat."

"Well, what is there about George Epps that you can identify?"

"I've read about him in the papers since this case came up."

"Tell us one single thing by which you would know Mary Phagan."

"I just know her."

"Well, tell us how light that dress was."

"Not as light as this," pointing to Mrs. Rae Frank, the mother of the accused, dressed completely in white

"Can you identify that?"

"I never paid much attention to the hat; it was light colored."

"Are you certain of that?"

The witness hesitated and answered that he was not certain.

"Well, why did you say at first it was light?"

"Come down," ordered the solicitor, before Mr. Dorsey answered.

CONDUCTOR IS CALLED.

"Wait a minute," commanded Mr. Arnold, "I can't tell generally what colored clothes your passengers wear, can you? Few notice what women wear—isn't that true?"

"That's right."

"You are certain that this girl you saw in the morgue was Mary Phagan, the girl you saw on your car?"

"Yes."

Mr. Arnold exhibited the dress in which Mary Phagan was killed

"Icouldn't say that that's the one she wore," said the witness. "I knew the girl just by her looks, and had spoken to her numbers of times when se got on the car at Lindsay street."

"And this is the light-colored hat you saw in it?" asked Solicitor Dorsey, producing the light blue hat.

"I don't know," said the witness. He was excused and W. T. Hollis, conductor on the same line, was called to the stand.

In answer to questions of Attorney Arnold, Hollis described his occupation as conductor, and said that he was on the Cooper Street-English Avenue route on the day Mary Phagan was killed. He described the exact route of the car.

CORROBORATES MOTORMAN.

"Did you cross Lindsay street about noon, April 26?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"Yes."

"It was about 11:50, wasn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did any girl get on there?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you ever see this girl again?"

"I saw her body at the morgue."

"Did you ever see her before?"

"Yes, frequently. She used to get on the car."

"Did you know her name before this day?"

"I did not."

"Did anybody get on at Lindsay street with her?"

"No, sir."

"Did anybody sit in the same seat with her on the way downtown?"

"I couldn't say."

"Have you ever seen George Epps?"

"Yes."

REPUDIATES EPPS' STORY.

"Did he get on with her that day?"

"No, sir."

"Did he sit in the same seat with her on the way down?"

"I couldn't say whether he did or not. She was alone, I know, when I took her fare at English avenue, three blocks from Lindsay street."

"Do you recollect the Epps boy getting on at all?"

"No, sir."

"Did you have a full car that day?"

"There were three on, I think, when she got on."

"Did you see anybody get in the seat with her at all?"

"No, sir."

"What time do you get to Broad and Marietta streets usually?"

"At seven and a half minutes after 12 o'clock."

"Were you on schedule time that day?"

"Yes. I got relieved there."

"Where did you get off?"

"I got off there at Marietta and Forsyth streets."

"Did she get off with you?"

"No, sir, not with me."

"Were you the first to get off?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you see her get off at all there?"

"No, sir."

"Where was she to the best of your knowledge when you left the car?"

LEFT HER ON CAR.

"She was in the car."

"What time did the car get to Broad and Hunter streets?"

"Well, it's supposed to get there about 12:10."

Attorney Hooper interrupted. "Your honor, I think these questions are all leading, and my brother, Mr. Arnold, gets worse as he goes on."

Judge Roan sustained the objection.

"What time did you look at her at the morgue?"

"Well, I got off Sunday at 6:37 p. m., and I went over there then."

Attorney Arnold opened the suitcase in which Mary Phagan's clothes were in court. "Do you recollect the clothes that she had on that day?"

When the witness replied, "No, sir, I don't recollect," Mr. Arnold left the clothes in the suitcase and proceeded.

HOOPER TAKES WITNESS.

Attorney Hooper took the witness for cross-examination.

"Mr. Hollis, there was something unusual about this trip that day, was there?"

"No."

"There was no particular reason for you to notice whom you picked up, was there?"

"No, sir."

"There was nothing to attract your attention especialy to that, was there?"

"No, sir."

"This little Epps boy frequently got on your car. You don't know whether he got on and off that day or not, do you?"

"No, sir."

"You don't even know the color of this little girl's dress, you say?"

"No, sir."

Attorney Hooper pointed to the hat. "You wouldn't call that hat light, would you?"

"No, sir."

"You'd call it a very dark blue, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, I guess so."

"Did you notice anyone at all with Mary Phagan that day?"

"I did not."

DIDN'T SEE OTHER GIRL.

"Wasn't there a little girl sitting in the seat with her?"

"I didn't see her."

"Can you tell the jury of any other single trip when she was with somebody?"

"No, sir."

"You don't know wnether the Epps boy got on at all, then, do you?"

"No, sir."

"And you say you got Mary Phagan's fare when you turned into English avenue?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I never take them up until I get to English avenue."

"Well, you picked up some passengers coming into town, didn't you? How many?"

"I don't know."

"Were they male or female?"

"Both."

"Can you name any of them? Name a single one of them to the jury."

"I can't."

"Which end of the car did Mary Phagan get on?"

"The front end."

"How do you know that?"

ENTERED LAUGHING.

"Well, Matthews used to speak to her when she got on. That day she come in and said she was late, laughing."

"Do you stay on the front platform of the car all the time?"

"No, sir."

"How did you happen to be there that morning?"

"I wasn't there."

"Oh, you stood at the back end of the car and heard her there, did you? She hollered, did she?"

"I heard her from the back end."

"What time does Mary Phagan usually get on your car?"

"Well, she used to ride in on the trip when we got to town at 7:07 in the morning. She'd say she'd be fifteen minutes late then."

"That day when you got to town, it was a holiday, wasn't it? There was a procession of some kind on the streets, wasn't there?"

"I didn't notice any."

"Do you remember the tow-headed Epps boy being on the car that day?"

"No, sir, but I know him."

Mr. Arnold resumed his questioning of the witness.

"Mr. Hooper has asked you who got off at Marietta and Forsyth streets. I believe you said you didn't know?"

"Yes, sir."

SHORT CAR.

"Is your car a short car or a long car?"

"A short car."

"When you are standing on the rear platform, do you have any difficulty in hearing what the motorman says on the front platform?"

Solicitor Dorsey objected, declaring that an answer would be a conclusion simply. He insisted that the witness be made to state facts—how far he was from the motorman, and what sounds he heard.

Judge Roan allowed the question.

The witness replied that he had no difficulty in hearing what the motorman said on the front platform when the car was stopped.

"When you are on the rear platform, how many feet are you away from the motorman?"

"I don't know, exactly. The car seats twenty-eight passengers and is a short car."

"It's about 25 feet in length, then?"

"Something like that."

"Were the doors open on this occasion?"

"Yes, sir."

"Mr. Hooper asked you why you re-

WHO'LL HAUL AWAY THE ASHES NOW?

Liver's on a strike. And Stomach won't work. Yet you've GOT to get rid of the ashes that have been piling up, while you've been burning up all that food in fuel for your body. Now WHO'S going to haul away the ashes? Make Nature do it. A little PODOLAX at bedtime tonight will put Liver back on the job, feeling so fine he'll be crazy for work. Stomach will be glad to do his part if Liver will help. And Nature will do the rest. It's simple as A B C. GET a bottle of PODOLAX—TAKE a little at bedtime tonight and you will greet the morning with a smile.

And the best of it is, PODOLAX is a persuader, not an anarchist. PODOLAX doesn't dynamite your liver, stomach and bowels simpy because they are sick and can't work: calomel, nasty tasting mineral waters and violent salts purgatives do. PODOLAX work is PERMANENT because it works through Nature and NOT through mere brute force; the trouble is removed by FIRST removing the cause. That's sensible.

Treat yourself to a SMILE in the morning. Don't be rough and gruff, Liver's sick. Persuade him with PODOLAX.

SAYS NEWSIE WAS NOT ON CAR WITH GIRL

remembered this girl. I'll ask you if when you heard of the murder and went and looked at the girl, it didn't recall her to your attention?"

"Yes, sir, the newspaper reporters asked me on Sunday to go and identify her."

"And you went to the morgue to see the body after the reporters asked you to do so?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you found it was the little girl who had been on that car the day before?"

"Yes, sir."

"If your attention was called to this little girl a month or two later, you would not remember her so well as you would the next day?"

Mr. Hooper objected. The objection was sustained.

"When you saw the little girl the next day in the morgue, you had no difficulty in remembering her?"

"No, sir."

"How far is Oliver street from Lindsay street?"

"One block."

"You didn't see Epps get on your car there?"

"No, sir."

"Would you have remembered if it he had got on there?"

"I think so."

Mr. Hooper again objected, declaring Mr. Arnold's questions were leading. No ruling was made, however, and Mr. Arnold proceeded.

"How far is Oliver street from Lindsay?"

"One block."

"And you say you don't remember the Epps boy getting on at Oliver?"

"Not in the next cross street after you leave Oliver?"

"Franklin street."

"After leaving Franklin you pass into English avenue?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you had reached English avenue before you began to take up fares?"

"Yes, sir."

"No one was in the seat with Mary Phagan when you took up her fare?"

"No, sir."

"That was your last run of the morning?"

"Yes, sir."

"When did you go out on your next run?"

"At 3:22."

SAYS HE WAS ON TIME.

"I believe you said you didn't remember whether the Memorial day crowds had gathered at Marietta and Forsyth streets?"

"No, sir, I don't remember noticing them."

"You never get to the center of the city before scheduled time to arrive?"

"No, sir, it's against the rules of the company."

"And you didn't get in ahead of time on that day?"

"No, sir."

Attorney Hooper cross-questioned the witness again.

"Do you mean to tell me that you keep the rules of the company so rigidly that you never get in ahead of time or behind time?"

"It's not against the rules to get in behind time."

"Don't you sometimes get in ahead of time?"

"Very seldom. Sometimes perhaps half a minute or maybe a minute."

"When you are going in on your last trip at night, don't you go in ahead of time?"

"The company doesn't object to that."

"Do you always stop and look at your watch in crossing the main street?"

"I hardly ever pass one without it. I always look at my watch at the designated points."

"And this was your last trip?"

"Yes, sir."

ALBERT KAUFFMAN CALLED.

Witness was excused. Attorney Arnold called for the Epps boy. He had not reached the court house, and Albert Kauffman, a civil engineer, was called. While court waited for him, Mr. Arnold took a number of papers from a basket in front of him, announcing that he had a model there and some blue print diagrams which he wished to use. While he searched for these papers, Mr. Arnold came across a package which he handed to Solicitor Dorsey, saying: "Here is that bank and cash book that you asked for yesterday." After opening up a number of blue prints, Mr. Arnold began questioning the witness.

"What is your business?" he asked.

"I am a civil engineer," answered Mr. Kauffman.

"Have you made a drawing of the Selig residence on Georgia avenue, showing the rear rooms in it?"

"Yes, sir."

"When?"

"Tuesday of this week."

"This residence is known as 68 East Georgia avenue?"

"Yes, sir."

"Did you make a plat of the kitchen, dining room, reception room, parlor and passageway between the kitchen and dining room?"

"Yes, sir."

"These are the diagrams?"

"Yes, sir."

REPUDIATES M'KNIGHT.

"Well, come over here and point them out to the jury."

In reply to questions by Mr. Arnold, the witness indicated the location of the mirror in the dining room, the table in the dining room, the passageway between the kitchen and dining room, the back door of the kitchen, and other details of the diagram. He said the distance is fourteen feet between the kitchen door and the passageway leading into the dining room; that this passageway is 2 1-2 feet in width and a little over two feet long.

"Did you stand in the back door of the kitchen, on the north side of the door, which is the only door to the kitchen, to ascertain whether you could see the mirror in the dining room?"

"Yes, sir."

"Could you see it?"

"No, sir."

"Why?"

"Because of this partition in the passageway."

"Taking the most extreme view possible, could you see any part of the mirror?"

"No, sir."

"Were you present when a photographer took some views of these rooms?"

"Yes, sir."

"Suppose you stood on the south side of the back kitchen door, what sort of a view would you have into the dining room?"

"Considerably less than if I stood on the north side."

"How close to the sideboard could you see from that point?"

"Within about three or four feet."

"If a man sat in a chair in the middle of the passageway, could he see the sideboard?"

"No, sir."

"Have you drawn a plat of Georgia avenue?"

"Yes, sir."

"Of that block bounded by Georgia avenue, Washington and Pulliam streets?"

"Yes, sir."

"Is this it?"

"Yes, sir."

"How far is it from the Selig home to Washington street?"

"One hundred and seventy-five feet."

"How far is it to Pulliam street?"

"Two hundred and seventy-one feet."

"Is there a car line on Georgia avenue in front of the Selig house?"

"Yes, sir."

"One on Washington street?"

"Yes, sir."

PLAT OF FACTORY.

Mr. Kauffman identified the plats of the Selig residence and streets in the vicinity. He then stated that he made a detailed drawing of the National Pencil factory on all floors. He explained minutely the details of the drawing of the National Pencil factory, the attorney causing him to emphasize his description of a chute at the rear of the basement. Mr. Kauffman's testimony showed that the chute is about five feet wide. The defense laid stress on the size of the opening, indicative to the minds of many observers that their theory of the killing probably will be that the murderer dragged Mary Phagan's body along behind the partition from the first floor entrance toward the back and dropped it through the chute, which ends in the basement within a short distance of where the body was found.

Mr. Kauffman explained first the drawing of the basement. He described it as 176 feet from the elevator to the point where the body was found; 80 feet from the elevator to the trash pile; 90 feet to the boiler; 116 feet to the toilet; 135 feet to the back stairway.

COULD SLIDE BODY IN CHUTE.

Mr. Kauffman described minutely the chute in the rear of the building, saying that it is big enough for one or two human bodies or even for a pony to slide down. It empties into the basement eight feet from the rear wall of the building, and 32 feet from where the body was found. The total length of the building is 200 feet, and the walls are 2 feet thick, making it 196 feet from inner wall to inner wall.

Mr. Kauffman described the partitioned inclosure in the basement, declaring that it and the bunk which it contained were very dirty when he saw them. From the point where the body was found to the toilet is 21 feet, and the body would be 116 feet from the back door. The line of vision from the toilet to the point where the body was found is an angle of 43 degrees, he said. The partition cuts the line of vision in half, making a point three feet from the wall visible.

The witness described in similar detail the plat of the ground floor. He declared that as one enters the building it becomes very dark a few feet back from the street door. From the front door to the bottom of the stairway the distance is thirty-five feet.

The stairway to the second floor is twenty-five feet. The distance from the foot of the stairs to the elevator is thirteen feet.

LONG DARK HALLWAY.

The witness described minutely a long dark hallway about five feet wide, leading to the rear of the building. On this hallway ninety feet from the front door are several toilets. This point is almost directly above where the body was found.

Adjoining the toilets is a trap door with steps leading into the basement. These steps fifteen feet from where the body was found. That point is also about fifteen feet from the chute.

Mr. Kauffman described the opening of the chute. On the second floor, said the witness, is the office, measuring 30 by 28 feet. He observed the doors of the safe, when opened, and they completely cut off the view from the inner to the outer office.

"Would it be possible for a man of your height to see over the safe door from Frank's office?"

"Yes."

"Would it be possible for a girl, say 5 feet 3 inches in height to see over?"

"I don't think so."

Mr. Kauffman laid the diagrams on the jury rail, and the jurors studied them with him.

Witness described the furniture in Frank's office, and the relative position of the various articles. Anybody on the opposite side of the street could see Frank's desk through the window. The witness said the distance between Frank's desk and the metal room is 150 feet.

FRANK MAKES SUGGESTION.

At this point Frank, the accused, arose from his seat, and whispered a suggestion to Attorney Rosser. Attorney Arnold asked the witness if anybody sitting at Frank's desk could see the stairway leading from the third floor, and the witness replied that there was no view of the stairway from that point.

From the desk in the inner office the only view one could have from Frank's desk would be of one corner of the time clock.

Kauffman continued that anybody in the outer office could see a portion of the top of the stairway leading to the third floor, but not the bottom of the stairs. The door of the metal room is six feet wide and he thinks there is some glass in the door, said he. The dressing room in the metal room is ten feet from this door, said he. The distance is twenty-six feet between the lathe where the hair was found and the door of the metal room, and thirty-seven feet from the lathe around the machines to the point where Conley said he found the dead body of the girl.

VAT COULD HOLD GIRL.

Attorney Arnold directed the witness' attention to a store room near the metal room on the second floor, and questioned him particularly about a certain vat in that room. The witness said this vat was six feet by four feet, and that it would be possible to put a girl five feet three inches tall in it. Mr. Kauffman continued that any one coming down the stairway from the third floor to the second floor has a full view of the elevator.

Attorney Arnold picked up the drawing of the second floor of the pencil factory, and designating a marked spot about the center of the south wall of the building, asked the witness what was located there. The witness replied that it was a vat. That ended the technical questioning of the witness on this direct examination.

"Did you find any part of a lounge or a bed or a sofa, with the exception of the one in the basement, anywhere in the building?" asked Mr. Arnold.

"No."

"Did you find anything that looked like a private room or a bed room, any place except the women's dressing room?"

"No."

"How far is it from the top of the steps leading from the first floor to the second floor, to the bottom of the steps leading to the third floor?"

"Twenty-seven feet."

"How long is the stairway from the second to the third floor?"

"About twenty feet."

HOOPER EXAMINES KAUFFMAN.

Attorney Hooper cross-examined the witness.

"About this chute from the first floor to the basement—is it open?"

"Yes."

"Is the trap door covering it, open?"

"No."

"Is it nailed down?"

"I didn't try it."

"How long after the killing did you see this trap door and chute?"

"It was about two months, I think."

"Wasn't it very dusty then?"

"Yes."

"There wasn't a sign that it had been used for months, was there?"

"I wouldn't say positively as to that. It was dark when I went down there."

Attorney Hooper designated a spot in the drawing of the basement where the witness said that the body of Mary Phagan was found.

"Who told you where the body was found?"

"Mr. Schiff," replied the witness.

Mr. Schiff, employed by Mr. Frank in the factory?"

"Yes."

"Well, if that is wrong, then all your distances are wrong, are they not?"

"Yes."

ARNOLD OBJECTS.

Attorney Arnold objected to the question and answer. He said, "this distance is only one of a hundred." Attorney Hooper explained that he meant only the distances between the body and other points in the basement.

Mr. Hooper asked the witness if the body lay just a little further toward the rear from where Schiff said it was lying. It could be seen from the toilet. Mr. Hooper told a ruler on the diagram to illustrate the view line. The witness admitted that it would be visible under those conditions. The witness had noticed the gas jet burning near the elevator, but had not indicated it on the plat. Discussing the diagram of the first floor, Attorney Hooper asked a number of questions as to the lighting conditions of the entrance way. When the double doors at the street are open, the entrance is fairly well lit between the street and the stairway, but when they are closed the light is not so good. He had not noticed any gas jet on the first floor.

The witness could not say whether any considerable light penetrated the building through the windows and glass partition at the front and side of the entrance. He did not think much light could enter there, though, inasmuch as the glasses were very dirty when he observed them.

He admitted that he did not know the condition of the glass was on April 26, but it looked like it had been dirty some time. He had seen the glass several times in the last month. The trap door leading from the first floor to the basement, said the witness, is two feet across one way by two feet and three inches the other.

COULDN'T GET BY TRAP.

He admitted that a man of his size would have a hard time getting through if he was in a hurry; that he did not think one person could carry another person through the trap door. With the ruler Attorney Hooper indicated a line from Frank's desk in the inner office through the doors and out to the time clock, in an effort to show the vision uninterrupted between those points.

The witness stated that when he drew the plan, his desk behind the partition was about two feet nearer the street wall from the door, and from that position the time clock was not visible. Attorney Hooper caused him to admit that if this desk was flush with the doorway under the partition that one could see a part of the time clock from the desk chair.

He made the measurements five or six weeks ago, said the witnes. The clocks face the elevator shaft about twelve feet away. He didn't think a man sitting at Frank's desk could be seen from the opposite side of Forsyth street; however, said he, that was a matter of opinion.

The witness admitted that anyone entering the door of the inner office could see the whole office without obstruction. The witness also admitted that owing to the twists in the stairway flights between the second and fourth floor, a person on the fourth floor could not see down to the foot of the stairs on the second floor, unless there was some shaft down the stairs which he did not recall.

He admitted that there were doors on the stairway at the fourth floor, but was not certain whether there were doors at the third floor on the stairway.

COULD DROP THROUGH.

Attorney Arnold asked: "You didn't make any tests to ascertain whether you could see from the third floor to the second floor?"

"No, sir."

"I believe you said two persons couldn't get through the trap door at the same time?" continued Mr. Arnold.

"I said that."

"But there would be no trouble for one person to open the trap door and drop another person through?"

"No."

"It would be an easy matter for two, three or four persons, and even a small horse, to go through the elevator shaft there by the trap door?"

"Yes, sir."

"It is rather dark when the street doors are closed, on the first floor, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

"And there isn't much light through the panel partition?"

"I don't think so. I didn't notice the extent of the solid work in the partition."

Mr. Arnold directed the witness to come down, but before he left the stand it was announced by Mr. Hooper that he would be subject to recall. Mr. Hooper remembered another question, and the witness stayed on the stand a moment.

DINING ROOM MIRROR.

Mr. Kauffman admitted that when one sits in a certain part of the kitchen a mirror reflecting a portion of the dining room of the Selig home could be seen. He admitted also that he had no idea of the arrangement of the doors or furniture on April 26. The witness was excused, and Attorney Arnold tendered in evidence the diagrams of the four floors of the factory, the diagram of the Selig home, and a diagram of the home with reference to the surrounding streets. There was no objection by the state.

Jim Conley, the commercial photographer, was called to the stand. He identified a number of photographs taken by himself. One from the diagram of the outside of the back door of the Selig home, showing the passageway. Another one, taken with the camera just inside the door.

From neither of these points, said he, could he see the sideboard or the mirror in the dining room. He identified views of the pencil factory. The first views were taken from the hallway and from the outer office, showing the safe door open. The photographer declared that the view of Frank's desk was cut off completely by the open safe door and that the inner office could be seen only by a narrow opening over the top of the safe.

The photographer identified a number of views of the basement, taking in the elevator shaft, the ladder, the partition near which the body was found, and several other points in the basement which have been mentioned in the testimony. He showed a view of the ground floor taken with the camera just inside the door, showing the elevator shaft.

Another view showed exactly where Conley claimed to have been sitting. He had a number of other views of the second floor, showing where Jim Conley claims to have found the body and the metal room, the point where the detectives chipped up parts of the floor. Other views showed the different departments on that floor.

Attorney Arnold then showed a photograph of the front of the metal room and the machinery. The photographer identified that with the others.

"In each of these instances, did you endeavor to make these photographs as accurate as possible?" asked Attorney Arnold.

"I did," replied the witness.

That concluded the direct examination. Attorney Hooper cross-examined the photographer.

PHOTOS MONTH OLD.

"How long ago were these photographs of the factory taken?"

"About a month." The witness added that the photographs of the Selig home had been taken just a few days ago. Attorney Hooper asked the witness to indicate on the diagram of the Selig home where he had taken the picture. The witness pointed to the doorway leading from the kitchen to the porch. This picture showed the inside wall of the dining room to a point where a window appears. Attorney Hooper asked: "Now, Mr. Adams, a slight change in the position of the sideboard in the corner of the room would make it possible to see the mirror from the door, would it not?"

"You could see the edge of it."

"If a man sitting right inside the door, looked through the passage into the dining room, he could see the mirror then, couldn't he?"

"He could see part of it."

"He could see enough of the mirror to see a reflection of a good part of the room, couldn't he?"

"I wouldn't say as to that."

All of the photographs then were submitted in evidence by the defense without objection by the state.

"Boots" Rogers Fakes Rabies; Justice Court Cleared Like Magic

Grrr! Grrrrrr! Woof! Woof!

Making a noise like an infuriated bull dog and capering about on his hands and knees, Bailiff W. W. (Boots) Rogers cleared Judge Gardeau's Justice of the peace court Friday morning like a sizzling bomb in the midst of a gathering of Russian grand dukes.

Several days ago Rogers was bitten by a supposedly mad bulldog, and when he commenced his strange actions it needed no medical authority to explain to those present that they were seeing (as they thought) a desperate attack of rabies. All they needed was plenty of room for long distance to safety.

Judge, bailiffs, clerks and hangers-on had busines elsewhere, via the halls and stairs at a speed equal to that of Tommy Long, the champion Cracker sprinter. Somebody grabbed a phone, muttering, "police call," but "Boots" snapped at his legs and the alarmist went down the steps four at a hop.

Defense Begins Introduction of Evidence

Afternoon Session of Frank's Trial Thursday Is Without Any Interesting Developments

Pinkerton Detective Harry Scott Testifies That Conley Never Told Him New Features of Story—Dr. Leroy Childs Testifies in Effort to Break Dr. Harris' Story

When court adjourned Thursday afternoon at 5:10 o'clock Detective Scott, called by the defense to impeach Jim Conley, had just concluded his examination by the solicitor. Scott had been through a long series of questions by Attorney Rosser, the purpose of which was to show the discrepancies between what Conley told Scott and what he swore on the witness stand.

Harry Scott, of the Pinkertons, was called as the second witness for the defense of Leo M. Frank Thursday afternoon when Dr. Leroy Childs left the stand. Scott testified that he informed the detectives immediately upon learning that Mrs. White had been a negro sitting on a box at the foot of the second floor stairs. The state has contended that this information was withheld from the city detectives until May 7 or 8, and that Scott learned it from Frank on April 28.

Dr. Childs while under the examination of Attorney Arnold characterized testimony similar to some of that given by Drs. Hurt and Harris as remarkable guess work. When the wound on Mary Phagan's head was described to the physician by Attorney Arnold, Dr. Childs declared that it would be guess work to say that the wound would have caused unconsciousness; when the wound was described to him by Solicitor Dorsey he declared that it would not have caused death. He declared that the conditions upon which Dr. Harris based his opinion that violence had been done the girl, might have been caused by the examination made by Dr. Hurt or Dr. Harris' examination and by the process of embalming.

At 2 o'clock the trial resumed, with Dr. L. W. Childs still on the stand under direct examination by Attorney Arnold.

The jurors and the two bailiffs in immediate charge of them were awakened as the rose, which had been sent to them, it was said, with the compliments of a Miss Wright.

"Could a bruise over an eye or a discoloration have been inflicted upon a body after death?"

"Yes, if the body was not cold. I should say that it could have been inflicted within two hours after death."

"Could a blow on the back of the head blacken the eye?"

"Yes. It could blacken one or both."

Dr. Childs testified that dilated blood vessels might be caused in several ways and that post mortem from external violence such as Dr. Harris said had been committed.

"Congestion and rupture of the blood vessels—could have come from natural causes, could they not?"

"Yes."

"Now wouldn't this strangulation tend toward a congestion of the blood vessels?"

"Yes, it would tend to congest the blood vessels of the entire body."

Framing an hypothesis, Mr. Arnold asked:

"Would you be able to tell how long violence had been done before death?"

"No, sir."

"Could you tell anything about this from the inflammation?"

Dr. Childs stated that inflammation is caused by bacterial invasion, which takes time to consummate, and went into further description. He stated that in order to tell anything about the time of violence from inflammation "you must depend a good deal upon whether the inflammation is chronic or temporary.

"How can you tell whether it is temporary or chronic?"

"In cases of chronic inflammation, even of the fourth or five weeks' duration a fibrous tissue is formed.

*"Suppose though it is chronic inflam*mation and there existed long enough for the fibrous tissues to form?"

"That would be congestion and not inflammation."

"Then there's no way to tell, nine days after death, when the violence occurred?"

"I think not."

"Would you hazard an opinion as to whether it occurred one hour before death?"

"I would not."

"Would you hazard an opinion as to whether it occurred two hours before death?"

"I would not. Perhaps it would be possible to determine and render a reliable opinion as to within two weeks after it occurred."

Solicitor Dorsey cross-examined Dr. Childs.

The witness stated that he is 31 years old, born in Ann Arbor, Mich., and a resident of Ann Arbor, Calumet, and Atlanta during all of his [illegible] as an physician, practicing seven years and limits his work to surgery and general medicine.

"Most experts confine themselves to one or the other of those subjects and then have all they can do, don't they?" asked the solicitor.

"Not all of them."

"Doctor, do you mean to tell this jury, strictly and scientifically speaking, that digestion starts in the mouth?"

"Yes."

"Well, what on earth is mastication, then?" asked the solicitor.

"Mastication is the chewing of the food and the mixing with the saliva. I do not mean to say that anything is digested in the mouth, but that is the beginning of digestion."

"Doctor, are turnips and cabbage in the same class?"

"I think general class," responded Dr. Childs.

"Well, now, Dr. Crittenden (picking up a book), the head of Sheffield school of scientific medical research of Yale university, says that turnips have been digested and passed out from the stomach in from three and a half to four hours. He says the same thing about cabbage. Now, will you admit that you are at issue with this eminent authority?"

Dr. Childs said that he would. A great many other authorities he added were at issue with them. "Tell me some of them," asked the solicitor.

"A Dr. Peterson is one," said the witness.

"Is that Dr. Peterson the nerve specialist?"

"No, he is neither that Dr. Peterson, nor the gynecologist, but an entirely different Dr. Peterson."

"How long after any substance has been taken into the stomach do we find any hydrochloric acid?"

"It may be there without any food," said the witness.

"Is hydrochloric acid?" demanded the solicitor.

Dr. Childs nodded.

"Well, what is an Ewald test breakfast?"

"A couple of slices of bread and twelve to sixteen ounces of water," said the witness.

DIFFICULT QUESTIONS.

"Well, in one hour after a man has taken an Ewald test breakfast how much free hydrochloric acid do you find?"

Dr. Childs at first said two grains. The solicitor asked him to state his answer in degrees. Dr. Childs answered that the solicitor was asking questions which should more properly be put to a laboratory man, and that he would prefer not to answer.

"Don't you know that any doctor should be able to tell how much hydrochloric acid there is after a one hour test breakfast? Isn't that the first thing taught in a medical school?"

"No," said Dr. Childs.

"Don't you know that the amount of hydrochloric acid is the main thing that shows the state of digestion?"

It is one of the main things, said the witness.

The solicitor asked him to describe the function of digestion. Dr. Childs proceeded to do that.

"Now, I want to look at this cabbage," said the solicitor, holding up before Dr. Childs the specimen taken from Mary Phagan's stomach. "Suppose it is in that state when taken out of a normal stomach and you found bread progressed in digestion the same degree of digestion as this, how long would you say these substances had been in the stomach?"

CALLS IT GUESSWORK.

"I couldn't tell within an hour and a half. It would be guesswork to determine it any nearer than that".

"Will you give the jury one instance where cabbage has been found in a normal stomach after a period of several hours?"

"I recall an instance in which cabbage was found after twelve hours."

"Wait a minute," interrupted the solicitor, "wasn't that a diseased stomach?"

"Not ordinarily a diseased stomach." There followed some question and discussion as to whether it was or to what constitutes a normal stomach.

Dr. Childs stated that he had induced vomiting in the case mentioned to find the cabbage after twelve hours. It could not be considered technically a normal stomach inasmuch as he introduced a foreign agent for the inducement of the vomiting, said he.

LAUGHTER IN COURT.

"Of course not," said the solicitor, in comment on the admission that it was not a normal stomach.

"Now, your honor, comment on the part of the solicitor," objected Attorney Arnold.

"All right, let it go out of the record then," said the solicitor. There was subdued laughter in court.

"I object to this laughter, your honor," said Mr. Arnold. "Every little while we are interrupted in this manner."

Judge Roan admonished the spectators to be quiet and not make any further demonstration in court.

The solicitor asked Dr. Childs to explain a normal stomach. Dr. Childs defined a normal stomach as one which under normal conditions would digest food the same time. "One cannot, however, state this time in hours and minutes," said he.

"Now, after undertake an experiment with cabbage beside the one you made on this man whom you made vomit up after twelve hours?"

"No, sir."

"Your experience regarding cabbage then is confined to this one isolated case?"

"I am not a laboratory man."

"Doctor, in connection with the hair of a girl who has been dead a number of hours, blood that still is moist, a deep indentation around the neck where a cord had been drawn tight, the tongue out, the face livid, the nails and lips blue, the windpipe inflamed, and a blow on the head—what would you say caused death?"

BLOW DIDN'T CAUSE DEATH.

"I should say that the blow on the head did not cause death."

That concluded the cross-examination. Attorney Arnold asked one question before the witness left the stand.

"Ten days after death, to what extent is a body usually discolored?"

"It depends on how much blood is removed in the embalming process."

"You mean that the embalming fluid might take the place of blood?"

"Virtually that, yes."

DEFENSE CALLS SCOTT.

Pinkerton Detective Harry Scott, who had testified as a witness called by the state, was called to the stand next by the defense. As he took the bailiffs were calling for him, Mr. Rosser, speaking to the solicitor, said, "Give me those letters, please, my friend Conley." The solicitor tossed the letters to him.

"Did you get information on Monday after the crime about Mrs. White seeing a darky on the first floor of the factory?" asked Attorney Rosser.

"Yes, sir."

"Did you give it to the detectives?"

"Yes, sir."

"You worked in harmony with the detectives?"

"Yes, sir."

"You gave the information you collected and I believe you gave the information they gathered?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then you gave you that information about Mrs. White having seen the negro when he first talked to you, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"Did you make any investigation at the factory to ascertain if Conley could write?"

"No, sir."

"When did you first discover that he could write?"

"Sunday, June 15."

Mr. Rosser then handed to the witness a statement which he said purported to be signed by James Conley and was dated May 18, 1913. The witness examined the paper. Mr. Rosser then took it back.

"Were you present when this statement was made?" asked Mr. Rosser.

"Yes, I wrote it myself," replied the witness.

"Who furnished to you the facts stated herein?"

"Conley."

"Did he furnish to you any other or further facts?"

"Not that day."

"In that statement, Conley contended that he didn't go to the factory at all on the day of the murder, didn't he?"

"Yes, sir.

"And he gave you a minute and detailed statement of his actions on that day?"

"Yes."

"When you took down that statement did you know that Conley could write?"

"Yes, I had had him to write."

"And after you knew he could write, he still stuck to that statement?"

"Yes."

"He said you he left home between 9 and 9:30 o'clock?"

"Yes."

"And he ate breakfast at 10:30?"

The witness hesitated in his answer, and Mr. Rosser handed to him the statement to refresh his memory.

The witness then corrected himself and said the negro told him he ate breakfast between 9 and 9:30, and that he left home about 10:30.

"He told you that was the first time he was away from home that day?"

"Yes."

"That he went to Peters street and bought some bread and some whisky, paying 40 cents for it?"

Attorney Hooper objected to Mr. Rosser leading the witness to state "the contents of the affidavit." The document was in court to speak for itself, said he, and the court ruled that Mr. Rosser was not asking the witness about what was in the affidavit, but was simply using it to refresh his memory as to the conversation he had had with Conley.

"Did he state to you that he visited the Butt-In saloon; that he shot some dice there and won 90 cents; that he drank some beer; that he visited Early's saloon and drank some beer and wine?"

"Yes."

"He also told you that he went home at 2:30 o'clock?"

"Yes."

"After he went home, he said, he s.. his little girl out for some pan sausage, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"What day did you say you found out he could write?"

"May 15."

"All right, I want to refresh your memory." Mr. Rosser handed the affidavit to the witness. After the witness had examined a paragraph indicated by Mr. Rosser, the latter inquired whether Scharf was present when the factory had not told him Conley could write.

Scott explained that this information came in his agency while he was out of town.

INFORMATION FROM FACTORY.

"Well, what I want to know is, did you know that this information came from the factory?"

"Yes."

"Now on May 18 you dictated to Jim Conley?"

"Yes."

"Made him write these words: 'That long, tall, black negro did this by himself'?"

"Yes."

"How long did it take him to write it?"

"I dictated each word separately, and it took him about six or eight minutes to write them all."

"He writes quite slowly, does he not?"

"Yes."

"You dictated each word separately and he wrote it out?"

"Yes."

"Were you present when he was brought before Mrs. White for her to identify him?"

"Yes, he was stood up in front of Mrs. White with several other negroes."

"What was his behavior on that occasion?"

"He was twisting his mouth about and had a cigarette in his fingers which he seemed unable to hold."

"Was there any effort on his part to change his features, as if he desired to escape identification?"

Solicitor Dorsey objected to the last part of the question. Mr. Rosser withdrew it and directed the witness to tell just what Conley did.

"He simply twisted his lips and appeared to be excited," said the witness.

The solicitor objected to the reference to the witness' opinion, and Mr. Rosser, declaring that that was a conclusion, pure and simple.

"He did look nervous," said Scott. "He cont'nued twirling a cigarette which he had in his hand, and moving his feet, and chewing on his lips."

Mr. Rosser exhibited the pencil written statement signed by Conley on May 18. Scott identified it as Jim Conley's statement.

"Well, you went after him pretty hard that day, didn't you?" asked Mr. Rosser.

TRIED TO GET CONFESSION.

"Yes, we tried to make him confess to the crime."

"Give us a picture of what you and Black did to him."

"We talked pretty rough to him."

THIRD DEGREE.

"Give us a description of that third degree."

"I wouldn't admit that I gave anybody a third degree," said Scott.

"Didn't you give a description of the third degree to the newspapers?"

"No, I never did."

"Didn't you say there was a scientific way of giving the third degree, and you cussing him and the other proceeding to be his friend?"

"I used a little profanity," said Scott.

"Virtually that, yes."

The court room was intensely hot. There was relief to be immediately suffering from the heat, upon the part of those taking part in the trial and the others witnessing it, than on any previous day of the trial.

"Didn't you cuss and abuse him?"

"Yes, but Conley is my friend. Conley."

"Didn't he swear that he hadn't been near the factory, that he didn't know anything about it, and that he also said he didn't he look you straight in the eye when he said those things?"

"Yes."

"How long did this seance last?"

"About two hours."

"Where was it held?"

"In a private room on the third floor of police headquarters."

"Then you left and made the sworn statement that he wrote the notes on Friday, you carried him to Mr. Dorsey, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Conley told you then that he was telling the whole truth, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"That statement was voluntary, wasn't it?"

"Yes. Conley sent for Black and we went down together to see him."

"That was his first sworn statement, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"Now, on May 25 you and Black gave him another sitting, didn't you? For about how long?"

"Three hours," said Scott.

"Did you cuss and abuse him then?"

"No, we didn't abuse him. We were only stern with him."

"And he repeated that same story, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"On May 27, how long did you sit with him?"

"Five or six hours."

STORY WOULDN'T FIT.

"You tried to impress on him that the statement that Frank wrote the notes on Friday showed premeditation and was unreasonable 'and wouldn't fit.'"

"Yes."

"On May 28 you had a session with him with the chief, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"How long did you grill him then?"

"Five or six hours."

"It was most of the day, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"You tried to make clear to him the statements were far fetched and would not fit?"

"Yes."

"Then on the 28th he made you a long statement, didn't he?"

"Yes."

CHANGED HIS STORY.

"And having been told that the Friday statement wouldn't do, he changed it to Saturday?"

"Yes."

"He told you that this was his second and last statement, that it was the truth, that it was given freely and after due premeditation?"

"I don't know that he said 'freely,' I said he could tell us that it was after he had thought about it."

"He said he was telling you the whole truth, and still he repeated to you that he got up about 9 or 9:30 that morning and went to Peters street, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"How many notes did he tell you he made altogether?"

Scott said he wrote on three pieces of paper."

"Did he say that Mr. Frank took another piece and wrote something like an M on it?"

"Yes."

"He didn't say anything at that time about seeing Mary Phagan, did he?"

"No, sir."

"What sort of a looking negro was Conley when you saw him the first time? Wasn't he a dirty, ragged negro?"

"Yes, he was rather dirty."

"Did you see him en-court the other day?"

"Yes."

"Slick as an onion, wasn't he?"

"Yes, sir."

"He told you how he had tried to go down to see where a girl named Mary Puckett had been killed, didn't he?"

"Yes, sir."

"What day was Frank arrested?"

"Tuesday, when he was detained with your consent."

"You weren't at police headquarters when he was detained there Monday, were you, Mr. Scott?"

"No, sir."

"On May 29 you had another talk with him, didn't you, Mr. Scott?"

"Yes."

"And you give him the third degree?"

"No, sir."

IMPROBABLE POINTS.

"Didn't you point out the improbable points in his story and tell him that that wouldn't do?"

"Yes, sir."

"You kept at him that day until 6 p. m., and started early Tuesday, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, this last talk, which lasted nearly a day. He said that he hadn't told you the whole truth because he thought Frank was going to get out and help him, but that he had found out that Frank was not going to do so, and he intended then to tell you the whole truth. Didn't he tell you that?"

"Yes, sir."

"He told you also that he went straight from Peters street to Nelson and Forsyth streets, and that he had not gone to the factory between 7 and 8 o'clock that morning—didn't he?"

"Yes, sir."

"He said nothing about Frank asking him to watch for him, and about him closing the door when Frank stamped his feet?"

"No, sir."

"In that statement, the first information he got from Frank was the whistle, wasn't it?"

"Yes, sir."

DIDN'T SEE MISS STOVER.

"He denied having seen Monteen Stover?"

"Yes."

"And he denied having seen Mary Phagan?"

"Yes."

"Did you ever try to get him to tell you about the mesh bag?"

"Yes, sir, several times, but he always denied having seen it."

"When he made this statement, he never intimated that he saw it in Frank's office and that he saw Frank put it in the safe?"

"No, sir."

"Did you ask him about the parasol?"

"Yes."

"Did he say he saw it, or did he deny seeing it?"

Witness refreshed his memory from the affidavit. He said that the negro denied having seen it.

"Did he tell you anything about Frank stumbling as he got into the elevator on the street floor, and falling against him?"

"No, sir."

"He said Frank made a misstep at the office floor, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"Didn't he say that he remained some time in the wardrobe?"

"Yes, I think he said ten or fifteen minutes."

"Refresh your memory, Mr. Scott. Didn't he say seven or eight minutes?"

"Probably he did."

"In this last statement, didn't he say that he wrote only one note, not four?"

"Yes."

"How long before this trial was the last time that you were admitted to see him?"

"May 29."

"Now this statement we were talking about—was it final, and that nothing else could be said on the subject by him, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"That was the first time any money except that in the cigarette box was mentioned, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"What did he say that money consisted of?"

"Two greenbacks and some silver."

"He didn't at any time tell you that he wrote straight from his home to the factory, did he?"

"No. As long as I saw him, he always maintained that he went to the factory the first time following Frank from Montag's."

"He told you that he saw Lemmie Quinn that day?"

"No, he maintained that he did not."

"Did he ever tell you that he thought this poor girl's name was Mary Perkins?"

"No."

DIDN'T SAY HE SAW MARY.

"Did he ever say to you that he saw her alive on that day?"

"No."

"Did he ever say anything to you about hearing steps toward the metal room, and screams?"

"No!"

"Did you question him about these points?"

"Yes. He said he only saw a dead body."

"Can you remember whether he said that Frank told him that he had let her fall and she hit her head, or that Frank struck her?"

"I don't remember."

Mr. Rosser handed to Scott a Pinkerton report and asked him to refresh his memory.

"He told me that Frank told him that he let her fall, but he said nothing to me about Frank having admitted striking her."

WHAT HE DIDN'T TELL.

"Did he tell you he heard somebody tip-toe to Frank's office?"

"No."

"Did he tell you he heard somebody stamp, and that then he went to sleep, and the next thing he heard was the whistling?"

"No, sir."

"Did he tell you about Frank showing him how to lock the door?"

"No, sir."

"Did he tell you Frank had a cord in his hand when he met him at the head of the stairs?"

"No, sir."

"Did you find any more cord around the factory like that on the little girl's neck?"

"I saw a number of pieces like it in the basement and in other places."

"Did he tell you about Frank's eyes looking funny that day?"

"No, sir."

"He didn't tell you she had a rope around her neck when he found her, did he?"

"No, sir."

"When did he tell you Frank whistled and he went upstairs?"

"He said it was four minutes to 1."

"Didn't he tell you about four minutes to 1, without specifying the exact time?"

"I believe he said four minutes to 1. That's the recollection."

"He told you that when he went to the back of the factory and when he saw the girl he hollered, 'This girl is dead, Mr. Frank, didn't he? And he didn't say he went back up to the front of the building to tell Frank that?"

"No, sir."

"Did he tell you about wrapping the body in cloth?"

"I believe not in his statements."

"Mr. Scott, you went to the pencil factory with him one time to see how he did, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"He said then that he got a crocus sack and tied the body in it, didn't he?"

"I believe he did."

"Do you call this a crocus sack?" continued Attorney Rosser, indicating the crocus sack laying at the foot of the witness stand.

"Yes, sir."

DORSEY CALLS TIME.

At this point Solicitor Dorsey remarked: "In the interests of time, I think Jim Conley has admitted all this."

"He said he told Black and Scott all this. I'm going to show he didn't, if I can."

Judge Roan said, "I think he has the right to do that, Mr. Dorsey."

The solicitor sat down. "All right; go ahead," said he.

"He told you that he put the girl's body on his right shoulder to carry it out, and that he dropped it near the sliding room door?"

"Yes."

"Did he tell you that when he put the girl on his shoulders, the body dangled around his legs?"

"No, sir."

"Did he say anything to you about the slipper, the piece of ribbon, and the hat, being by the body upstairs?"

"Yes, but he didn't mention the ribbon."

"He told you he never saw the ribbon that came from around her hat, though you asked him about it several times?"

"Yes, sir."

"He told you that after he dropped the body, he took it up by the shoulders, and Frank took it up by the feet; that he went backwards and Frank pressed up against him as he walked?"

"Yes."

THE ELEVATOR KEY.

"Did he tell you that after they put the body on the elevator, Frank tried to move the elevator and when he didn't move it he said he would have to go into the office and get the key? On the way Frank said to say that Frank got the key and the body was put on the elevator afterward?"

"Yes."

"Didn't you tell me that Conley didn't say anything about Frank stumbling onto the elevator at the first floor and hitting him? That the only stumbling he mentioned was at the top floor?"

"Yes."

"He didn't tell you anything about Frank leaving the elevator unlocked?"

"No, sir."

"He didn't tell you that Frank left the motor box unlocked and carried the key into the office?"

"No, sir."

"When he told you about being in the wardrobe, didn't he say something about sweating, didn't he?"

"Yes, sir."

"He didn't say anything about remarking to Frank, 'You've got me in a tight place?'"

"No, sir."

"He told you Frank gave him $200 and took it back?"

"Yes."

CODICIL TO AFFIDAVIT.

Mr. Rosser handed the negro's statement to the witness. "This seems to have been first written and after it was finished, something seems to have been added in long hand at the bottom. How did that happen?"

"Well, after the statement was completed, Conley said something about the money and we called the stenographer back."

"You asked him whether any attempt was made to burn the body?"

"Yes."

"And he said that none was made?"

"Yes."

"He never told you about Frank telling him to burn it?"

"No."

"For that he promised Frank to come back in about 40 minutes to burn it and went to sleep and forgot it."

"No."

"Didn't he tell you that he was afraid to go down into the basement by himself?"

"No."

"Did he tell you he told Frank that he was a white man and did it, and that he should go down there?"

"No."

"Did he tell you that Frank told him he would get him out on bond?"

"No."

"Did he ever say anything to you about a plan for burning the body?"

"No."

NEGATIVE ANSWERS.

Attorney Rosser asked these questions of Scott very slowly, picking out from the record of Conley's testimony every statement that he quoted; and Scott replied no to practically all of them.

"Did he ever tell you that he went over to a stallion and after a meal of fish and liver, he looked at the clock?"

"No."

"Did he tell you that he slept too long in the afternoon and didn't go back to the factory for that reason?"

"No."

"Where did he tell you he was on *the Tuesday that he claimed Frank talk*ed to him—on the steps leading from the third to the fourth floor, or on the fourth floor?"

"He said the fourth floor."

"Did he tell you Frank said if he had come back there would have been no trouble?"

"No."

"Describe the scene at police headquarters when you made Conley admit that he could write."

"He was brought into Chief Lanford's office, and we handed to him a pad and pencil. We told him that we knew positively that he could write and we would produce evidence showing that he could write if he hesitated at all. Then I started dictating, and he took up a pencil and wrote.

"Then you had a session with Conley and he went upstairs?"

"Yes."

"He said a few minutes to 1."

"Didn't he tell you about four minutes to 1, without specifying the exact time?"

"I believe he said four minutes to 1. That's the recollection."

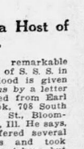
Wonderful Blood Remedy

Brings Health to a Host of Sufferers.



The remarkable action of S. S. S. in the blood is given Impetus by a letter received from Earl C. Cook, 708 South Lenox street, Bloomington, Ill. He says, "I suffered several years with boils and took treatment here, but obtained relief only for a few days at a time. Becoming doubtful of results, I quit the doctors, and there was marked improvement from the start. I used thirteen bottles of S. S. S. and was entirely cured. My blood was in a dreadful condition, and I can say that S. S. S. enough for my wonderful recovery."

This preparation stands alone among specific remedies as a blood purifier, since it accomplishes all that was ever claimed for mercury, iodides, arsenic and other destructive mineral drugs, and yet it is absolutely a purely vegetable product. These facts are brought out in a highly interesting book compiled by the medical department of The Swift Specific Co., 192 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is mailed free, together with a special letter of advice to all who are struggling with a blood disease.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. to-day at your druggist. It will surprise you with its wonderful action in the blood.

PERMANENCE AND BRIGHT'S DISEASE

We have been asked if the recoveries in Bright's Disease made by Fulton's Renal Compound are permanent. Many cases have been reported. Answer:—Yes.

For instance, in the case of R. M. Wood, Editor of the Wine and Spirit Review, of Chicago, Ill. It was twelve years ago that "the most noted analysist in San Francisco" established the fatal disease of the case. The editor's physician told him that medicine would not avail him and advised him to go to San Francisco. He dropped from 225 to less than 190 pounds in a short while. On his return he was put on Fulton's Renal Compound. He not only made a recovery but the reality and permanence of it may be judged from the fact that he is well at this writing, January, 1913.

Thousands of cases of Bright's Disease have reported progress or recovery under Fulton's Renal Compound. Medical works admit that they have nothing to contend against Bright's Disease, and the deaths confirm—nearly ninety thousand annually. If you have Bright's Disease you owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up. It can be had at Edmondson Drug Co., 31 N. Broad St. and 106 N. Pryor St., Atlanta, Ga.

PARK BOARD AND CAREY AT LOGGERHEADS AGAIN

Board Declines to Pay Bills for Piedmont Underground Wiring

Because underground electric wiring in Piedmont park—something the park board has been planning three years—was installed without the board's formal approval of the contracts for material and labor, the board at a special meeting Thursday afternoon passed a resolution declining to pay the bills and reprimanding Park Manager Carey for exceeding his authority.

The bills amount to something over $500. The wiring carries current to the rest house at the head of the lake and to the bath house and refreshment stand. City Electrician R. C. Turner supervised the installation.

Park Manager Carey claims it was not his intention for Electrician Turner to make the material contracts and employ the labor, unless the park board formally approved this expenditure. He claims he asked Electrician Turner to get the bids and that his intention was then to submit the bids to the park board. Electrician Turner claims he understood Manager Carey to authorize him to go ahead and make the contracts.

Members of the park board claim there is not enough money left in the park department account to pay the bills. Manager Carey claims there is. Members of the board say Manager Carey's figures may appear to show there is enough money, but that all of the remaining money is needed to pay bills for other work which had been contracted for and which was in progress before the electric wiring was commenced.

As the matter now stands, it seems to be up to Manager Carey to pay the wiring bills himself, as members of the board claim they have consulted the city attorney and been advised by him that a contract made by the general manager without the board's approval must fall back on the general manager as a personal liability—in the event the board declines to approve it.

It is probable, however, that the finance committee of council will find the amount necessary to pay the bills, and recommend to council that it be added to the park department account for this purpose. Councilman Humphrey, chairman of the finance committee, is understood to be favorable to this solution of the matter.

There seems to be no question as to the wiring being worth the money, and only a difference of opinion as to the advisability of installing it now. The board, as said above, decided some years ago to put all park wiring underground as soon as the park finances would permit. The only objection by members of the board to this particular job of underground wiring is that it does not cover the whole park. Manager Carey's answer to this objection is that the wiring can be extended whenever the park finances permit, and that in the meantime the wiring serves a much-needed purpose in lighting the rest house and bath house.

TWO POLICEMEN HURT RIDING MOTORCYCLES

Two members of the county police force met with accidents while riding their motorcycles Thursday night.

Although he escaped injury, Officer R. E. Jackson's motorcycle was damaged when he collided with an automobile on Lakewood Heights.

Sweetheart, Won While on Parole, Pleads for Pardon of George Wren

Beautiful Birmingham Girl Will Marry Man Convicted of Jewel Robbery on Release

Setting aside every thought except that of securing the release of her fiance from the Fulton county jail, Miss White, a young and beautiful member of one of the prominent families of Alabama, has come to Atlanta to beseech the prison commission to pardon George Wren.

Wren is one of the three men who were convicted of the theft of diamonds in the trunk robbery which created so much interest several months ago. Soon after he was sentenced, he was released on bond to go to Birmingham to complete his medical education, and while studying there he met Miss White. Before his year of study was at end, the two were engaged, and when young Wren returned to Fulton county to serve his sentence he brought with him the promise of the charming young woman to marry him when he was released.

Her fiancee then began to plan for his release. She secured letters of introduction to Dr. John E. White, of the Second Baptist church, who, though no kin to her, bore her name, and came straight to Atlanta to intercede for Wren. Dr. White went with her to the offices of the prison commission, and introduced her to the officials there, all of whom were at once captivated by her charm.

At the time, however, the commission could not take up her case and she returned to Birmingham. Early this week she came back to Atlanta to try once more, and Thursday morning spent some time at the prison commission's offices in the hope of securing a hearing. The McNaughton case had right of way, however, and once more she was forced to wait. Late in the afternoon she went once more, and talked with some of the commissioners about the matter, though she did not appear before the official board.

She is strikingly pretty, and Thursday her bronze-brown hair, animated eyes and beautiful color ware in sharp contrast with the costume of solid black which she wore. A splash of vivid crimson velvet at the front of the waist relieved the sombre effect, and all in all she made a most attractive picture for the eyes of the commissioners.

On his return from Birmingham, Wren was sent to the county camp, but on account of ill health was removed to the jail, where he is in charge of the pharmacy supplies. His finance has been to see him several times there, and Thursday visited him at the jail while waiting to see the commissioners.

Two petitions, emphasizing the former good character of the young man, are in the hands of the commission. They are signed by a number of the leading citizens of Atlanta. A. P. Stewart's name heading the list on one, while names of others in the state appear with those of leading men on both.

The petitions state that Wren is not strong, and that he is the sole dependency for his mother, who has several small children. They call attention to the fact that Wren merely notified the other men as to when the trunks were to leave the hotel, and ask for his pardon on the evidence of former good character.

The matter will be taken up soon by the prison commission.

TEXAS CITY ALREADY HAS BIG COTTON EXHIBITION

The Journal has received a letter from T. B. Cox, of Waco, Tex., stating that the Atlanta chamber of commerce's idea of an extensive exhibit of the fruits, uses and by-products of the cotton plant, is not a new one. He declares Waco has a cotton palace built at the cost of $250,000, which exploits every feature of the cotton plant, and which was built five years ago.

BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

Attendance this week at the Forsyth has been larger than usual. The bill is minus a headliner as a feature of any distinguished importance, but the seven acts are all clever.

The bill for next week is complete, and includes among other distinguished features Ralph Herz, who was last seen as the star of "Dr. Duluth," and who was one of the big features of the original "Madame Sherry" company. Another feature will be William A. Weston and company, in "The Attorneys," and still another will be Adas Family, seven people, who were stars with the Ringling circus show in New York.

People are crowding one another now to secure admission to the Grand during one of the picture performances. This is history repeating itself, for wherever a firstclass theater has been devoted to the picture policy, success has been instantaneous. This is particularly true in the case of the Broadway theater in New York and the Grand theater in Atlanta.

Next week there will be continuous performances from 2:30 until 10:30 each night, with 10 cents admission to grown folks and half price to the children.

"See the Movies at the Grand" is a slogan that is growing more and more popular. A popular feature with the "movie" patrons is the fact that because of the great seating capacity of this theater there is no waiting. It is nearly positive that with 2,600 seats that there will be room, under ordinary circumstances, to take care of the crowds.

Arrangements were perfected to secure the very best service and selections from the out-put of the Biograph, Vitagraph, Essanay, Edison, Selig, Pathe, Lubi and other high class producers, together with the newest and finest features that can be secured in New York are being presented.

This week the performances will be continuous from 2:30 to 10 o'clock at night, 10 cents for adults, children at half price.

"Along the Pike" has been drawing good crowds this week to the Bijou. The attraction is meritorius in many respects. "Along the Pike" will be the last of the musical tabloids at the Bijou. This theater will close its doors Saturday night for two weeks in order that the painters and decorators may get in their work before the house opens on August 25 for an indefinite run of comedy drama.

Full details of the opening on August 25 will be announced later.

MRS. BERTHA AYCOCK TO BE BURIED AT WEST VIEW

The fineral of Mrs. Bertha Aycock, who died Wednesday afternoon, will be held from the residence, 101 Beatie avenue, at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. The interment will follow at West View.

She is survived by her husband, her sisters, Mrs. J. W. Davis, of Barlow, Ky.; Mrs. I. O. Walker, of Paducah, Ky.; her brothers, O. U. Desha, of Ft. Collins, Colo.; H. G. Desha, of Sterling, Okla.; Owen Desha, of Anniston, Mo.

The deceased was a daughter of the late E. J. and Angier Desha, of Kevils, Ky. Her death is keenly felt by her many friends, who deeply sympathize with her surviving family and the family of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Aycock.

The pallbearers follow: B. L. Dunaway, E. N. Vary, W. H. Dunaway, James T. Ragsdale, C. J. McLendon, A. R. Lord.

LIFE IN PRISON SEEMS FATE OF M'NAUGHTON

Indications at Close of Hearing Are That Death Sentence Will Be Commuted

Although no member of the prison commission has expressed an opinion on the application for a pardon for Dr. J. M. McNaughton, who is now in the Chatham county jail under sentence of death for the murder of Fred Flanders in Swainsboro, three years ago, there seems to be an impression that the sentence of death will be commuted to life imprisonment.

F. H. Saffold, one of the attorneys for McNaughton, said Thursday he was confident the sentence would be commuted; that he could "have gotten the commutation a year ago," but that they wanted the full pardon.

When A. R. Bradley, speaking for the prosecution, was summarizing the case against McNaughton, his brother, Dr. A. B. McNaughton, of Augusta, created a mild sensation by interrupting him.

Mr. Bradley was commenting on Dr. Houston's high standing as an expert, when Dr. McNaughton, white-lipped and tense, whipped out the remark that he "is just as unprincipled as you are." Judge T. S. Patterson, of the commission, curtly commanded that such an interruption must not occur again. After the hearing Dr. McNaughton apologized to Mr. Bradley.

The Rev. John Wilder, a preacher from Savannah, declared that two of the witnesses, naming them, who had testified in the case were "liars," reinforcing his statement by calling one a "bald-faced liar."

A. L. Franklin, of Augusta, said that McNaughton had not had a fair chance and one or two men spoke in evidence of good character.

G. F. Flanders, of Swainsboro, a cousin of the dead man, said to The Journal reporter:

"If the sentence of death is commuted, the Flanders family will not be satisfied. He is guilty and he should be punished, and the woman is guilty, too, and should have been tried and convicted also."

Those who heard Attorney Saffold declare at the morning session that a physician stood ready to take an injection of two grains of arsenic into his system to show that it would not cause death, were disappointed when the experiment failed to materialize.

Attorney Saffold stated that he had misunderstood what the physician said, and that the experiment would have had to start ten days prior, the physician agreeing to take the arsenic in broken doses.

The commission took all the papers in the case, and, after re-reading them and considering the evidence carefully, will render their decision sometime between now and September 1.

M'CLURE LEAVES FOR NAT. ASSN. MEETING

C. W. McClure, one of the prominent merchants of Atlanta, who has taken an active interest in the convention, leaves Atlanta tonight for Indianapolis to preside over the meetings of the National Association of Five and Ten Cent Merchants that city August 11 to 16. He has been president of the association several years.

After the Indianapolis meeting Mr. McClure will spend six weeks in Europe, leaving New York August 21.

SLATON GIVES RED MEN WATERMELON CUTTING

Governor John M. Slaton met with Commache tribe, No. 6, of Red Men Thursday evening at their wigwam on Central avenue, and delivered a short address of particular interest to the tribesmen.

He also gave the annual watermelon cutting with which he entertains the Red Men each year, and the evening was one of special enjoyment.

Laundered Bills O. K.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Laundered money is just as good as new bills, according to the head of chemistry, which reported by to United States Treasurer Burke the results of a recent chemical analysis of the washed notes. The analysis disclosed only a slight difference in the appearance of the washed and unwashed bills.

A Blessed Riddance.

There is cause for peculiar satisfaction in the passage of the bill abolishing the system of justice of the peace courts in Atlanta, and substituting therefor a municipal court fashioned upon principles of efficiency and fair dealing. This measure, which passed the House some weeks ago was yesterday ratified in the Senate by a unanimous vote. It now awaits only the Governor's signature to become effective the first of next year.

Long ago the shortcomings and, in some instances, the grave wrongdoings of the "J. P." system in Atlanta grew intolerable. The best of magistrates were handicapped by conditions so deep seated and prevalent as to make reform, however earnestly undertaken, impossible. The system itself was inherently wrong and foolish. To the most capable and conscientious officials, it was a hindrance to good service, while to the incompetent and unscrupulous it was a source of continuous blunders or unlimited graft. Among the strongest advocates for the abolishment of this system, it should be noted, were Justices of the Peace who were personally experienced in such courts and who were honest enough to speak freely of what they knew.

The system provided in the bill which the Legislature has just enacted is at once businesslike and just. It strikes out one of the most serious evils of the old plan by placing all officials connected with the new court on a salary basis instead of leaving them as heretofore dependent upon fees. It removes the possibility of collusion between prosecution and judge. It provides for complete and accurate records and for orderly legal procedure. It ends a regime of mingled ignorance and persecution and establishes in its place one of intelligence and true justice.

For the accomplishment of this great and sorely needed reform too much credit cannot be given the Atlanta Bar Association, and especially its committees who were directly entrusted with securing legislation of this character. These gentlemen have earned the deep and enduring gratitude of this entire community.

The New Balkan Treaty.

Whether the treaty agreed to by the Balkan Allies will bring real peace or will merely afford a short breathing space in which the warring States will gird themselves for another fierce conflict is a matter of surmise. The terms of the tentative settlement seem to be unsatisfactory to all the parties concerned except Rumania. Bulgaria has been allotted more of northern Macedonia than Servia and Greece wished to allow her. At the same time Bulgaria is sharply piqued over being deprived of other important territory to which she has laid claim and particularly does she object to being assigned the task of expelling, unaided, the Turks from Adrianople. Rumania, who took no part in the original Ottoman war, gains most from the new treaty; and it was her threat to hurl an army forthwith against Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, that forced an acceptance of the modified frontier.

In these circumstances it is possible that the Allies will renew their internal warfare, though if the European Powers approve and sustain the terms of the treaty, or those of some subsequent treaty, it is likely that peace will be restored in fact. The significant aspect of the new arrangement is the weakened condition in which it leaves Bulgaria and the indirect, though important, bearing this will have on the affairs of the entire Balkan peninsula. Until the recent war Bulgaria was clearly dominant among her neighbors. But she must now give full recognition to the rights and the influence of Servia and Greece and even of Montenegro. If there is to be a Balkan confederacy at all, it must be founded on an equality of interests and its maintenance will require nicely balanced co-operation among its component States.

Col Heads Over A Heated Problem.

It is highly fortunate that Senator Bacon's sober counsel has prevailed against the ill-timed Clark resolution which, had it been adopted, would at least have embarrassed the President and his advisers in their efforts to untangle the serious Mexican situation. This solution demanded an immediate inquiry into conditions in Mexico by the Foreign Relations committee of the Senate, independent of that which President Wilson is now conducting and it opened the way to indefinite action on the part of Congress.

Senator Bacon, who is chairman of the Foreign Relations committee vigorously opposed such a move on the ground that it would tend merely to complicate an already difficult problem. He called attention to the fact that the President has sent a personal representative to Mexico in the hope of bringing about some understanding whereby peace and orderly government may be restored and that until this effort had proved unmistakably futile and other well-considered and pacific plans of the administration had failed, the should be no hasty interference. "There are two ways, as Senator Bacon declared, by which the United States may proceed to meet its responsibilities in this trying situation: "One way is to attempt to do so by [illegible] other by the strong art by force. Who will say that the latter should not be the last to which we should resort?"

The administration's policy toward Mexico thus far has been thoroughly justified and is approved both in and out of Congress by thoughtful men irrespective of party. The time has now evidently come when some decisive move must be made, but for that very reason it should be made deliberately and with full knowlege of all the circumstances. To this end, the President has sent to Mexico as his personal representative Mr. John Lind, whose mission it is to gather accurate information of conditions in that country and also, if possible, to effect some plan of peaceful agreement among the warring factions.

The repeted declaration of the Huerta government that it will not receive Mr. Lind unless he comes in the capacity of an ambassador, officially recognizing the Huerta regime, has given rise to much concern. It may be, however, that what appears now to be a dangerous difficulty will dwindle to insignificance. It is scarcely credible that Huerta would flatly ignore or insult the President's special representative who comes in a capacity really much higher, if not more responsible, than that of any ambassador. Furthermore, as has been pointed out, Mr. Lind's status in the Mexican capital will not depend upon his direct relationships to the de facto government there. "He has gone," as The Journal's Washington correspondent points out, "in the capacity of adviser to the American embassy and whatever he may have to say to Mr. Huerta may be said through the official in charge of the embassy, one astute individual named Nelson 'OShaughnessy."

Whether the Lind mission succeeds or fails remains to be seen. For the present, however, it is clear that the wisest course the United States can pursue is that which the administration has adopted and which it is following in a manner that merits full and cordial confidence.

But the man who sings his own praise seldom gets a curtain call.

Suspicion usually finds what it is looking for if it looks long enough.

England and Bermuda.

The jingoes are indeed hard pressed for gossip when they try to read a hostile or suspicious intent into Great Britian's reported plans for reconstructing a naval base at Bermuda. It would be no more ridiculous to construe a fortification of the Panama canal as an unfriendly sign toward England than it is to regard the British plan as being other than thoroughly pacific and natural.

The fact is Bermuda was used as a naval base for nearly half a century and not until years comparatively recent has it been neglected for this purpose. The New York World sensibly remarks that "the thousands of tourists who annually visit Bermuda will be glad of any move that adds interest to the place and its picturesqueness as a resort for weary Americans."

Lying as it does on the route from Europe to the West Indies and being midway between the West Indies and England's possessions in North America, this group of islands is a natural naval base. But to the people of the United States, its chief interest is and will continue to be that of a resort whose equable climate and charming scenery make it one of the earth's most delightful playgrounds.

National Canners' Laboratory

By Frederic J. Haskin

The equipment of the laboratory estoblished in Washington by the National Canners' association will be complete about the 1st of September. Even before that time it will be doing practical work toward the solution of the problems confronting the canners and the public dependent upon them for food. This is the first laboratory ever established in this country by any trade organization for the purpose of scientific research work. The result of this research will not be confined to the members of the association, but will be published so as to benefit every individual canner and the general public. The work will pertain to the increased sanitation of canneries as well as to the improvement of canned goods from the standpoint of flavor and wholesomeness.

• • •

In addition to experimental research, for which the laboratory is primarily established, a commercial department will be maintained for the benefit of members of the association. For instance, a cannery, having a large crop of peas to handle, finds that the new cans, which have been adopted for sanitary reasons, do not preserve the peas. They are spoiling a few days after being put up. Thousands of dollars' worth of peas are involved and as they have already been contracted for, the canning firm must be the loser. A can of the peas is shipped to the laboratory with a statement of the difficulty. They are submitted to chemical analysis and within twenty-four hours a remedy may be devised and its details telegraphed to the cannery. Thousands of cases of peas may be saved in this way.

• • •

The commercial feature of the laboratory is designed to be absolutely self supporting. A provision of $50,000 annually for three years already has been secured. The selection of the special subjects for research is to be in the hands of a committee of the association aided by several scientific men. While the work of the laboratory is to be in direct harmony with the pure food work of the department of agriculture, it is to receive no appropriation of public funds. The new institution is in charge of Dr. W. D. Bigelow, formerly assistant and chief chemist of the department of agriculture. He will be assisted by Dr. A. W. Bitting, formerly food technologist of the department of agriculture.

• • •

The establishment of this new institution is a recognition upon the part of the canners that the highest degree of perfection must be acquired to fit their products for the food of the nation. Instead of fighting laws looking toward this end, the canners are lending their aid toward their enforcement, thereby raising the standard of canned foods. The increasing amount of canned food eaten each year renders its purity essential to the public health. Last year the total canned food value of the United States reached a value of $157,000,000. A case of canned food containing two dozen cans was consumed by every three men, women and children in the country.

• • •

Tomatoes form the greatest cannery output. Over 14,000,000 cases of tomatoes were canned in the United States last year, which is the highest number on record. Over 18,000,000 cases of corn and about 8,000,000 cases of peas came next in the amount of the canned products. These three vegetables are each put up in a number of grades, and the consideration of a standard label which will enable the purchaser to know just what grade he is buying is a matter to which the canners are now giving consideration. Nearly 4,000 establishments are now engaged in the food canning and preserving industry of the country, without reference to what is being put up in the homes. Their products include vegetables, fruit and fish. The canning of meats is considered a part of the meat packing industry.

• • •

The canner's laboratory, when its work is once properly understood, will do much to counteract the prejudice against canned goods now existing in the minds of many people. There are no tricks in the canning trade as it is being conducted in the modern canneries. American canned vegetables and fruits have no artificial coloring matter, salt and sugar being the only preservatives now in use. The ideal canned product must possess as nearly as possible the flavor of the fresh article and at the same time present an attractive appearance. The flavor is secured by taking the fruit or vegetable just when it has reached its highest state of maturity and canning it as quickly as possible.

• • •

Modern mechanism is doing much to improve the canneries of the world. Machines are planned with special facilities for harvesting as well as preparing the food for canning. Peas are no longer cut and shelled by hand. The vines are cut with a mowing machine. A specially devised thresher removes the green peas from the pods and another machine sorts them according to their size. This sorting machine consists of a series of cylinder having perforated sides. The first has the smallet perforation which takes only the smallest. The second has larger perforations giving exit to the next in size. The canners have five grades of peas, the grading being made according to the size. The quality is the same and all are equally fresh from the vines. The small size which are sold as French peas, are more delicate and succulent, but the larger ones have the greatest amount of nutriment. The small peas command the highest price but the demand is greatest for the larger ones.

• • •

A special set of machinery is required for each vegetable. String beans require separate machines for stringing, for cutting into even lengths, and for packing them in the cans after the blanching or parboiling process. For preparing corn there are machines which husk the corn, remove the silk, cut the corn from the cob and pack it in the can. Tomatoes are first passed under a special coring machine which takes out the core without the fruit. After this they are passed under the scalder and the skin is removed by another machine.

• • •

The canning industry is becoming more and more highly organized. It is necessary to put up the products where they grow because they deteriorate when shipped. Consequently, one canning firm may have half a dozen different branches. In one state the peas are of superior quality, in another the highest grade of corn may be found, while some other may produce the finest tomatoes. The firms controlling these three products cannot depend upon having them shipped into a central cannery but must have individual establishments to handle them on the spot.

• • •

Corn deteriorates more quickly than most other vegetables. It is rushed through canneries with the greatest speed, being handled sometimes in ton quantities. One of the subjects of research in the new laboratory will be to devise even a greater speed in the process of handling this staple food so that its natural flavor may be even better preserved. Instead of allowing twelve hours from the time of cutting until the closing of the can, the time of the process is to be reduced to six or eight hours if possible. This will call into play the highest degree of efficiency and the highest perfection of mechanical equipment.

• • •

The can holding the product is an important factor in preserving the quality of the food. The old-fashioned hole and cap can has come into disfavor. In its place is being substituted a sanitary can having a plain top which is crimped on without the use of solder. The objection to the use of solder on the ground that it poisons the food stuff, has not been well sustained, but the new can possesses the advantage of being more easily filled because it has the entire top open.

Speaking of travelogues, Old Ed Howe has returned from his globe-girdling trip, and in the September number of his magazine finished his interesting notes. Ed's idea is that he is ever so American, there's no place like it. "In Johannesburg," he writes, "we paid fifteen cents street car fare each, to the zoological gardens. In New York we went three or four times the distance for five cents, on the way passing under a great river. This is some of the Robbery to which we Americans are compelled to submit. When we wanted a lunch we went into a beautiful place and paid sixty-five cents for all two healthy Americans cared to eat. This is wicked, extravagant New York. Some of the buildings we saw were thirty-eight stories high, and the streets through which we passed cannot be duplicated anywhere. We wanted a guide to show us about quickly. We secured a bright young man from the Postal Telegraph Company. He was polite, intelligent and capable. What do you suppose this Robber Corporation charged us for his services? Thirty cents an hour."

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

August 4.—To a haberdasher's, where I did see a pair of green hose in the window, and said, what is the cost thereof, and is did say, £1, 2s., which I deemed too much for any hose for me, and do feel it would be wicked to wear them, what with all the misery in the world. But I did buy two fine green tyes, as is my custom. Then with Sam'l Adams the scrivener to luncheon and thence to the tennis court where I did beat him one sett, the first time ever I did and I very proud of so doing, albeit he did beat me after that, and I doubt not can do so at will. Home then, but so late that I fear Lena is displeased with me, nor do I blame her either, for she hath long hours enough, at best. Labouring all the evening at divers readings, and read some in Mr. Thackeray's "Pendennis," and I do like it maugre those that say there is no skill nor knowledge in his bookes. Read further in Mistress Inez's "Angel Island" and liked the second part immeasurably more than the first.

5.—To my office early, and found there many letters to cheer me, and so busy with the printing men all the morning, but Mr. Ronayne away on a holiday, and I have to fight all alone. Then to buy some tennis-balls, but the cleiks so stupid and so loth to give me attention I bought none and vowed I should never purchase aught in that shop again. To the court and beat Will Beebe three setts in four, with great content to myself. So some bettmes, and found Lena in a pleasant mood again, albeit L. Anhalt did come for dinner, and we did have a peach pasty so fine I never knew such things might be. All the evening attempting to work but L. Anhalt keeping up so great a chatter in the next room I could do no artistic pieces, which I did want to do, having wrought none such in a long day.

Age as Against Years

(St. Paul Despatch.)

On his seventy-fifth anniversary, feeling fine and active, John Wanamaker said:

"There are compensations for a long life. It is possible to fill up one's life so that the years upon your brow and the feeling in your heart are not on speaking terms."

That is commonplace enough in that it has been often said. But it is a great truth and worth repeating.

One of the triumphs of the last half century has been the gradual conquering of age. Despite the tendency of rush and hurry, it is still true thatmen are no longer old at the age which was held to be old half a century ago.

The thing that makes age deplorable is the lack of human interest. A man's years mean nothing so long as he is still vitally concerned in life, interested in the day's work, in the common problem of humanity, and participates mentally at least in the movements of his time.

The man whose mind and heart do not share in the common inheritances of humanity is old at any age, for he is not living.

To bring to old age the vital enthusiasm of youth, mellowed and glorified and substantiated by the experience of years, and subdued but not chastened or defeated by the wisdom and patience and tolerance of calmer days, is to know theb est of life, a vigor that is not volatile, and a serenity that is not dull.

Hurrah for the Suffragette!

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

We have done a smug bit of criticising, you and I, and held up disapproving hands at the English fighting suffragettes. They were naughty four ways. Violence will not do. These women have unsexed themselves. They should seek their ends in nicer ways.

You may do as you please. But as for me, I have read a letter in the Chicago News from E. P. Bell of London: I know Bell and will believe whatever he may say; and I here and now in advance to the mourners bend and renounce my sin. I have judged and condemned with a high hand and a stretched out arm. I knew little about the conditions of English women. What I did know was wrong. Mr. Bell states succinctly the reasons I would not blame them if they fired Westminster Abbey and spanked the King.

England is the country most enslaved by tradition, and the traditions having to do with women are absolutely inable.

From infancy the English girl is made to feel her inferiority. Nursemaids pet the boys and neglect the girls. When two little girls and a somewhat larger brother go out for an airing the boy rides in the perambulator, the girls walk.

The girl in an English family is under the most rigid restraint. There are ten million things she must not do because she is a lady. The boy does very much as he pleases.

He goes to the best school to be found. Anything will do for her.

When she gets married she enters into a servitude most real. In the average British home, says Mr. Bell, if there is one new-laid egg for breakfast the husband takes it as a matter of course. If there is but one bathroom the father and sons have prior claim to it. Mother may take a makeshift bath in her room and the girls carry up the water for her.

A man and woman being in partnership, he working outside and she at home, the money when it comes in goes to the man. Can he not do as he pleases with his own?

The mistress ordered potatoes boiled; the maid brings them to the table baked, explaining that master likes them so. That settles it. All the servants have their eyes upon master. They ignore the orders of mistress.

Some Englishmen will not trust their wives to do the shoping, lest they should prove extravagant. The men may be seen puttering around the shops selecting goods and gowns for wife and daughter.

The wife is cowed, overawed and snubbed. The man can appropriate his wife's earnings. She cannot touch his.

Mr. Bell mentions an instance where Uncle John was a most excellent man, so just, kind and good. In all his years of married life he had never given his wife money enough to buy a postage stamp. She always either asked him for a stamp or gave him the letter to post.

An Englishwoman is constantly discriminated against by the law. The father has the say when the child shall be vaccinated or not, to what school the boy or girl shall go, and what religion they shall adopt, and a thousand other details of unreasonable tyranny.

It is these small things of daily existence that are their constant irritation and injustice have stung the women of England to protest.

So more power to their arms!

The Kingbird Guards the Farmer's Crops and Fowls

(Kansas City Star.)

One day a robber fly went darting out over the field where the honey bees were going from flower to flower gathering honey. The bees were minding their own business and working away as hard and fast as they could. But that made no difference to the robber fly. He was raised up with the desire to kill various kinds of insects, and he didn't stop to think that bees are useful. So he flew at a bee with all his might and caught hold of him and killed him with his sharp lancet which he always carries in his head. It was a cruel and wrong thing to do. But this bold robber was soon to pay the penalty for his deed.

Robber fly had killed several bees and other insects and he was ready to leave the field. He flew toward the fence, paying no attention to a little slate colored bird the saw sitting on the top wire. All at once there was a great stir in the air and—before robber fly had a chance to look around to see what it was—something grabbed him and held him fast. The crushing pain told him that he had killed his last bee and just as he was dying he realized that he was the victim of that little bird he had seen on the top wire of the fence.

It was a kingbird.

John Lind

(New York World.)

John Lind, who goes to Mexico not as an ambassador but with even a higher mission as a minister of peace on behalf of the president of the United States, has a name that a Viking might have borne. A native of Sweden and not yet sixty years of age, he has been governor of his state, a representative in three congresses and an officer of volunteers in the war with Spain. He is typical of that large and splendid element of our citizenship which produced the lamented John A. Johnson, of Minnesota.

Such a man may not be familiar with the character and habits of Latin Americans; he may not be gifted in diplomacy and finesse; he may even be ignorant of or inattentive to the fine points of violence which distinguish political controversies south of the Rio Grande; but of his ability to present to the warring chieftains in Mexico facts, principles and conditions which should persuade them to accept American mediation there can be no question.

In him the Far North appeals to the Far South. It will be said of him that he does not understand the temperament of the people whom he is to address; yet through the agency of such men Far North has instructed Far South more than once in statecraft, in respect for law and order, in true pride and honor, in courage, and it may do so again.

John Lind carries to Mexico a message of peace, good-will and common sense which has back of it the determination, the patience and the power of many millions of John Linds.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION SET BACK IN SENATE

Bill by Senator Sweat Is Tabled by Unanimous Vote

Compulsory education received a serious setback in the state senate Friday morning when Senator Sweat's bill was tabled after a hot argument, in which serious opposition to the measure was displayed on the part of some of the leading members of the senate.

The discussion on the bill was the only feature of an otherwise sleepy session. Senator Sweat was the only member who spoke for the bill, while Senators McNeil and Allen led the opposition to it.

The bill required children between the ages of eight and twelve to attend school twelve months in the year, unless such child had already completed the fourth grade of school work, had received the equivalent of such instruction, or where its services were necessary to the support of the family, or where its books were unable to be provided, or where the physical condition of the child prevented attendance, or where the child lived more than three miles from the nearest school house.

The opposition to the bill argued that in the present financial condition of the state it was unwise to increase the burden on the common schools. Several provisions of the bill were disapproved of as well, and when Senator DuBose moved that it be tabled his motion was passed unanimously. There is small likelihood that the measure in its present form will get by the legislature.

The senator from the Fourth, Mr. Oliff, introduced a resolution in the senate this morning providing that the attention of the national congress be called to the condition of Fort Frederica, on the Island of St. Simons, where James Oglethpe fought the battle of Bloody Marsh. The fort is being undermined by the waves, the resolution states, and congress is urged to survey the land and make appropriations to preserve the historic edifice.

The senate passed a great many local bills, but little general legislation was accomplished.

The adventures of the old blue-backed speller appeared in the state senate Friday morning and had a resolution introduced to bring back the old book into Georgia's public schools.

The resolution was introduced by Senator John T. Allen and Senator C. B. McGregor. It read:

"Resolved, That the state board of education in making contracts for books for the public schools in the future consult the advisability of buying a book known as Webster's Blue-backed Speller."

The resolution was tabled.

SENATE BILLS PASSED.

By Mr. Miller of 18th—To amend the constitution so as to increase the pay of the judge of the superior court of 18th county.

By Messrs. Garlington and Olive of Richmond—To provide for secret ballot in primary elections in city of Augusta.

Senator Urged to Pay Madison School Teachers

A resolution was read to the state senate from the teachers of Madison, Ga., Friday morning demanding that the legislature pay them the money which is their due.

Senator McGregor moved that the secretary be authorized to obtain the names of the teachers and the amount which was owing them, whereupon Senator McNeil made a motion that Senator McGregor be appointed a committee of one to pay the teachers.

No action was taken on the motion, despite the look of pleasure on Major McGregor's face. The letter from the teachers was laid on the table.

Augusta Secret Ballot Bill Passed by Senate

The bill providing for a secret ballot in primary elections at the city of Augusta was passed by the state senate almost unanimously Friday morning, following its recommendation by the general judiciary committee Saturday.

The expected fight on the "emblem clause" did not develop, the bill passing without any amendment. One senator asked that he be excused from voting on the bill. He was Judge John T. Allen, of the Twentieth.

"Senators," said Judge Allen, "I do not wish to oppose the senator from the Augusta district nor the three representatives who favor this bill, but I cannot indorse my name to such a foolish measure as this. I will, therefore, ask that I be excused from voting."

He was excused.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Prohi Leaders Deny Fact To Hamper Legislation

Prohibition leaders of the house are wrought up over published reports to the effect that they had formed a pact to fight all so-called administration measures and the tax bills introduced by Speaker Burwell. They are outspoken in their denials.

Representative H. W. Hopkins, of Thomas, one of the staunchest prohibitionists in the legislature, was indignant that such a rumor should have found its way into the public print. "Had there been any lineup of the prohis," said Judge Hopkins, "I most certainly would have known it. There is no truth in the report and I am mortified to think it should have gained any credence. Some of the prohibitionists voted against tax reform, but they did it because they were honestly against the enactment of any such law."

Representative Henry J. Fullbright, of Burke, another recognized leader of the prohibition forces, expressed surprise at his alleged party lineup and declared most emphatically that he was unable to see where one actaully existed.

Leaders of the anti-wets point to the fact that Representative R. N. Hardeman, of Jefferson, as "wet" member, made a speech against and fought the very bill that is said to have been killed by the prohis.

The Colored Vote Was Small. So the Watermelon Was Downed.

In Augusta one does not vote for a councilman, he votes for a plough. He does not vote for a representative, but for a watermelon or a horse-shoe, not for a mayor, but for either a tree or a cake of soap. He does not vote by ballot, but by emblems.

Such was the plea of Tom Loyless, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, when he appeared before the general judiciary committee of the state senate the other day to oppose a bill which was favored by the three representatives from Richmond and the senator from that district.

Editor Loyless was against the clause in the bill which provides for the emblem ballot, said to be for the benefit for those who cannot read but who can understand the language of the tree, the horse-shoe, and the cake of soap. The fact that the committee recommended the bill and the clause for passage did not mitigate the humor occasioned by the exhibition of the official ballots on which the emblem system is used.

"Just look at this list of representatives and the emblems they selected," said Mr. Loyless. "Here is A. B. Apple, who very appropriately selected that sort of fruit for his picture. Bob Videtto chose a cow, but Bobo misfortune there were no milk-maids voting. This arm and hammer emblem of Passmore's was all right, but evidently nobody knew what it meant, for T. B. wasn't elected. And just look who did get elected, the rabbit, the horse shoe and the ace of hearts. Of course people are going to vote for a horseshoe and a rabbit's foot, and the ace of hearts was the favorite over the ace of diamonds."

Pay Your Debts, Governor Tells State of Georgia

That other legislatures have been spending beyond the state's income and that it is the function of the present general assembly to pay up, is the way Governor John M. Slaton expresses Georgia's financial condition.

He compares the situation to a man who has 15 cents in his pocket and should dine off a ham sandwich instead of terrapin stew and mince pie.

"The legislatures have been making appropriations calling for a tax of 6 mills, he says, while the people have said that they do not want appropriations calling for anything over a tax of 5 mills.

"The only honest way is for the state to pay its debts," says the governor, "and under no temptation to spend more money than it takes in. The example of the state is worth to its youth in character more than all the education of its schools and all the patriotic ardor excited by its wars. I believe this legislature, composed of men who represent the honor and integrity of the state, and having in their veins the blood of a Georgia ancestry, will measure up to the duties confronting them. Criticism is unfair until they have finished their labors."

Would Have County Boards Of Health to be Appointed

The house committee on hygiene and sanitation has recommended for passage by substitute a bill providing for county boards of health, to consist of the county superintendent of schools, the chairman of the board of commissioners, the ordinary and one reputable physician.

The board is to have charge of all health matters in its county. So much of the bill is obligatory. It has other optional features.

He Must Have Consumed Nearly A Quart of Blue Ink to Date.

The curiosity of the state senate has been aroused. No less a personage than Le Pope—he sure not to spell it "Lee"—the senator from the Forty-fourth, has caused a feverish inquiry to circulate throughout the senate chamber day by day.

Not once this session has Senator Pope spoken on a single question, not once has he deigned to explain his vote even. Yet he rarely misses a session, although his preoccupied manner has been the cause of much speculation.

Hour after hour Senator Pope sits at his desk, head bent forward, busily writing. He is always writing. He never stops, save to raise his head and utter "aye" or "nay." He writes in the morning, he writes at night, until the devouring question of the senate has become, "What is he writing?" No one knows; yet it is a certainty that his tireless scribbling has covered reams and reams of paper since the senate first convened.

Senator Sits in Gallery With Fair Companions.

State senators can sit just anywhere they want to in the senate chamber, and they do. Some sit in others' seats, others sit in the window, on the platform, on chairs. But there is one senator, he of the curly hair, who of late has begun to sit in the gallery. And he does not sit alone.

This solon has the distinction of being one of the three bachelor senators. The other day he went to the seashore and returned with a liberal coat of sunburn. Thursday morning the sunburned senator was, as usual, in the gallery, and he was not alone. They were very beautiful, his three companions, and they regarded the senator with adoring eyes.

In the midst of a debate Senator Smith offered a resolution: "That when the senator from the Fifteenth comes down from the gallery he shall be required to explain to this body whether his pink cheeks are occasioned by sunburn or blushes."

Down in the senate there was laughter. Up in the gallery the senator from the Fifteenth turned six shades redder. And he did not blush alone.

EARTHQUAKE DESTROYS TWO PERUVIAN TOWNS

Thousands of Inhabitants Are Rendered Homeless—News Delayed Two Days

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 8.—News reached here today that an earthquake on Wednesday destroyed the Peruvian towns of Caraveli and Quicacha.

Thousands of the inhabitants were rendered homeless and extended relief measures will be necessary.

Caraveli is a city of 4,000 inhabitants in the state of Arequipa, 130 miles northwest of the port of Mollendo. Quicacha is a smaller town in the same state.

The whole distance is subject to frequent earthquakes and almost of the houses and public edifices are built to resist shocks.

governor theirty days after the passage of the bill. They are to elect their president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Their salaries are to be paid out of the fees received from applicants who want to practice in this state. The fee accompanying each application will be $20, and the examinations may be either written or oral. The board shall meet twice a year at the capitol.

The bill broadly characterized, is for the protection of public health and the regulation of the practice of medicine. No doctor may practice in the state without applying first to this board, but this does not apply to doctors already practicing. The board also has the supervision of medical colleges.

The bill authorizes the board to bar physicians who are given to intemperance or the use of rancotics; also those who perform criminal operations, or permise to cure incurable diseases.

Any doctor who practices without a license from this board, or who violates the provisions of the law, shall be punished for a misdemeanor, and be liable to a fine of $500 to $1,000, or imprisonment of two to five years.

House to Reconsider Slaton Tax Measure

By substantial majorities the house failed to receive the requisite two-thirds vote when they came up for passage.

The move to reconsider was made by Representative Henry J. Fullbright, of Burke. He contended that a number of the members had voted under a misapprehension by not understanding thoroughly the real intents of the measure.

The vote on the first was 86 to 57 and on th esecond 89 to 58.

The Heart of Georgia

Herod's Hog and Herod's Son

A Roman cynic said:

"Rather be Herod's hog than be Herod's son."

Herod's boys—

They were dead.

Herod's heartlessness—

His cruel indifference had killed them.

The children had displeased Herod—

But the hog—he was alive.

When Herod died his hog and gold went not with his soul.

Today the heart of Georgia stirs—

Not with the lust and greed which brought shameful fame to Herod of old—

But with the pity—

The tenderness—

The love which nineteen hundred years ago began to flow from Christ crucified, our Lord.

You will not return to our great Mother, the State, and say:

"Behold, this we have done for our fields, our cows and hogs—

"For our boys and girls—

"We had neither the time to consider—

"Nor the funds to provide."

For today Georgia holds flesh and blood as of greater value than swine and kine—

Today the tears and suffering of one little girl whose life and honor might have been saved had you made the provision—these are worth more to your State than all the money, about which we chatter and talk, forgetting that lives are being lost.

And you are Georgia.

Your heart is hers—

Her heart is yours as is her power.

And you will not neglect—

You will take the time.

You will never whine:

"WE HAVE NO MONEY FOR THESE."

When you are spending money on cows and hogs.

You will provide.

Muse's August Price Changes and Unchanging Quality

Quality, in Muse Clothes, irrespective of price, bears eloquent testimony. Thought, attention, skill and creative ability go into the making of Muse Clothes in large measures. Changing the price in August does not take it out. 'Tis simply our usual end-of-the-season plan, with its mutual benefits.

Our rich summer collection of fabrics, colors and models in Men's Suits will suffice in itself for that department, and goes far toward increasing the number of men who share our own opinion of this store and its merchandise.

Here are the price changes:

Men's Suits, selling regularly at $15.00 to $40.00, are now $11.25 to $30.00

Shirts and Furnishings have like reductions.

Growing Towns

If it's a town with the push and the pride to want to get ahead, the first thing to do is make it a good place to live in.

Is it the kind of place the young fellows will stick to and be proud of and want to rear their families in?

Is it the kind of place visitors will really enjoy visiting? Is it the sort of town you men and women think really worth while?

If it is lacking in CORRECT SANITARY CONDITIONS, it will never get over into the growing column.

Just as well get that town right off.

Sanitary living is the right of the people. It is the just inheritance of the little child. It is the safeguard of the population.

If there's a lurking-place for disease in your home, your family is in danger.

If your town has a breeding place for sickness, you and your neighbors will have to pay the price.

If your town lacks the proper Sewerage facilities, it's in danger.

If the water supply is contaminated, or exposed to contamination, the health of your people is menaced.

If your lighting is inadequate, out-of-date and cheerless, your boys and girls will be the losers. Darkness isn't good for the morals any more than for the eyesight.

Let us talk with you about what your town needs. It's our business to better and boost the town that is ailing. We've cured and cheered more than 300. We'd like to tell you who they are and what we did for them.

To Mr. and Mrs. Burwell

Mr. and Mrs. William Burwell will be the honor guests at the dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Walter Andrews will entertain Saturday evening at the dinner dance at the Piedmont club.

Twelve guests have been invited to meet the honor guests.

Afternoon Parties

At Piedmont Club

Every afternoon the terrace at the Piedmont Driving club is the bright with groups going out for a 5 o'clock tea, the tables on the porch and terrace being circled by congenial parties enjoying the club.

Mrs. Frampton Ellis, wearing one of her pretty trousseau gowns, a becoming creation in white lace worn with a picture hat trimmed with blue plumes and pink roses, was the honor guest in a delightful party entertained by Mrs. W. A. Turner, sixteen guests being invited to meet the attractive young bride.

The table was placed on the porch of the hall room and lovely with baskets filled with flame colored gladioli.

Mrs. William H. Chambers, of California, was the honor guest at the bridge party at which Mrs. Grant Willkins entertained this week in honor.

The game was played on the porch, tea being served at its conclusion.

To Miss Simmons

Miss Fay Simmons, of Gainesville, who has been spending a few days in the city, was the honor guest at a delightful little dinner last evening at the East Lake club at which Mr. Frank Spratlin was the host.

Dinner was followed by music, Miss Simmons and Miss Pagett contributing to a delightful impromptu program.

Besides Miss Simmons Mr. Spratlin's guests included Miss Annie Lou Padgett, Miss Lillian Logan, Miss Edith Dunson, Miss Pricilla Patton, Miss Margaret Moore, Miss Mary Lucy Turner, Mr. Hugh Hackney, Mr. Eugene Harrington, Mr. Angus Perkerson, Mr. Julian Thomas, Mr. Dick Henry, Dr. Charles Hodge and Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar Gude.

Informal Bridge

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

There is no way of divorcing the coiffure and the hats as far as fashion goes.

That is the reason women watch one or the other with a good deal of interest. They realize that one governs the other. As long as the hats remain small the coiffure will do so. The woman who cannot wear a small hat or arrange her hair close to the head wonders what she can do under the present fashion to make herself look more attractive.

It is always a sign of artistic culture to like the small head, and yet this is a difficult lesson to teach. An immense headdress has always appealed to the majority; there is a better feeling of balance between the head and the rest of the body, but the real reeling should be to make the head, like the feet and hands, the tapered point, of the body.

When genius arises some time in the small coiffure came in with them. Both were accepted in moderation for a time, and now both are accepted with enthusiasm. We can recognize the drapery of Egeria in the swirling white satin gown of the girl who enters a ball room, but the idea is the same and the drapery is merely modified to suit modern convenience and environment.

The Small Coiffure.

Women anxiously await the outcome of fashion in hairdressing. There does not seem to be any set of arbiters for hairdressing and yet its changes are frequent and drastic. Once upon a time, and not so long ago, women wore every kind of hair, human and otherwise, on top their heads and held it in place with several gaudy combs. If many of these coiffures had been seen on a savage tribe, they would have been considered the result of utter ignorance; the same might be said of them in America, but the excuse was not present.

In Paris the milliners are bringing out many large hats which have tempted women into believing that the wide brim will again be in fashion, but it is hardly probable that this will happen as long as the narrow silhouette remains.

The small hat is too convenient and universally becoming to be quasily given up. According to the way we live a large hat is a nuisance. It blows in the wind, it is decidedly uncomfortable in a motor or a trolley, and it is objectionable in any public place.

Women like the small hat and therefore they will probably retain it and the small coiffure, and the latter is the more important. It makes women look more refined than they did under that fashion of heaping the head with false puffs, curls and braids. Of course, the sleekness is exaggerated today for every woman expresses her mentality, or lack of it, in the way she dresses; but at its worst it is better than a mountain of hair. Women have learned to arrange it in a becoming manner and even the hair dressers have stopped complaining, for after all they have as much to do as they desire.

Covering the Ears.

There are various ways of sweeping the hair across the forehead and some are excessively ugly. One thing is certain, however: the ears must be covered if one's face is to be at its best under the modern hat. It goes down over the ears and the hair should show below it. This is not always easy to manage for few faces can stand the long slanting line over the temples. Those who are clever are able to curve the hair sharply in at the end of the eyebrows and bring it out again in front of the ear. This line is very graceful.

What a City Must Fight

City planning, in a comprehensive sense, is only possible where the city has authority to control the character of the growth of the community. That our cities lack. They have no home rule, little control over land or buildings, and less over the problems of transit, docks, harbors, sanitation and the like.

They are generally helpless before the landowner and the builder. They cannot control the allotment of new territory, the width and style of new streets, the uses to which territory may be put.

Quips on the Suffragettes

(Washington Post.)

Recently an enterprising grocery offered cash prizes for the best epigrammatic definitions of a suffragette.

A suffragette is a woman who thinks she has been de-voted long enough.

Not satisfied with the last word, she also wants se first.

She is the corset needed to reduce the government waste.

She is a woman who needs the "poll" for her vaulting ambition.

A suffragette is a sting of beauty and a jawer forever.

A woman who would rather break windows than clean them.

A woman whose troubles are certainly not "little ones."

One who spends more time airing her views than viewing her heirs.

A woman who will spare no panes to get her rights.

A woman who would rather rock the country than the cradle.

A female creature, queer and quaint,
Who looks for to find what she aidn't.
The hen that would cackle and never lay eggs
Is the woman known as a suffragette.
We've got 'em with the figure for her,
We love her still—tie stiller the better!

Here is the real cleanser that goes after dirt all over the house and gets it with ease and speed.

Although no date has thus far been mentioned for the dance to be given by Mrs. John Astor and her son Vincent at Beechwood, in Newport, it will in all proboability take place the latter part of this month.

It will be the first formal social affair given by Mr. Astor since the death of his father, Colonel John Jacob Astor. Newport has not seen very much of this young multimillionaire, as his interests seem rather to lie in keeping in personal touch with his various business affairs and public welfare rather than with the happenings in the social world.

The Manufacturer Who Helps You

Mutual is the interest of the retailer and manufacturer.

They both live through service—the better the service the more they prosper.

Service consists not only in having what the people want, but in letting them know you have it.

Consumers are newspaper readers. Every reader of today's JOURNAL is a possible customer.

They may want the very thing you have—but if they don't know you have it—the want is unsatisfied.

The short cut from factory to consumer is through consistent, definite newspaper advertising in which the name of a reputable manufacturer and a reputable retailer is linked. Such advertising reaches the people at once.

It reaches them at the psychological moment when they want the goods.

It sells the goods, profiting manufacturer, retailer and consumer.

Merchants and manufacturers interested in local advertising for nationally distributed articles are invited to write to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York.

The Evening Story

Mother's Vacation

In the early spring, when mother began to look pale and generally fagged out, we all assured ourselves that it was due to the severe winter we had passed through, and that when spring decided that it was unnecessary to sandwich in a winter day now and then she would be herself again.

Of course, we realized that she wasn't well, and time and again cautioned her not to work so hard and overdo herself, yet if dinner happened to be a little late when father, the boys, Edith and I got home, we asked with frowns we did not try to conceal and in a most peremptory manner, "Why?" And after dinner, though we had been quite concerned at mother's scanty bird appetite, Edith did not hesitate to come to her with a messaline waist that required such careful darning before she could don it to go to the theater with Bob Shorely, nor was I at all backward in calling out to the kitchen, where mother hurried to finish the dishes, that my princess slip just had to be pressed before I could wear it under my embroidered lingerie, and that it I did it myself, tired as I was from my afternoon at the sunshine club I would be a perect rag when I appeared at the Byford's dance. Then, as usual, Tom discovered that he only had one shirt "fit to wear," though there must have been a dozen in his chiffonier and that the buttonholes in the neckband had simply been pulled to pieces, so "Just yank them together, will you, mother?" And, always in the midst of mother's flurry to get us started in proper shape, father kept calling to her to hurry up and read the paper to him.

She crumpled up on the floor very white and still.

Oh, yes, long before the doctor told us so we knew mother wasn't well, but that she could —to use Tom's expression, "be put out of business," for any length of time was something we never dreamed of, because in our estimation mother was altogether too reliable for anything like that. So we received a dreadful shock one evning when just as she finished straightening up the dining room, she gave a queer little cry and crumpled up on the floor very white and still.

The doctor told us she was simply worn out and must have a vacation without saying or knowing how that feat was to be accomplished.

Mother protested that, aside from the expense, it was impossible for her to leave home, and really, when we came down to hard facts we could not figure out how home could get along without mother. Nevertheless the doctor kept that vacation forever dangling before us, mother crept around, a pale little atom trying to do for us as usual—Edith and I had so much on our hands just then—and at last, in desperation, I sent for Aunt Margaret.

We all had the greatest respect for Aunt Margaret and Aunt Margaret's advice, although I must confess I resented her insinuation that we "put too much upon mother."

"Doctors are always so ready with their advice, Aunt Margaret," I said to her, irritably, on the night of her arrival, "we all know mother needs a vacation, but when it comes to going away from home—"

"Why should she go away from home?" Aunt Margaret's voice was most matter-of-fact.

"Why?" My exasperation was quite apparent. "Haven't I just told you the doctor insists upon a vacation?"

"Well," was the answer, "there is such a thing as a home vacation. What your mother wants is a rest cure, with a little amusement thrown in now and then. I think the latter would help immensely." For a moment Aunt Margaret's eyes appeared strangely accusing. "For years your mother has been making a drudge of herself. It's about time you people found out just all mother has to do, and if she'll put herself in my hands I'll be glad to assist in the eye opening." And in the usual domineering way Aunt Margaret proceeded to take charge of mother's vacation.

She started out by insisting upon giving up her "slumming fad," as she put it, spending the next mornings at home. Then I was informed that after my music lesson in the morning I would have to forego my sewing at the Sunshine club in the afternoon. "You will charity at home a little bit," Aunt Margaret said, grimly, and as mother seemed to fall in with her plans in a most unaccountable manner, I gave in gracefully.

"I know it seemed strange to Edith getting up in the morning when the alarm clock went off at 6 to prepare father's and the boys' breakfast, later Aunt Margaret's, her own and mine, still later carrying mother's to her bedside, because Aunt Margaret would not hear of her arising before 10 o'clock, then tidying up the nine-room apartment under constant interruptions at either the front or back doors. I know how hard it was for me to accustom myself to stay at home in the afternoons and look after the mending (goodness, there's a pile of it for six people!), finish ironing what our laundress had not time to, marketing, planning dinner and roasting myself in preparing it.

"My precious," Edith said once, "where does all the work come from? Mercy!" And on top of it all Aunt Margaret insisted upon our finishing our shirtwaists we were having mother make, saying, when we rebelled, that it was time we did such things for ourselves, that there was such a thing as "riding a willing horse to death." Really, Aunt Margaret can be quite vulgar at times!

Having settled mother's rest cure to her satisfaction, and when a little color had crept into mother's cheeks, the amusement end of the vacation was taken up, although mother said she felt so like a new creature she thought she ought to get into harness again, but Aunt Margaret was adamant, and soon Edith and I found ourselves alone the whole blessed day, mother was taken to exhibits at the art institute or a matinee full of "life and laughs," or to hear a world-famed orchestra that mother told us afterwards she had often longed to hear.

"I wouldn't give my home vacation for all the summer resorts in creation," she said one night at dinner, and seemed such a happy new little mother we couldn't keep our eyes off her. "And the beauty of it is I can stay places without wondering if it isn't time to put the vegetables on and if I hadn't better get up and rush home so dinner will be ready on the dot. Oh, it's just fine, and such a change!"

"We all looked conscious, I know; and as mother rambled on happily, so different from the pale, silent little mother we were used to, it came to me how very right Aunt Margaret had been. Mother had, indeed, needed a rest—a change.

The same thought, I feel sure, was passing through Edith's mind, for, as I saw her watching mother, of a suddenness her eyes filled with tears and she became very much occupied with her dessert. Something stirred in the boys also. In the midst of mother's glowing description of an orchestra concert Tom said: "Mother, wouldn't you like to go to the theater tomorrow night?"

Mother looked up dazed. One of our greatest actors was playing there. "Why, Tom!" she gasped, "that's lovely of you, boy, and I appreciate it, but there's some one else you want to take there, isn't there, dear?" Mother's smile was knowing.

We had finished dinner when Tom put his question, and now, before he answered mother he went and stood behind her chair. His arms went around her neck, his cheek rested on her lovely gray hair, and there was such a wonderfully new thoughtfulness on his face as he said softly: "It will be you or nobody little mother."

"It seemed to be a general eye-opening evening. Even young Jim offered to wipe the dishes for us when he saw me take the dish towel out of mother's hands. "I don't believe mother should work so hard myself," he said as he watched me had the kitchen to ourselves.

"I don't," I replied with sudden new firmness.

"And—and," very shyly, "I can't take her to any bang-up band concert or to see a swell actor, but maybe she'd like to go to a picture show with me some time, eh?"

"Tom wouldn't she, Jimmy!" I exclaimed somehow with a choke in my voice. "Ask her and watch her smile."

Neither was father to be outdone. When Jim and I left the kitchen we found he was getting ready to take mother to call on friends. Always when she had asked he had grumbled that it was too far—that, anyway, mother looked too tired. When they had started Edith, without consulting me, asked Aunt Margaret to preside at a family council. It was unanimously decided that mother's vacation should be for all time.

"We will let her do the little things," Edith summed up. "Mother wouldn't be happy otherwise, and in some way we must let her feel, without it being so, remember, that the great responsibility is still hers, but when it comes to the hard work—"

"You and I will be at the front," I put in quietly.

"And amusements?" Aunt Margaret questioned. "Don't let your mother's life become actually drab again."

Tom's head lifted importantly. "She'll see some of the best shows in town this winter, that's a cinch."

"And—" Jim looked at me with a silent appeal in his eyes. "Tain't much, but don't forget picture shows. It's the best I can do yet, but just wait a while!"

So we sat around talking it over, waiting for mother, that we might tell her of the year round vacation we had planned for her. And when she came down she found us all there, Jim included, and it is everybody watch out for himself," replied Old Man Coyote. "But don't forget that I always pay my debts, Peter Rabbit."

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Heedlessness is just the twin of thoughtlessness, you know.

And where you find them both at once there trouble's sure to grow.

Peter Rabbit didn't mean to be heedless. No, indeed! Oh my, no! Peter thought so much of Mrs. Peter, who, you remember, used to be little Miss Furzytail, that he meant to be so thoughtful that she never would have a thing to worry about. But Peter was heedless. That is the worst of a bad habit—you can try to let go of it, but it won't let go of you. So it was with Peter. He had been heedless so long that now he actually didn't know when he was heedless.

Now, when there was nobody but himself to think about, and no one to worry about him, his heedlessness didn't so much matter. If anything had happened to him then there would have been no one to suffer. But now all this was changed. You see, there was little Mrs. Peter. At first Peter had been perfectly content to stay with her in the dear old briar patch. He had led her through all his private little paths, and they had planned where they would make two or three more. He had showed her all his secret hiding places, and the shortest way to the sweet clover patch. He had pointed out where the Lone Little Path came down to the edge of the Green Forest, and so out on to the Green Meadows. He had shown her where the Crooked Little Path came over the hill. Little Mrs. Peter had been delighted with everything, and not once had she complained of being homesick for the Old Pasture.

But after a little while Peter began to get uneasy. You see, in the days before Old Man Coyote had come to live on the Green Meadows, Peter had come and gone about as he pleased. Of course he had had to watch out for old Granny and Reddy Fox, but he had had to watch out for them ever since he was a baby and so he didn't fear them very much in spite of their smartness. You see he felt quite as smart as they, and perhaps a little bit smarter. Anyway, they never had caught him and he didn't believe they ever would. So he had come and gone as he pleased and poked his nose into everybody's business and gossiped with everybody. Then he had gone away up to the Old Pasture, where he had stayed a long time, and where, as you know, he had found little Miss Furzytail, who was now little Mrs. Peter.

Of course it was quite natural that Peter should want to call on all his old friends and visit the Green Forest, the Laughing Brook, and the Smiling Pool, and probably Mrs. Peter wouldn't have worried very much if it hadn't been for the warning left by Danny Meadow Mouse. Danny had said that Old Man Coyote was more to be feared than all the Hawk family and all the Fox family together, because he was smarter and slyer than any of them. At first Peter had looked very serious, but after Danny had gone back to his own home Peter had laughed at Danny for being so afraid, and he began to go further and further away from the safe old briar patch.

One day he had ventured as far as the half way on the Crooked Little Path. He was thinking so much of a surprise he was planning for little Mrs. Peter that he forgot to watch out and almost ran right into Old Man Coyote before he saw him. There was a hungry look, such a hungry look, in Old Man Coyote's eyes that Peter, as he saw him, "Good morning," that Peter didn't even stop to be polite. He remembered that Jimmy Skunk's old house was near and he reached it just one jump ahead of Old Man Coyote.

"I thought you said that we were friends," panted Peter, as he faced Mr. Coyote sniffing at the doorway.

"So we were until I had paid my debt to you. Now that I've paid that we are even, and it is everybody watch

Auto Owners' Wants

There is hardly a thing in the line of automobile accessories that The Journal Want Ads cannot supply, especially during this month of August, when the auto season is at its height.

Used tops, shields, cushions, robes and tires, and a hundred other things are on the market now that the automobilist must have and that to buy new would cost a great deal of money.

Through a simple little Journal Want Ad, that costs but a trifle, you can get all these things at special prices and the remainder of the season will be so much less expensive to you.

If you don't believe it, just ask your friend who has tried the Want Ad method and knows; then, when he has told you of his good fortune, why, just run your Journal Want Ad right away.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 433.

Whitney Due In Atlanta During Day

Wires From Chicago Announce He Has Already Left--White Is Expected to Show Up During Saturday

Making the proverbial "diddle look a fourth-rater in fitness, Frankie Whitney, the Grand Rapids boxer, wires he has left Chicago and ought to arrive here some time Friday. Immediately he will commence tapering down his training for his ten-round bout with Charley White, the clever Chicago Hebrew, at the auditorium-armory next Wednesday night.

White is due to arrive here one day later. Thus both boys will be on the ground several days before the match and give fight bugs a chance to overlook their wares while in training. Neither boy needs an introduction to an Atlanta audience, though, as both have fought on numerous occasions.

This match is expected to be the first of a series of lightweight battles, toothsome to lovers of the manly art. The winner is scheduled to meet Jack Britton.

Farrell Makes Protest Against Players Sale

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—President Frank Farrell, of the New York American League club, will appeal to the national commission to set aside the sale of the three Cuban players of the Long Branch team of the New York and New Jersey league to the Boston Nationals. The players are Pitcher Luque; Shortstop Arragan and Outfielder Padron. According to Farrell, Owner Henriques of the Long Branch team, recently offered to sell him these players Farrell agreed to take them and the price was fixed.

According to the verbal agreement, the three players were to report to Manager Chance yesterday. Instead of the players reporting, Henriques sold them to President Gaffney, of the Braves. Farrel says he has several witnesses to the deal.

Price Ordered To Come Home

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Gilbert Price, who went in to pitch for Atlanta Thursday afternoon in the tenth inning and allowed Callahan to double, scoring the winning run, was suddenly suspended after the game by Manager Billy Smith.

Price will be sent back to Atlanta immediately. He declared after the game that Manager Smith took exception to his pitching a curve ball with the count "wo and two on Callahan. Smith denied this. Price replaced Dent with a runner on second. Callahan was a left-handed batter and supposedly weak against southpaw pitching.

Becoming peeved at Pitcher Gilbert Price because he delivered a curve ball to Dave Callahan which the Vol batsman hit safely and won Thursday's game, Manager Smith has stripped the southpaw of his uniform and ordered him home, according to reports from Nashville. Reliable reports also state that Price entered the game without being warmed up more than a minute or so and was cold and unfit to pitch.

From this distance it looked just like another squabble between Price and Manager Smith. This season there have been by far too many such bickerings and has caused the loss of more than one ball game.

Rain Stops Tourney

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 8.—Play in the annual tournament of the Northwestern Lawn Tennis association was interrupted by rain Thursday afternoon.

In the doubles (semi-finals) Waider and Edsall went down before the team work of Jaynes and Sellwagen, 6-2, 7-5, 6-2. Adams and Armstrong defeated Barr and Foehler, 6-3, 6-3.

In the women's singles Miss Gwendolin Ross, of Dallas, Tex., and Miss Marguerite Davis, of Minneapolis, each won easy victories.

PITCH LOVE IN THE HOPE OF LANDING

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 8.—The batteries in the second game of the Atlanta-Nashville series here today will be Love or Thompson for Atlanta, with Chapman receiving, and Boland and Gibson for Nashville. The weather is fair.

This is the second game of the series and the Nashville team is endeavoring to return the compliment handed them on their last trip to Atlanta when the Crackers walked off with three out of four games. They have started on their attempt at revenge by taking the first game in a ten-inning fight.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

Again the league leaders were idle while the Lookouts and Barons tied. This gives Atlanta the only changing percentage in the first division. She is in the fourth place by reason of her loss.

Marquard worked. The Giants won. A ninth-inning rally turned the trick. The fast going Chicago team romped on the Phillies.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8.—After a New Orleans teams resumed play on the local grounds this afternoon, opening their final series in this city. The Montgomery club arrived early in the afternoon and Manager Dobbs said his battery would be E. Brown and Donahue. For the locals Manager Frank contemplates using Falker and Adams. Showers fell early this morning.

MOBILE, Ala., Aug. 8.—It will either be Pitcher William Robertson with Charley Schmidt behind the bat, or Cavet, the leading Mobile hurler, in the opening game with the Memphis club here today. Manager Bernhard will work either Kissinger or Newton on the mound with Snell doing the catching.

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 8.—Chattanooga plays a double-header here this afternoon in the final series on the local field with Birmingham. The first game was started at 2:15. Weather warm and cloudy.

Batteries: First game, Chattanooga, Grimes and Street; Birmingham, Foxen and Smith.

Second game: Chattanooga, Howell and Graham; Birmingham, Prough and Clifton.

Polo Is Due Second Trial

Atlanta is all interest whenever any sporting feature is put on the board. This was most plainly demonstrated on Wednesday evening when a polo game was scheduled for Fort McPherson, thousands turning out to witness the game, which is quite new to here.

The game played here Wednesday was upon a small scale, owing to the scarcity of polo ponies, yet it gave all a good idea of just how it is played and proved quite popular. It is really a great sport as shown by the number of sporting loving people who yearly contribute thousands and millions of dollars to its support. It has made good in England and of late has become quite popular in America.

It is more than probable that another game will be staged here at some early date. Those who were back of the Wednesday game are strong for the game, and with the landing of some new polo ponies it will probably be repeated upon a larger scale.

Readers of the polo game at the fort on Wednesday there were a number of interesting athletic events in which the soldier boys of the Seventeenth Infantry starred.

Batting Figures

Wallie Smith broke back into the charmed circle in Thursday's game with the Vols. Three times he laced the ball to safe territory with his big bludgeon. Long was forced to third place in the batting list.

MILLERS OUT TO TAKE A. A. FLAG FOR FOURTH SUCCESSIVE YEAR

Minneapolis, habitual winner of the American association pennant, is threatening to snatch the fourth in a row from the Milwaukee club, which has held the lead in the race most of the season.

Jokesmiths call Joe Cantillion's Millers the "Heroes of Gettysburg" and at times wonder what old folks' home gave up its residents to make this ball club.

Minneapolis is in third place and coming fast. Seasoned by many a hard finish, the team is threatening to take advantage of a slip by the leaders and sneak into first place.

The team has won pennants because it outhit, outgeneraled and outgained its rivals. Joe Cantillon, manager and part owner, is regarded as one of the smartest minor league managers in the country.

Cantillon has a number of ex-major leaguers.

He has Jimmy Williams, for eight years with St. Louis and other smart set teams; Claude Rossman, who starred for Detroit in one world's series and who has hit over .300 ever since joining the Millers; Roy Patterson, who helped pitch Charles Comiskey's team into one world's championship; Dave Altizer, of Washington, Cleveland and Cincinnati fame, the best short fielder in the A. A. and a .300 hitter; Jim Delahanty, who was run out of the American league following the Ty Cobb player strike last year; Bill Burns, "Yip" Owen, Lee Tannehill, Wade Killifer, Fred Hunter and Fred Olmstead, all at one time or another in faster company.

NAPS GO LIKE PENNANT WINNERS UNTIL MACKMEN ARE ENCOUNTERED

After Winning Seven in Row Last Week Naps Lose Three Out of Four to Mack

We have met the enemy and they are ours, is the triumphant song that the Athletics sing as they bid Cleveland good-by with three victories out of four games played with their nearest rivals, and Connie Mack chuckles the chorus.

Last week the prides of Fighting Joe Birmingham's heart swept everything before them, winning seven straight games and winding up with a percentage of 45 points behind the Philadelphians. They had reduced a 100-point lead to 45. They had cut it half in two, and they were flying towards the top rung.

But alas, it is ever thus when a pennant contender meets weak teams. When they journey'd to the Quaker City to beard the lion in his den, they met a superior team and bit the dust. Connie Mack has stopped the Naps' rise at a critical time.

The results of the four games in detail were as follows:

Score:	R.	H.	E.
Athletics	7	11	1
Naps	1	2	2

Pitchers—Shawkey and Falkenburg, Kahler and Dashner.

Friday Booster's Day

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

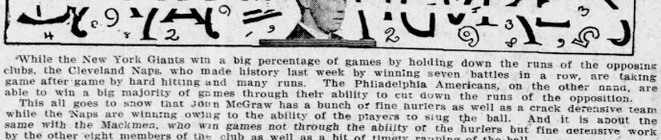
ANNISTON, Ala., Aug. 8.—A great crowd is expected to attend the game between Anniston and Newnan here Friday afternoon, as this will be Boosters' day with the local club. To help pay the expenses an extra charge will be made, and arrangements have been made to assure a snappy game by both managers.

Says Boehling Will Not Last

Frank L. Chance says Joe Boehling, Washington's sensational youngster, who has won eleven games in a row, will not last long in the big leagues.

"Four out of five balls he throws are curves," says Chance, "and he will be all through in a couple of seasons. It doesn't bater how strong he is. Nobody can pitch nothing but curves and stay up there. I've seen a lot of them break into the big leagues and curve eight out of every ten balls, and in a year or two they were back in the minors.

"Boehling is all right now, and Griffith is wise in using him all he can to climb up on the Athletics. He might as well use him while he has him, because he won't have him to use very many seasons."



"While the New York Giants win a big percentage of games by holding down the runs of the opposing clubs, the Cleveland Naps, who made history last week by winning seven battles in a row, are taking game after game by hard hitting and many runs. The Philadelphia Americans, on the other hand, are able to win a big majority of games through their ability to cut down the runs of the opposition.

This all goes to show that John McGraw has a bunch of fine batters as well as a crack defensive team while the Naps are winning owing to the ability of the players to slug the ball. And it is about the same with the Mackmen, who win games not through the ability of the hurlers but fine defensive work by the other eight members of the club as well as a bit of timely rapping of the ball.

In the work of the National league clubs last week the Giants made fewer hits than five of the other teams and yet managed to win more games than any other outfit. The McGraw club made 52 hits and 21 runs in 8 games, 6 of which were victories, while Brooklyn in 8 games made 76 hits and 36 runs and yet won only two games. This shows that the Giant flingers were going great and were able to keep the opposing teams from making any runs.

Just the reverse is true in the American league. The Naps which club won 7 straight games, made 66 hits and 39 runs against 49 hits and 1 runs for Boston, which team won 2 games and lost 5. Naps led the American league clubs when it came to hitting the ball, 66 bingles being more than was made by any other squad. Philadelphia, the leading club, made just 45 hits and 20 runs in 5 games, winning 3 and losing 2.

At fielding the Philadelphia Nationals and New York Americans are in a class all by themselves. In six games the Phillies made just three errors and led the National league clubs and in the American the New Yorks made six errors in five games and topped the crowd.

With this dope will be found a few interesting features of the work of the rival clubs during the past week. The story carries the number of games, hits, errors, runs and left on the bags.

TIMELY SWAT BY CALLAHAN COPPED GAME

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Again it took ten rounds, but at the end of the tenth the Crackers took the count.

Dave Callahan delivered the punch in the tenth when he doubled, scoring Williams and making the final score 2 to 1.

FIELD SPORTS.

The old pastime was not, however, the only treat in store for the fans. The game was staged for the Business Men's association and 10,000 tickets were sold in advance, but the rain cut the attendance down to 4,000. These were, however, treated to some good field sports.

The Crackers won both events. In a 100-yard sprint Tommy Long beat Dave Callahan. In the throwing contest, in which Smith, Manush, Chapman, Beck and Young participated, Chapman won out.

THE GAME.

The game itself was a hair-raiser. The Crackers took the lead. The Smith-Bisland-Holland combination did the work, all three getting a bingle in the second.

In the seventh the Vols began to find Dent, and Callahan got to first on a lucky hit. He was sacrificed to second and when Smith, Welchonce and Holtz played the Alphonse and Gaston with Young's pop, he scored.

Several times during the game a score was saved by brilliant work.

SOUTHERNERS WHO STARRED

Bobby Byrne: Failed to hit the pill in four swings.

Zach Wheat: Was facing the pitcher four times and never a hit came his way.

Red Smith: Tore off a single in four attempts.

Mike Balenti: Had five trials at bat and got only one bingle.

Derrill Pratt: On a temporary stump, failed to connect in five times at bat.

Johnson, of St. Louis, broke into the game again with one hit in three times up.

Tris Speaker: Had a big day, smashing three out of four on the seam.

Yeskes: Got one hit in four trials.

Dode Paskert: Did not come across with his usual hit, although he had four chances.

Jim Archer: Although he caught the whole game for Chicago he not credited with a time at bat. He scored one run.

Again West Takes Match

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—William M. Johnston, the boy lawn tennis wonder from California, won his place in the final round of the New York state championship tournament on the turf courts of the Crescent Athletic club at Bayridge. In the semi-final round Johnston defeated A. H. Man, Jr., Yale champion, 6-4, 7-5, 9-7. The point totals were 125 to 107.

Johnston revealed tremendous speed at times. His service almost approached the pace of McLoughlin.

Johnston will meet S. H. Voshell in the singles finals Saturday for the title now held by McLoughlin.

R. D. Little, former national champion, paired with C. F. Inman, won a place in the final round of the doubles along with S. H. Voshell and F. J. Baggs. The doubles championship will be decided today.

Use of Slang Being Fought

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—A protest against the use of slang in accounts of baseball games has been headed by a Chicago newspaper which will let its readers decide by a vote the future style of these articles. The plea for the use of correct English some followers of the game assert they are unable to follow the plays because of the slangy phraseology of the stories.

President B. B. Johnson, of the American league, said today he would be glad to have the question of preference of styles of reporting baseball games decided. "I have often wondered which style readers as a rule prefer," he said. "I am not ready to commit myself."

President Thomas Chivington, of the American association, prefers intelligent descriptions of games "without so much slang as many writers affect."

"I think that slangy writing has gone to seed," asserted Mr. Chivington. "In the smaller cities, especially, it seems that every baseball writer is under the impression that he must be funny in describing the game. Some of their stories are exceedingly hard to interpret. Each writer should study his own ability."

Drome Events Featured By A Long Race

All Ten Riders on Track at Same Time in 25 Mile Event, Another Invitation Race of Five Miles

The twenty-five-mile straightaway with ten riders competing is the main feature at the motordrome on Friday night. There are other big features and unless rain butts in, as has been the case for weeks past, the racing fans have in store for them some mighty good events.

Two big features, the twenty-five-mile race, open to all comers, and the big invitation five-mile, race are big attractions and there promises to be some fast spurting. All ten riders will enter the twenty-five mile event, with probably six or eight in the invitation five-mile affair. With this large number of racers in the two big events there is sure to be plenty of thrills.

Harry Glenn, the Atlanta boy who has gone so well since entering the racing game, will get a chance at George Lockner. Glenn has already won match races from Luther, Renel and Shields and has an ambition to gradually work his way up the ladder until he has trampled the colors of every racer now at the track.

Here are the events, which begin at 8:30, and the order in which they will be staged:

FIRST EVENT.
Motordrome purse (qualifying heats, one mile; final, two miles. Winners of trial heats and second man in fastest heat to qualify.) First heat, Schards, Lockner, Graves.

SECOND HEAT.
Motordrome purse, second heat, Glenn, Renal, Swartz.

THIRD EVENT.
Motordrome purse, third heat, McNeil, Lewis, Luther, Shields.

FOURTH EVENT.
Special match race, Glenn vs. Lockner. (Two-mile heats; two best in three.)

FIFTH EVENT.
Motordrome purse, final heat.

SIXTH EVENT.
Special match race Glenn vs. Lockner.

SEVENTH EVENT.
Invitation race, distance five miles, open to all comers.

EIGHTH EVENT.
Special match race, third heat, if necessary.

NINTH EVENT.
Twenty-five-mile race for championship of the south—Graves, Swartz, Shields, Lockner, Richards, Luther, Renal, McNeil, [illegible], Glenn.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

ANOTHER ONE.

We've sung that ancient song before
Anent the thrill and throb
Of how the bally pitcher feels
When he is facing Cobb,
Or J. F. Baker up at bat,
Or Wagner with a glare,
Or how the pop-eyed batsman feels
With Johnson waiting there;
But from the classic lot of things,
If I but had my pick,
I wonder how the umpire feels
When Evers comes to kick.

Should it be "When Evers comes to kick" or "When Evers come to kick?" We have wondered for a long time whether Evers was singular or plural. There are times when he has looked to be plural, and we have seen him at other times when singular was the only impressively expressive term.

Griff, as a prophet is only 50 per cent pure. In a way, he called the turn on the Athletic slump, but by some oversight forgot to include his own cast among those fluttering upon the threshold of the soapy chute.

THE SLUMP INCARNATE.

In view of the fact that seven members of the Giant array have now taken up golf in all its frenzy, it is only a matter of time before the esteemed reader will be absorbing the following details of a Giant slump, viz.:

"The Giants are now in the throes of a bad slump which has lasted for several days and which is causing Manager McGraw no end of worry. Fred Merkle is badly off in his putting, while Mathewson has developed a wicked slice which he is unable to control. Possibly the worst feature, however, is that which has befallen Tillie Shafer, who has lost entire control of his mashie and who tops almost every shot. Marquard, is also weak wit the baffing spoon, a club that used to be the strongest feature of his game. In view of these incidents, it is rumored that McGraw is contemplating a trade. It is said he is willing to exchange Fred Merkle for Jack McDermott, while Mathewson will possibly be traded upon even terms for Harry Vardon, unless he gets back upon his game with the wood."

As the Athletics have also fallen for Scotia's ancient game, why not stage a double world series melee with four-ball matches in the forenoon and baseball after lunch?

The golfing epidemic has grown so among the ball players that Jack Miller, of Pittsburg, has already complained to Fred Clarke that the baseball swing is seriously interfering with hi proper form in driving and approaching.

J. Evers has made no howling success as a manager. But then again managing a certain well-known batsman for a certain club owner is not what any one might term the essence of a cinch. Better managers than Evers might grapple with the double assignment and not slip by with the answer.

The fact that Evers isn't a managerial wonder is no knock at the peppery Trojan. Out of a vast horde employed as leaders in the last ten years we know of only four or five who have shown ability to lead, and only two who have shown both the ability to build up a new machine as well as to lead it to the front. Others may have this double ability, but we are now discussing merely from the face of the returns—of what is and not what might be.

Those Cleveland business men who offered the Naps one hundred thousand iron men in case they won the pennant felt a queer sensation operate up and down their spines when Birmingham's club drew up to within six games of the leaders. A pennant of course is a pennant, but so is $100,000 a $100,000, figure it as you will.

Ed Walsh may be through as a great pitcher, and then again he may be through as a great pitcher as Hans Wagner was through as a great shortstop, and Lajoie was through as a great second baseman back as far as 1910.

New Tennis Player May Be a Champ

W. M. JOHNSTON.

W. M. Johnston, the California wonder at tennis, eighteen years old, is the coming man, according to the experts in the game. He is in some respects much like McLoughlin, the American champion, who has just helped lift the Davis cup in hard fought contests in England. Johnston, who has red hair like McLoughlin, has great speed and daring. He has a fast, straight service. His kill is not as deadly as that of the champion, but his back court game is perhaps the best in the country. He has a great forehand drive, with a remarkable control of the ball. He has lift and "top" and drives the ball faster and straighter than Mac.

Sox and Giants To Play in South

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8.—Members of the teams of the New York Nationals and Chicago Americans who will make a tour of the world starting from Chicago October 15 will play several games in the south during October. "Ted" Sullivan, who will direct the tour, arrived here today and arranged with Manager Frank, of the local Southern association team, to play an exhibition game here October 26.

He said dates would be arranged in other southern cities.

Lajoie Won't Go in Trade

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Vice President E. S. Bernard, of the Cleveland American league club, denied the report that the Chicago, Boston and Cleveland teams are arranging a three-cornered deal which will take Second Baseman Lajoie from Cleveland. Lajoie has been one of the bulwarks of the team all season except for a few weeks when he was out of the line-up because of injuries.

CRAVATH TOPS LEAGUE AT HITTING IN TALLIES

Philadelphia Slugger Has Put 29 Men Over the Pan During the aPst Month ,and Most by Hit Route

Fence Breaker Cravath, of the Phillies, is likely to lead the National league in driving in tallies this year, as well as in manufacturing four-base wallops. During July the slugging Quaker pounded in twenty-nine runs, which was ten more than any other player in the senior organization was able to drive home. Cravath's nearest rivals for the honor of being the National league's timeliest hitter last month were his teammate, Fred Luderus, Vic Saier and Frank Schulte, of the Cubs, and Larry Doyle, of the Giants, who won the Chalmers trophy last season. Each of these men put the finishing touches to nineteen markers.

Cravath excelled for the Phillies in timely hitting last month, Schulte and Saier for the Cubs, Doyle for the Giants, Dodge for the Reds, Miller for the Pirates, Fisher and Cutshaw for the Superbas, Whitted and Konetchy for the Cardinals, and Rariden for the Braves. It seems strange to find, as was the case in the Boston club last month, a catcher proving to be his team's most valuable willow wielder in the pinches. Rariden hit well all month, performing like a demon in the first game of the double-header with the Phillies on July 7. Then he batted in five runs, making a homer with the bases filled off Earl Moore.

Rariden was not the only National leaguer who, during July, coming to bat with all the bases occupied, cleared them. Others who turned the trick were Bob Bescher, Joe Connelly and Herb Moran.

CRACKERS BEST BET SAYS FINN

Finn believes Atlanta and not Montgomery is the team he will have to beat out. The Cracker club has the money to add the strength and it is a better all-round team than Montgomery, which has depended much on the work of Pitcher Elmer Brown to carry it along, while the Crackers have several good pitchers and a good hitting team back of them.—Sporting News.

McLean Is Traded For Otis Crandall

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8.—The first move to shake up the local National League club came when President Britton announced that Catcher Larry McLean had been traded to the New York Giants for Pitcher Otis Crandall.

McLean who joined the locals this spring will leave to join the league leaders immediately. Crandall is expected to report to Manager Huggins here Thursday. Huggins announced that he had several other deals pending.

Return Race Horses For New York Races

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—August Belmont, chairman of the board of directors of the Jockey club, who returned yesterday from Europe, declares that American racing interests abroad are so confident that racing will be continued under the present modification in New York state next year, that they are planning to ship many famous horses to this country in anticipation of the season.

"I believe that the sport will be thoroughly reestablished next year," said Mr. Belmont.

"There will be no fall meeting under the auspices of the Jockey club this year, however. Racing is a thing with with which you must not surfeit the public."

Watkins Golf Champ

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Aug. 7.—Garner Watkins, the local lad who won the distinction of driving the longest ball at the southern golf tournament at Montgomery, is the new golf champion of the Chattanooga Golf and Country club. Watkins won the title by defeating Ernest Martin in the finals 6 up. He met the best golfers of the local club in winning his title.

JACKSON AFTER MATCH WITH GOOD BOXER

Mike Jackson, a local pug, under the management of C. P. Stephens, of 33 Gilmer street, wants a match badly. Mike wants to go into the square before a local audience and meet somebody his weight, which is 158 pounds.

Mike is a husky fellow who is in good shape and would make a worthy opponent for some local middleweight aspirants.

Flynn Sure Of Knockout

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—"Gunboat" Smith, of California, and Jim Flynn, of Colorado, both held themselves to be in good condition today for their ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden tonight. The Pueblo fireman is reported a favorite, and Flynn himself has made a public statement that he expects to score a knockout inside of five rounds, "providing Smith does not make a foot race of it."

The Californian, however, is ten years younger than Flynn, three inches taller, and nearly ten pounds heavier, and is known as a heavy hitter, and if clean breaks in the clinches are insisted upon, Flynn may be at a disadvantage, for he is strictly an infighter. Smith has beaten all comers with the exception of Jim Barry, who defeated him in nine rounds, three years ago.

Governor Rewards an Old Team Mate

(By Associated Press.)

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 8.—Governor Tener today gave a substantial reward to a comrade of his old baseball days when he appointed George Wood, once a member of the Philadelphia National league team outfield as a marshal public service at a salary of $2,000 a year.

The two have been friends since their ball playing days in the course of which both were with the Chicago Nationals on a trip around the world.

DRY WEATHER IN TEXAS CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed Unchanged to 11 Points Up From Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—The failure of the weather map to show rain in the southwest, and claims that a modification of the Pacific coast barometer ordered shortly after the map was issued, caused an opening advance of 9 to 15 points in the cotton market. Better cables contributed to the upward movement but reports of rain at Galveston were received shortly after the call and the market closed off with new crop positions only a point or two above last night. Aggrest bid the advance at the start but was retroactively easy later, selling about 5 points lower.

Later weather advices showed no change in the generally dry and hot conditions in the southwest, but the market remained nervous with prices at midday about 4 points lower to 2 net higher.

Estimated receipts today 3,000 bales.

The market was firmer during the early afternoon on the detailed weather reports showing more dry and hot weather in the west of the southwest. Demand seemed to be a little more aggressive than for some days past and new crop positions sold about 13 to 15 points net higher.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8.—Cotton futures opened steady at an advance of 5 to 7 points on good cables and continued dry weather in the western belt of the cotton belt. Rains were reported in the eastern half of the belt but these were regarded as an especially strong bearish feature. After the initial bulge there was little buying by commission houses and the trading months were up 5 to 8 points over yesterday's close. At this level private telegrams from Galveston reported rain there and this was followed by news that rains might be working into Texas from the Gulf. Buying was quite active at the end of the first half hour of business prices were unchanged to 2 points up compared with the previous finish of yesterday.

The market had little selling power at any time during the day and moderate buying served to hold it up. Telegrams from western sections of the belt were almost uniformly unfavorable, some accounts telling of shedding on an extensive scale and others of shifting plants.

The continued light movement of new cotton also favorably affected the market for the time. At noon the market was quiet at an advance of 5 to 7 points over the last figures of yesterday.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: After making full allowance for the fact that cotton in a dry weather plant and thrives on sunshine the talent is forced to admit that drouth in parts of Oklahoma and Texas, accompanied by such high temperatures as those of yesterday, is injuring the crop every day. However, most traders on the short side have learned not to accept damage reports at face value, and when, in the face of a fair forecast for the west, the barometer lines forecast low pressure off the Gulf of Mexico, the talent promptly exploited storm formation as an instrument of rain and weather students on the floor helped by asserting that extremely hot weather in Oklahoma is simply a forerunner of rain and lower temperatures. The bull element worked down after the bulge of Wednesday. Meanwhile, there is not much talent at present coursing reports, though Liverpool managed to sell 10,000 bales on the spot yesterday. At this time any lack of evidence of trade activity is apt to tell on the raw cotton market because of such lack, especially as the actual makes a poor showing when contrasted with the keen demand in evidence for the finished product.

The market is very dull and very narrow, speculation has been reduced to a minimum and neither talent or trade is in a humor to display aggressiveness. Private cables at Galveston and Houston indicate that the new crop market is opening up.

Map shows rainy or cloudy to cloudy eastern half belt and south Texas, generally fair elsewhere, general showers in eastern half belt; hot in extreme western half. Map not complete, but can say forecasts for thunderstorms in Gulf of Mexico, prospects showers nearly entire belt. Indications are still for some rain coming west over Sunday.—Keffer.

Forecast:

Louisiana: Tonight and Saturday, generally cloudy; showers in southeast portion tonight or Saturday; light winds on the coast.

Arkansas, Oklahoma and West Texas: Tonight and Saturday, generally fair.

East Texas: Tonight and Saturday generally fair; light southerly winds on the coast.

Georgia: North Georgia and Carolinas, Florida and Alabama: Occasional showers tonight and Saturday.

Kentucky: Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in west portion.

Tennessee: Fair in west, showers in east portion tonight or Saturday; warmer in northeast portion tonight.

Mississippi: Fair except showers extreme south tonight; Saturday probably fair.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: January, 11.08; March, 11.18; August, 11.67; the first half hour of business prices were unchanged to 2 points up compared with the last quotations of yesterday.

The market had little selling power at any time during the day and moderate buying served to hold it up. Telegrams from western sections of the belt were almost uniformly unfavorable, some accounts telling of shedding on an extensive scale and others of shifting plants.

The continued light movement of new cotton also favorably affected the market for the time. At noon the market was quiet at an advance of 5 to 7 points over the last figures of yesterday.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Canadian Pacific, Beet Sugar, and Copper Up—Reading and Atchison Off

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Stocks were quite general at the opening of today's stock market, the feature being Wabash preferred, which had been forced to admit that drouth in parts of Oklahoma and Texas, accompanied by such high temperatures as those of yesterday, is injuring the crop every day. However, most traders on the short side have learned not to accept damage reports at face value, and when, in the face of a fair forecast for the west, the barometer lines forecast low pressure off the Gulf of Mexico, the talent promptly exploited storm formation as an instrument of rain and weather students on the floor helped by asserting that extremely hot weather in Oklahoma is simply a forerunner of rain and lower temperatures. The bull element worked down after the bulge of Wednesday. Meanwhile, there is not much talent at present coursing reports, though Liverpool managed to sell 10,000 bales on the spot yesterday. At this time any lack of evidence of trade activity is apt to tell on the raw cotton market because of such lack, especially as the actual makes a poor showing when contrasted with the keen demand in evidence for the finished product.

The market is very dull and very narrow, speculation has been reduced to a minimum and neither talent or trade is in a humor to display aggressiveness. Private cables at Galveston and Houston indicate that the new crop market is opening up.

Map shows rainy or cloudy to cloudy eastern half belt and south Texas, generally fair elsewhere, general showers in eastern half belt; hot in extreme western half. Map not complete, but can say forecasts for thunderstorms in Gulf of Mexico, prospects showers nearly entire belt. Indications are still for some rain coming west over Sunday.—Keffer.

Forecast:

Louisiana: Tonight and Saturday, generally cloudy; showers in southeast portion tonight or Saturday; light winds on the coast.

Arkansas, Oklahoma and West Texas: Tonight and Saturday, generally fair.

East Texas: Tonight and Saturday generally fair; light southerly winds on the coast.

Georgia: North Georgia and Carolinas, Florida and Alabama: Occasional showers tonight and Saturday.

Kentucky: Fair tonight and Saturday; warmer in west portion.

Tennessee: Fair in west, showers in east portion tonight or Saturday; warmer in northeast portion tonight.

Mississippi: Fair except showers extreme south tonight; Saturday probably fair.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: January, 11.08; March, 11.18; August, 11.67; the first half hour of business prices were unchanged to 2 points up compared with the last quotations of yesterday.

The market had little selling power at any time during the day and moderate buying served to hold it up. Telegrams from western sections of the belt were almost uniformly unfavorable, some accounts telling of shedding on an extensive scale and others of shifting plants.

The continued light movement of new cotton also favorably affected the market for the time. At noon the market was quiet at an advance of 5 to 7 points over the last figures of yesterday.

Atlanta Live Stock

(By W. H. White, Jr., of the White Provision Company.)

Good to choice steers, 1,000 to 1,200 lbs., $5.50 to $6.50.

Good steers, 800 to 1,000 lbs., $5.25 to $6.00.

Medium to good steers, 700 to 850 lbs., $5.00 to $5.50.

Medium to choice beef cows, 80 to 900 lbs., $4.50 to $5.50.

Medium to good cows, 700 to 800 lbs., $4.00 to $4.50.

Good to choice heifers, 750 to 850 lbs., $5.00 to $5.50.

Medium to good heifers, 650 to 750 lbs., $4.00 to $4.75.

The above represents ruling prices of good quality of beef cattle. Inferior grades and dairy types selling.

Medium to common steers, if fat, 800 to 900 lbs., $4.00 to $4.75.

Medium to common cows, if fat, 700 to 800 lbs., $3.50 to $4.25.

Mixed common, 900 to 500 lbs., 3.00 to $3.75.

Good butcher bulls, $3.75 to $4.00.

Prime hogs, 10 to 200 lbs., $8.80 to $9.00.

Good butcher hogs, 140 to 160 lbs., $8.60 to $8.80.

Good butcher pigs, 100 to 140 lbs., $8.25 to $8.50.

Light pigs, 80 to 100 lbs., $8.00 to $8.25.

Heavy hogs and mixed lots, $7.50 to $8.00.

Above quotations apply to corn-fed hogs, must send corn fattened 7c to 11c under.

Cattle receipts were light on the market this week than usual. Several loads of Tennessee steers were on the market, but only a few fat steers shipped from Warrenor. These were of fine quality and sold readily. Shippers expect to fix the Atlanta market at better than 7c the coming week. There were some two-year-old steers and fat, and the quality was not considered too high for the quality. This only goes to show that Atlanta is the other market that will pay good prices for good stuff. Tennessee steers are coming in after the grass and feed are rolled steady. There are not so many half-fat cattle coming now, but there are enough to supply the demand for this class. Prices vary according to flesh and condition.

Sheep and lambs are in good demand and to a shade lower.

Hogs continue scarce. Market steady and active.

THE WEATHER.

Atlanta and vicinity: Showers tonight or Saturday.

Georgia and Alabama: Occasional showers tonight or Saturday.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Numerous local showers and thunderstorms occurred in the eastern portion of the cotton belt during the past twenty-four hours. The rain areas extended northward over eastern Tennessee into the Ohio Valley and the lake region, Chicago reporting 1.38 inches. Rains also fell along the mountain section of the country from the lakes to Montana under the influence of a moderate to severe atmospheric pressure central north of the Dakotas.

Over most of the remainder of the country, the middle and New England states, and the Rocky Mountain and plateau regions, as well as the western slope, fair weather prevailed. The weather remains fair and rather warm. Temperatures of 100 degrees or above occurred at Dodge City, Kansas City, Oklahoma and Palestine.

Conditions are favorable for local showers in showers at Atlanta and vicinity tonight or Saturday.

CORN CONDITION SHOWS DETERIORATION IN JULY

Corn Condition 75.8, Compared With 86.9 Last Month, Winter Wheat 93.7

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—With preliminary estimates of the bumper wheat crop and the size of the crop of rye, the department of agriculture's government report on the July crop report announced figures giving also the indicated yields, interested from conditions in the area, of the probable total production of corn, spring wheat, oats, barley, buckwheat, potatoes, tobacco, flax, rice, hay, sugar and the same time they announced the condition of these crops on August 1 and the date of harvest), stocks of oats and barley in farmers' hands on August 1 and the indicated acre yield of the crops.

Details of reports made on each crop follow:

Corn—Condition 75.8 per cent of a normal, compared with 86.9 per cent on July 1 1913; 80.0 per cent on August 1, 1912 and 82.2 per cent, the average for the past ten years on August 1. Area planted 106,454,000 acres, or 99.88 per cent of last year's acreage. Indicated yield 26.7 bushels per acre, compared with 29.2 bushels last year and 26.5 bushels, the average for the past five years. Estimated production, 2,672,000,000 bushels, compared with 3,124,746,000 bushels last year; 2,531,488,000 bushels in 1910, and 2,552,000,000 bushels in 1909.

Winter Wheat—It is preliminarily estimated the yield per acre of winter wheat is 16.5 bushels, compared with 15.9 bushels in 1912 and 15.2 bushels the average for the last five years. On the basis of these figures, 350,348,000 it is estimated preliminarily the total production of winter wheat. This is 93.7 per cent compared with 399,919,000 bushels harvested in 1912, 550,000,000 bushels in 1911, 434,142,000 bushels in 1910, and 665,000,000 bushels in 1909. The quality of winter wheat is 93.7 per cent compared with 90.7 last year, 87.4 per cent in 1911 and 92.3 per cent the five-year average.

Spring Wheat—Conditions, 74.1 per cent, of a normal, compared with 90.4 per cent last year and 90.4 per cent, the average for the past ten years. Area planted, 19,267,000 acres, compared with 17,2 last year, 19.4 bushels in 1911, 14.5 bushels, and average yield per acre for the past five years. On the planted area, 18,863,000 acres, it is estimated the total production will be 370,348,000 bushels last year, 190,682,000 bushels in 1911, 209,000,000 bushels in 1910, and 330,348,000 bushels in 1909.

All Wheat—Indicated yield, 150 bushels per acre, compared with 15.9 bushels last year and 14.5 bushels the five-year average. Area of wheat planted, 49,601,000 acres or 108.3 per cent of last year's acreage. Total indicated spring wheat production will be 744,000,000 bushels, compared with 767,267,000 bushels harvested in 1912, 638,000 bushels in 1911, 635,121,000 bushels in 1910, and 683,000,000 bushels in 1909.

Oats—Condition 85.5 per cent, of a normal compared with 76.3 per cent last month, 90.3 per cent last year, and 87.1 per cent the average condition for the past ten years. Indicated yield per acre 34.6 bushels, compared with 37.4 bushels last year, and 29.7 bushels, the average for the past five years. On the planted area, 38,341,000 acres, it is estimated the total production of oats, interrupted from condition reports, will be 1,325,000,000 bushels, compared with 1,418,337,000 bushels last year, 922,288,000 bushels in 1911, 1,007,000,000 bushels in 1910, and 1,007,129,000 bushels in 1909. The amount of oats remaining on farms August 1 is estimated at about 100,000,000 bushels, compared with 334,872,000 bushels last year, 67,793,000 bushels in 1911 and 98,000,000 bushels in 1910.

Barley—Condition, 74.9 per cent of a normal, compared with 76.8 per cent last month, 91 per cent last year, and 87.9 per cent the average for the past ten years. Indicated yield per acre 24.5 bushels, compared with 29.7 bushels last year, and 24.5 bushels, the average for the past five years. On the planted area, 7,355,000 acres, it is estimated the total production of barley, interested from condition reports, will be 180,000,000 bushels, compared with 233,824,000 bushels last year, 160,240,000 bushels in 1911, 173,832,000 bushels in 1910, and 173,

MERCHANTS DISCUSS STORE MANAGEMENT AT SESSION FRIDAY

Closing Meeting of First Week of Convention Brings Spirited Interchange of Opinions on Shop Keeping

EXPERTS GIVE VIEWS ON CREDITS AND ACCOUNTING

Local Merchants' Associations Conceded to Be the One Great Means of Bettering Mercantile Conditions

The third and last formal session of the first week of the Southern Merchants' convention was called to order by President Bolling H. Jones at 10 o'clock Friday morning and brought forth interesting comments on southern merchandising presented by men engaged in many different occupations.

W. S. Witham, of Atlanta, head of a chain of banks through the southeast, was introduced by President Bolling H. Jones and spoke on the subject of "Merchandising as Seen from the Bankers' Viewpoint."

The banker has just returned from Europe and gave the audience some interesting comments on his trip, especially London.

Speaking of the tendency of European business conditions, he said:

"It is not the aristocracy of brains, the aristocracy of blood or the aristocracy of money that counts but the aristocracy of service."

Turning to conditions confronting merchants in the south, he said the merchants must recognize that the farmers' problems are his problems and study them.

On the farmers as a class financially, he said that the hundred banks with which he is connected in a million transactions with farmers had lost as little as six bonds.

He said there is one of six banking plans in Europe which if adopted in Georgia might allow the farmers to get all the money they want at 4 and 5 per cent.

Mr. Witham also urged the need of commercial education in Georgia.

As had already been planned the action next taken by the meeting was the appointment of committees to formulate a plan for organization of the retailers. J. W. Vaughn, R. O. Crouch, H. E. Choate, W. A. Brannen, M. S. Carey and Bernard Suttler were named on this committee.

President Bolling H. Jones made a brief talk on the subject of store management.

"You must teach your salesmen not to rely on their memory," was a point he emphasized.

"The loss coming from goods which clerks forget to charge often means the difference between success and failure. You must make your clerks be systematic."

Mr. Jones also urged the merchants to stand behind their clerks, encourage them and show appreciation of their interest in the business.

C. E. Pollard, of the American Audit company, discussed the subject of "Proper accounting methods as a prime factor in the success of a business.

"Too many merchants," said he, "count their gross profits as profits without figuring the many costs between buying and selling." He gave some practical points on keeping cost records.

He told the merchants they should keep their accounts more closely divided into periods and said each period should take care of itself.

L. C. Upshaw, of Douglasville, Ga., next spoke on credits and collections.

"The bane of you supply men of the south today is making credit too cheap to the public," said he.

"If we can just get the proper local associations we can do much to remedy this. With merchants in every community closely banded to protect themselves against the poor credit customers thousands of dollars can be saved and the occasional shocking failures which demoralize an entire community will be rarer."

Resolutions on matters which had been before the convention drafted in committee meeting were then presented and voted on.

It was resolved that the diversification of crops can sae the credit situation for southern merchants and farmers and that the merchants urge this on the farmers of their community and even consider very carefully before granting credit to the farmer who raises only cotton.

A resolution was adopted suggesting the retailers help form local clubs for encouraging the raising of more cattle and hogs.

It was resolved to support the work of the Retail Merchants' association in Georgia.

After the report of the resolutions committee, H. E. Choate, of Atlanta, spoke on fire insurance for the retail merchant.

He told the merchants the necessity of protecting themselves against fire by insurance and of also seeing that their local authorities enforced regulations for prevention of fires.

C. W. McClure, in speaking of the need of local organization of merchants in every town said it should naturally follow the forming of the general association.

"Organize and invite all of your customers in once or twice a year," said he, "to meet with you and discuss these problems as we wholesale merchants of Atlanta have invited you, our customers, here to discuss them with us.

"Call your customers in an give them a good time, give them barbecues and

OH, THAT STREET CAR RIDE AND RECEPTION AT PIEDMONT CLUB!

False Start to River and Rainstorm at One Time Promised Too Much Water but Happily the Promise Did Not Materialize–Delegates Spend Enjoyable Afternoon Outing and Entertainment

Among the gayest of the gay festivities incident to the Merchants' convention was the reception tendered the visitors at the Piedmont Driving club Thursday afternoon and the car ride about the city that preceded it.

From all quarters of the city the delegates flocked to the starting place in front of the Equitable building at the corner of North Pryor street, where they found the lines of cars waiting for them. They trooped aboard like happy school children and were off for the ride in as gleeful frame of mind as youngsters off for a picnic.

One section of the cars was in command of President Bolling H. Jones and Will Percy, while the other was in charge of Secretary H. T. Moore. Mr. Moore's detachment through a misunderstanding of the car inspector was sent out the river car line, but Mr. Moore soon had the cars right about face and were at the Driving club long before the other detachment arrived from their trip out Buckhead way.

The rain storm came up just as the delegates arrived at the club, but this did not damage their ardor. It was the jolliest of jolly crowds that filled the club rooms and verandas and enjoyed the refreshments that had been prepared.

The start to the river and the rain later at one time gave the appearance that the occasion would be attended by too much water. But the wrong start was quickly corrected and the rain soon ceased when the club was reached, and thereafter water did not play a very prominent part in the celebration.

The delegates returned from the club after having enjoyed every minute of the afternoon.

VAUGHAN IS NEW HEAD MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Elected Temporary President at Friday's Session–Permanent Organization in Feb.

Temporary organization of the southern merchants was formed at Friday's session of the convention, with the following officers; J. W. Vaughan, president; R. O. Crouch, vice president; T. E. Smith, second vice president; H. P. Moore, secretary and treasurer.

Charter and by-laws will be drawn by these officers, constituting the permanent organization committee to be passed on in February, when permanent organization will be formed at a general meeting to be held in Atlanta.

J. W. Vaughan, chairman of the committee on organization, made the report which reported in the formation of the temporary organization. He suggested that the permanent body be known as the Southern States Association of Merchants.

other entertainments. Then arouse their enthusiasm for the proper attention, to these subjects of diversified crops, home-raised cattle ,etc," said Mr. McClure.

The meeting closed with the plan of organization of southern merchants launched, with the resolve of all who had attended to aid in their home communities the important movements which had been discussed by the speakers during the several days' session, and the future organization of many local associations throughout the south to work in harmony with the general body.

CONVENTION ECHOES

Doings and Sayings of the Great Gathering

"Our closing-out sale has been the biggest kind of a success," said A. L. Mitcham, of the Ward-Truitt company, Friday morning. "We have had a constant stream of buyers and all the house men and the travelers have been on a steady rush since our sale opened last Monday."

P. H. Jeter, southwest Georgia traveler for John Silvey & Co., has had one of the biggest week's business he ever enjoyed during the various merchants' conventions that have been held in Atlanta. Southwest Georgia has a fine crop and the merchants are buying splendid stocks of fall goods.

Visitors and buyers at the Ward-Truitt company Friday were F. L. McMahan, of Tallapoosa, Ga.; L. R. Smith, of Blakely, Ga.; Mr. Johnson, of Jones, Adams & Johnson, Thomaston, Ga.; W. S. Collins, of Villa Rica, Ga.

C. L. Brock, buyer of F. H. Redwine company, of Newnan, Ga., was a buyer at the John Silvey company Friday. H. T. Burton, traveler for the John Silvey company, was found very busy helping Mr. Brock make his selections.

Among the visitors and buyers at John Silvey company's Friday were P. R. Gleton, of Cordele, Ga.; F. F. Harrell, of Brookfield, Ga.; T. L. Meyers, of Rhine, Ga.; S. N. Reid, of Hogansville, Ga.; M. H. Plunkett, of Conyers, Ga.; J. T. Sowell, of McDonough, Ga.

One of the big merchants here for the convention is D. L. Adams from West Point, Ga. Mr. Adams is a heavy buyer from Atlanta wholesalers and is keeping up his reputation in that line this season.

J. F. Welch, of Dallas, Ga., paid the convention a hurried visit Thursday. He will return next week and spend several days enjoying the festivities.

C. M. Richardson, of Richland, Ga., is one o fthe convention visitors who is here on both pleasure and business.

At the M. C. Kiser company Thursday was declared the best day yet on house trade, and this means there was a big business done, as every day this week has been a very active one at the Shield Brand company's place.

J. J. Elder, a merchant from Oxford, Ala., is a strong advocate of the move for legislation against passing fraudulent checks and says the experience of Alabama merchants shows such a law is needed in that state, too.

SILVEY CO. TAKES GUESTS TO RECEPTION IN AUTO

The John Silvey company conveyed seevnty-five of its convention guests to the reception at the Piedmont Driving club Thursday afternoon in a big automobile truck. The party gathered in front of the Silvey building at 3:30 o'clock and after being photographed were whirled out Peachtree street to the Piedmont club. This company will take a party of guests in this manner to the barbecue at Ponce de Leon springs next Wednesday.

BIG DOINGS ARE SCHEDULED NEXT WEEK

Varied Entertainments Will Mark Brilliant Close of Sou. Merchants' Convention

With the ending of the formal program Friday, interest in the convention now centers in the big doings scheduled for next week. The crowds have been large for the past five days, but the first week attendance is expected to be doubled during the second week.

Next week is the great entertainment week. No speaking sessions are on the program. Instead there are listed many pleasure features of unusual interest and merit.

On Monday night, August 11, the entire Forsyth theater will be turned over to the visitors and a splendid bill of vaudeville entertainment is booked for the occasion.

The big barbecue and Brunswick stew will take place at Ponce de Leon spring on Wednesday, August 13, and J. R. Little and R. K. Rambo, composing the barbecue committee, have completed their arrangements and promise a great occasion.

The delegates will attend the baseball game between Atlanta and Chattanooga at Ponce de Leon park Friday afternoon, August 15, bringing to a close the program for the two weeks.

Minister Says Man Can Not Withstand Modern Dress Lure

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 8.—Speaking before the conference of the Seventh Day Adventists now in session here, Rev. I. N. Evans, president, said yesterday that if he were judge of a court and a devotee to modern feminine dress came in to complain against a young man, he would charge the girl herself with contributing to the delinquency of the man, and let the latter go free.

He would reverse the usual charge in such cases, he said, because women have adopted the slit skirt and the "X-ray" dress deliberately for the purpose of luring men.

DRUG INSPECTOR BILL IS KILLED BY HOUSE

The house on Thursday afternoon killed the drug inspector measure by a vote of 85 to 71.

This measure was to provide a state drug inspector whose business it would be to see that druggists observed strictly the law affecting the sale of narcotics.

The inspector was not to be paid by the state but out of a fund to be provided by the druggists.

Baltimore Smoke Causes Aviator To Lose Race With Fast Train

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—C. Murvin Wood, the American aviator, who began a non-stop race with a railroad train from New York to Washington at 4:30 a. m. for the American duration, distance and speed record, lost his way and was forced to land at Gaithersburg, Md., at 9 o'clock, twenty-three miles from his goal.

He had lost his way while over Baltimore because of heavy smoke clouds and was forced to land because of engine trouble. He came down from a height of 7,000 feet on a farm on the Gaithersburg pike. His monoplane was unharmed.

When he landed Wood got to the nearest telephone and called up Washington to ask that his mechanic be sent to Gaithersburg to put his engine in condition to resume his flight to Fort Myer.

"I lost my way at Baltimore," he said, "the smoke was so thick. I was about 7,000 feet over the city and then came down to 4,000 feet. Then my motor stopped and I had to land. I'll resume the flight as soon as my motor can be put in condition.

"I passed Baltimore away ahead of the train, then I ran over smoke clouds that were so heavy I could not see anything. It was evident that I was entirely off my course and then my engine stopped. So I came down."

Wood set out from Hempstead Plains on Long Island at 4:36 a. m. today in a monoplane to race with a Pennsylvania railroad train which left Jersey City at 4:30 a. m., hoping to overcome the handicap of thirty miles in distance and six minutes in time which the train had.

After a wide circle over the neighboring country, Wood turned westward, directly over Coney Island, and was soon lost to sight in the fog.

At New Brunswick, N. J., where he expected first to touch the actual course of the train, he was reported at 5:34, twenty minutes after the train had passed. He was flying so high that scarcely could be seen. The train was due in Washington, 225 miles away, at 9:30.

Wood hoped to land on government aviation grounds at Fort Meyer, near Washington, ahead of the train, on board which are several army officers, and there to demonstrate the efficiency of the military monoplane. At present the government does not own a monoplane, biplanes being used exclusively in the army and navy aviation schools.

Wood planned to return to Hempstead by the air route this afternoon. Incidentally, he hoped to break four American records, those for speed, distance in a continuous flight, duration, and total mileage between sunrise and sunset.

The American distance record for continuous flight was made last April by Lieutenant Thomas Dewitt Milling, of the United States army, who flew 224 miles in Texas in four hours and twenty-two minutes.

CLAIMS NON-STOP RECORD.

Wood claimed to have broken the American non-stop record between two points.

"I had engine trouble all the way," wrote Wood in his statement, "which made it very hard to keep a desirable altitude. The best altitude during the flight was made at Havre de Grace, Md., when I reached 7,350 feet. Anyway, I have broken the American non-stop record between two points and only hard luck has prevented me from breaking the records I started out to capture."

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

AUGUST 9

Born on this date, you should wear a ruby or diamond. Your governing planet is the sun and the Zodiacal sign "Leo."

This is an excellent sign to be born under. You are given force, magnetic power, a nimble mind and power to command.

It also gives faults, but not vices. Impatience, a hastiness of judgment and quick temper are the faults given by Leo. Leo people should listen to their inner guidance and follow it implicitly.

Women born on this date are susceptible to flattery, are apt to be flirts and yet when in their own homes, make excellent wives and mothers.

One of this birthdate are generous to a fault. Their inner judgment can take pride in seeing their own family well dressed and occupying a high social position.

Seamstresses, stenographers, teachers, should watch The Journal Want Ads for the coming week, as new positions will be found through them, and advantageous change of location.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For charges, ask that they be read for, or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Summer Colds Among Chickens

AT THIS season of the year nearly everyone who has chickens will be troubled more or less with what is known as summer colds among their chickens, or a mild form of roup. This is one thing that comes nearly every season, but is not serious if managed properly, and can be easily corrected and not retard the growth of young chickens but very little. However, it is a trying time on them and unless precautions are used will develop into roup and give you lots of trouble later. Summer colds are caused from various things. Mostly from chickens being crowded in close houses and becoming too hot during the night and getting out in the damp atmosphere early in the morning. This makes them very easy to catch cold. If it was possible it would be far better to roost them out in the open air through the entire summer, only protected by a shelter overhead. I am a great believer in fresh air for both old and young chickens, people and live stock, and I am confident there would be far less sickness and disease if such was practiced more than it is. The open front poultry houses have been a wise step in the right direction by getting them into general use and are helping to correct many evils that the poultryman has heretofore confronted, and during the summer months if it was possible to have the poultry houses so that they are not closed at all it would even be far better than to roost the chickens indoors. However, this has not been solved yet, but eventually will be.

Chickens, that roost out in the open air and in fresh air according to the old way of nature, such a thing as roup or colds was unheard of when chickens were raised by this method.

Colds or roup usually start from a change in sleeping quarters, especially at a time when young, growing chicks are in a weakened condition by changing their coat of feathers, which at five times from the time they are hatched until they get their mature coat on. It is a bad idea to change the sleeping quarters of young chicks, especially a sudden change, until after cool weather has come and they have fully recovered their mature coat of feathers. Many young chickens contract colds that develop into roup by changing them from one place to another either in a hot house or in one that is not sufficiently ventilated or one with draughts blowing on them, and many troubles come from this one cause. Therefore, you should be very careful in this respect and in moving or changing the sleeping quarters of the young chicks at this season of the year see that they are not crowded or that the sleeping quarters are similar in temperature to the place that they have been changed from.

When colds first appear in your flock it is a good idea to begin at once using some good antiseptic in the drinking water to keep the trouble from spreading, and to begin feeding in the soft feed once a day some good condition powders or tonic of some kind, and above all things young growing chicks shuld be fed mostly on whole grain or a grain food of some kind. It should be fed in a trough and not on the ground. They need strength at this time and a rich feed is the most strength and the feed will stay in the chickens' system longer if fed in the shape of whole grain rather than too much soft feed. Nearly all fowls or chickens have more or less trouble with this summer cold and they should be watched very closely at this season of the year and treated immediately doctored, or every precaution used as soon as trouble appears. It is not a good idea to attempt to doctor every chicken or to use stringent methods to cure at once this trouble, because you are liable to stop the discharge at the nostrils and throw the chickens' systems into catarrh or tuberculosis which will make them dwindle away or go light or quit growing as it is called. As a rule they will recover and outgrow this trouble with plenty of good feed and enough antiseptic in the drinking water to keep the water from becoming too poisonous, and two much contaminated by the sick ones drinking it. A little permanganate of potash, one-half grain to one gallon of water, Conkey's Roup Cure or any other good antiseptic is sufficient and suitable for Roup Cure or any other good antiseptic is sufficient and suitable for this purpose and will usually keep it in check until the chick outgrows it far better than to have to catch and doctor every chicken, which should not be done. The careful and alert poultryman can detect these troubles and correct them as soon as possible and save thousands of these little precautions are not looked after.

Yours very truly,

Southern Cotton Oil Co. Sells to Swift & Co. Its East Point Plant for $157,500—Judge Newman Permits A. B. & A. Receivers to Lease Land to Walker Street Development Concern — Masons Annuity Alterations

Papers went to record Thursday conveying from the Southern Cotton Oil company to Swift & Co. the former's cotton oil mill at East Point. The consideration was $157,500.

The conveyance of course includes the plant, machinery and other equipment of the mill. The sellers still have their largest mill at Fort McPherson.

The East Point plant is on 13.55 acres fronting on the Central of Georgia railthe plant of the Gate City Oil company.

The Southern Cotton Oil company has about eighty plants through the south.

Judge Newman, of the federal court, has signed an important order affecting the Walker street industrial development.

This order permits the receivers of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad to lease for the Georgia Terminal company, a holding company of the railroad, to the Investment Company of the South, which is behind the Walker street development. A large tonnage on Nelson street, which will become a part of the development and be covered with buildings.

REAL HOME PLACES.

Every REAL HOME-SEEKER (by that we mean a person who is not satisfied with a house on a bare lot 50x100 feet, which is the average city lot), who wants a comfortable house on a big, nicely shaded lot, say 100x200 feet in size, one that is large enough for a nice garden, plenty of room for a cow, chickens, or anything in the world the owner wants.

As a rule this is what the REAL HOME-SEEKER wants.

He finds this sort of a place once in a while. It is usually a long way out from town and the price is such, as a rule, that decides this problem for him; that is—sends him back to his 50x100 feet lot.

We have several places that would please this sort of person. Just off Stewart avenue, only 15 minutes' ride from town, convenient to both Stewart avenue and West End car lines, new city schools and large city park, we have a new six-room cottage, on lot 50x200. The lot next to it is 50x200, which can be bought for $900; the bungalow for $3,750, on reasonable terms. This gives you no nice a home place as you could wish for, 100x200 feet in size, for about $4,500.

We also offer, just off East Lake drive, on the South Decatur car line, only 20 minutes' ride from town, a new 7-room bungalow, situated on a lot 100x200 feet. This can be bought for $3,000; reasonable terms.

If you want a REAL HOME place in the right section, at the right price, the above places would interest you.

A. B & A. the key to the Walker street development. It begins 134 feet from Mangum street and runs 257 feet on Nelson street and an irregular depth.

The term of the lease will be for fifty years, and will begin six months after the tracks are laid through the rear of the Walker street property. The lessees agree to pay $2,500 for the first ten years; $3,000 for the next and $3,500 for the next ten years, and $4,000 for the remaining twenty years, the lessees to pay taxes and insurance throughout the term.

It is provided that this lease will be void if the lessees do not erect buildings within eighteen months on the land. The buildings are to revert to the Georgia Terminal company after the lease expires, but they are to be paid for at their then appraised value. The Old Colony Trust company, bondholder of the A. B. & A., consented to the order.

E. D. Duncan, secretary of the Investment Company of the South, said Friday that he thought that there will be a position shortly to say just when work would be started on the development. There will be about 800 feet of street frontage involved, a large portion of which will be improved with buildings adapted to the use of wholesale and manufacturing concerns.

BUILDING ALTERATIONS.

The Masons' Annuity has been given a building permit for $10,000 for alterations on its building at the northeast corner of Edgewood avenue and Ivy street.

The first floor will be raised on the Edgewood avenue side, and three stores will be opened on Edgewood avenue. There will be other changes in the interior.

SENATOR JOHNSTON IS DEAD IN WASHINGTON

Death of Alabamian May Cause Tariff Bill to Fail of Passage

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Senator Joseph Forney Johnston, of Birmingham, Ala., died at his apartments here this morning shortly before 9 o'clock.

Senator Johnston had been in poor health and had not attended sessions of the senate for a week. He had been confined to his apartment most of the time, but his trouble was not diagnosed as pnuemonia until a few days ago. Although the senator's son, Forney Johnston, had been summoned from Birmingham, it is believed last night that the senator was not in any immediate danger.

Senator Johnston was born in North Carolina in 1843. He quit school to join the Confederate army as a private in March, 1861. He served with disinction throughout the war and was promoted to the rank of captain. He was wounded four times.

Immediately after the war he practiced law for seventeen years and was a banker for ten years.

In 1896 he was elected governor of Alabama and was re-elected in 1898. He never sought or held any other office than governor and senator.

E. E. POMEROY BOOSTED FOR NEW JUDGESHIP

The name of Colonel E. E. Pomeroy, of the law firm of Moore & Pomeroy, is being put forward by his friends for the new Fulton circuit judgeship. The governor has the power of appointment.

Colonel Pomeroy is one of the younger members of the Atlanta bar and is widely known in his profession. A committee of the bar has presented his name to Governor Slaton.

As previously announced Judge L. S. Roan, of the Stone Mountain circuit, ...s been urged for this position. Judge Roan now presides over the criminal division of the superior court.

Friends of H. C. Peeples wanted him appointed to the place, and A. D. Hewlett, acting for other members of the bar, wired Mr. Peeples in North Carolina to know whether he would accept. ... replied that he would not.

JUDGE MADDOX TO HEAD VETERAN CAVALRYMEN

ROME, Ga., Aug. 8.—At the annual reunion of the First and Sixth Georgia cavalry regiments held here, Judge John W. Maddox, of the Sixth Georgia, was re-elected as president; J. L. Hargis was made vice president; G. W. Arbell, chaplain; J. A. Wynne, of Cedartown, adjutant; John W. Bale, son of a prominent member of the First Georgia, now deceased, was made assistant adjutant.

EVIDENCE MAY UNSEAT SULZER AS GOVERNOR

Witnesses Swear He Used the Campaign Funds to Speculate in Stock Market

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Governor Sulzer's speculations in the New York stock market came out in the open today before the joint legislative investigating committee. The testimony showed the governor a heavy loser and indicated that while he had a $26,000 debit against him with one exchange firm, he used campaign contributions to speculate with another broker without reporting the checks in his sworn statement.

This, according to counsel, constitutes violations of the corrupt practices act, to which would mean automatic disbarment from holding any public office.

Are Rheumatic Sufferers Negligent?

Many Suffer Excruciating Agony for Years Without Investigating the Cause of Their Pain or Its Cure.

Rheumatism frequently comes from uric acid poisoning. Uric acid accumulates from undigested food remaining in stomach and intestines, which ferments instead of being put forward by his friends for the new Fulton circuit judgeship. The governor has the power of appointment.
